Raytheon Donates $8,000 For WQ 'Jaws Of Life'

Raytheon Company has donated $8,000 to the Quincy Fire Department for the purchase of a "Jaws of Life" apparatus for the West Quincy Fire Station.

A check presentation was made by Raytheon officials Mike Flemming and Janet Flemming to Fire Chief Thomas Gorman at Monday night's City Council meeting.

Jaws of Life apparatus is a spreader that can cut or spread metal that has been crushed, an occurrence most common during a motor vehicle accident. It can also lift and pry doors open as well as cut steering wheels and other obstructions that might entrap the victim, freeing the individual from the encapsulated vehicle.

Part of the equipment was displayed to the City Council Monday night.

Gorman said the equipment will be very helpful to the West Quincy station.

"This will give us another tool," he said. "The need for a Jaws of Life at Fire Company 5 was the most pressing need of the department. The proximity to both the dangerous intersection on Centre Street and the Southeast Expressway will help to save the lives of many motorists."

Ward 4 City Councillor Michael D'Amico agreed.

"Raytheon is an asset to the City of Quincy," he said.

Flemming said the company simply wants to be a good neighbor, noting that Raytheon has "been looking for a few years" to do something to thank the city for its past support.

McCauley Seeks To Enlarge Budget Subcommittee

School Committeeman Francis McCauley was scheduled to introduce a motion at last night's (Wednesday's) School Committee meeting seeking to expand the membership of the budget subcommittee.

Under McCauley's proposal, the subcommittee, presently comprised of three members, would be expanded to a committee of the whole which would include all seven committee members. It would be enlarged only for the purpose of reviewing the Fiscal Year 1997 budget.

McCauley pointed out that the review and passage of the School Committee's budget is one of the committee's most important tasks since Proposition 2 1/2 and the Education Reform Act have diminished the committee's role in school operations.

For the past two years since subcommittees were introduced, the budget has been reviewed by the three-member subcommittee and then reported back to the full committee for approval.

McCauley noted that the FY 1997 budget will total approximately $48.6 million, an increase of $5.7 million or 13.3 percent over the present FY 1996 budget.

"A budget of this magnitude deserves the careful scrutiny of all committee members sitting in budget session," McCauley said.

Under the provision of Proposition 2 1/2, the final budget total will be set by School Committee Chairman and Mayor James Sheets.

Weather Delays Daffodil Days

The South Shore Unit of the American Cancer Society has delayed its annual Daffodil Days from March 19-24 to March 26-27.

According to Pauline Sweeney, who along with husband Dennis head the event, the delay was caused because of the inclement weather in Washington that prevented the blooming of the daffodils.

The Sweeneys have had record-breaking sales of $60,000 and more in this area for many years.

Orders for three or more bunches will be delivered by volunteers on March 27, while pickup of smaller orders may be made March 26 at the Sweeney Funeral Home, 74 Elm St., Quincy.

Durkin Office Hours

Ward 5 City Councillor Stephen Durkin will hold office hours Monday, March 25 from 6:30 to 8 p.m. in the Community Room of the Beechwood Knoll Elementary School.

Durkin will also hold an office hour Tuesday, March 26 from 6:30 to 7:30 p.m. at Tobin Towers, 80 Clay St., Wollaston. All Ward 5 residents are encouraged to attend.

'Strategic Plan' To Boost Tourism

aren't starting from scratch; the enthusiasm and foundation are there. I want to take what is here already and expand it. The city has made an investment in me, and I'm excited to be piloting the tourism effort. We have the ball, and now we can run with it," said Thomas.

Dan Yeager, who had worked with Joe Mannarino to develop a new strategic plan, said that Quincy 2000 had presented him with a challenge: To write the last Quincy tourism plan for a while. "Quincy presently has the ability to become a big tourism market; it has a great location, attractions, and potential. I believe the city is capable of attracting 500,000 tourists by 2001. The tourism goals and ambitions of this new plan can be achieved with commitment and hard work, and I am excited to be working with the city of Quincy on those goals."

The plan outlines Quincy's tourism potential, as well as comparing the city to other tourist spots like Cambridge, Salem and Sturbridge, Mass. "Quincy has just as much history as places like Salem and Plymouth. The difference is that those towns have marketed themselves to attract tourists. If Quincy does that, then the city is capable of attracting just as many people," said Yeager.

First on the list of objectives for Thomas and Quincy 2000 is developing a marketing campaign to help promote the city. "We are looking to put together a spring ad campaign in the next few weeks to get the word out, and we have plans to set up a tourism hotline with directions, information on attractions and dates and times of events," said Thomas.

According to Joe Mannarino, Thomas' past experience as a travel professional and her ability to work with limited resources make her the ideal person to elevate tourism in Quincy. "With our budget [projected at $50,000 for this year], we needed someone who has a history of successfully starting up businesses and programs. That's what Jo-An brings to her position," said Mannarino.

Thomas added that "I know that there is a big weight on my shoulders to make the city of Quincy a major tourist attraction, but I am excited to get going."

"The foundation is there, and it needs to be energized. Well, I'm the Energizer Bunny, and I'm looking forward the challenge," she concluded.

Achilles Tendinitis: Yaz And Others Troubled By It

376-CARE Finding a doctor nearby is easy with Quincy Hospital's DoctorLine. Just call (617) 376-CARE, 9AM to 5PM weekdays and we'll help you find a great doctor in any of a wide range of specialties.

CARL YASTRZEMSKI

evening in July 1979, Carl Yastrzemski stepped to the plate at Fenway Park.

The wind was calm, and yet that starlit evening there was electricity in the air. It was about 9 p.m. when Yaz, the captain of the Boston Red Sox, stood facing the pitcher.

Swinging his bat like a windmill, in a stance so familiar to Red Sox fans everywhere, Yaz sent the ball high and deep to the bullpen in right field. With that swing, Yaz had the 400th home run of his career.

Later that season on a cool September night, Yaz would reach his 3000th career hit.

During that record-setting summer, Yaz became one of the select few major leaguers to get 400 home runs and 3000 hits. However, between those two milestones, Yastrzemski was significantly troubled with an Achilles tendinitis which is sometimes seen in athletes as well as nonathletes.

The Achilles tendon is the strong cord connecting muscles of the calf to the heel bone. This complex allows you to lift your heel and propel forward as you walk, run or climb stairs. When the tendon is inflamed, as in Achilles tendinitis, you compensate by taking a shorter stride or perhaps by walking up a flight of stairs one step at a time.

This problem is particularly prevalent in athletes, especially long-distance runners. Achilles tendinitis may also be seen in the elderly population, especially among women who have spent most of their lives walking in heels.

Treatment consists of Achilles tendon stretching exercises. Icing and a nonsteroidal anti-inflammatory agent, if not contraindicated, are also of great help (soaking in hot water is not recommended).

Finally, physical therapy may be added to this regimen, along with heel lifts and rest.

For acute cases, treatment is usually very successful. In chronic cases, where the condition persists for longer than two months, therapy may not be as successful. In these cases, the tendon becomes prone to rupture.

Cortisone injections into the tendon should be avoided. Long-term stretching is the most important aspect of treating and preventing the condition.

How To Be A Smart Eyeglass Shopper

By CAROLANN SPERANZO

With all the changes in the health care industry, one area that has reached the heights of confusion is eyecare.

Years ago, one just went to the local optometrist and had the exam and eyeglasses done. Nowadays, there are local ophthalmologists, local optometrists, local opticians, chain stores—even Walmart has an optical section. As with many pharmaceuticals, many health insurance companies contract with a specific chain of stores for their services. So how does one choose?

First, the eye examination is most important. Ask your neighbors, your doctors or your friends who they recommend. Recognize that most ophthalmologists accept most health insurances. Also important is their availability and accessibility. Can you get to see them in a reasonable amount of time? Will they sit and answer your questions? If you have an emergency, will they return calls and agree to see you? Some people prefer to see an optometrist (who can do eye examinations for prescriptions, but do not diagnose nor treat eye infections or diseases). There are many excellent optometrists who should be considered; however, some health insurance companies do not accept optometrists, while others will only allow optometrists (such as Vision Service Plans).

Once you decide on the ophthalmologist or optometrist, the next step is to decide on eyeglasses. Many ophthalmologists will recommend local opticians whose work they have seen and approved. Some ophthalmologists now also dispense eyeglasses.

And in the midst of this decision, one is inundated with media advertising like "Buy One, Get One Free" or "60 percent off this month only," etc. To help make this decision easier, here's a checklist of things to consider:

1. Is the company reliable? Are you seeing the licensed optician? Many optical stores have frame consultants who are not licensed but help customers pick out styles, but not all prescriptions are appropriate for all styles.

2. Listen to your family and friends about their experiences.

3. Since most consumers do not know the available choice of products for eyeglasses, it is imperative to find someone qualified to review the prescription and give you appropriate options in lenses—not whatever the monthly special happens to be. Did you know all progressives (invisible bifocals) have specific nuances? Which are appropriate for your eyewear needs? Do they come with a guarantee? Do they replace lenses for scratches or merely say the resistant coating takes longer to scratch? Do they use the cheapest or best products available? This is where you need advice from a professional—not just a salesperson.

4. Do the frames fit you properly or do they just "look pretty"?

Those are some ideas to think about. In addition, although your health insurance may say you can select only certain frames, the final decision is yours.

Remember, your eyeglasses are the first things a person sees when they meet you. Your eyeglasses should help you see clearly while reflecting your personal style.

Most people only buy one pair of eyeglasses and wear them an average of two years. As we say at Second Sight, your vision is your investment in your self—quality is always the best value.

Carolann Speranzo is the owner of Second Sight Eyewear Gallery located at 1147 Hancock St., Quincy, and can be reached at 773-1178.

Did you know...

- Even if you have no plans to quit smoking, you probably know that smoking is harmful, but may be tuning out information on smoking and health. Long-term smokers may think that it's too late to quit, that the damage is done, and it isn't worth quitting.
- If you are thinking about quitting, you are probably receptive to information about smoking and about ways to stop. You may want to hear about how it feels to quit, and worry about how to cope without cigarettes. You worry about failure.
- The smoker who is ready to quit may feel nervous, excited, worried. You may have a quit date in mind and you are ready to act. Often, this person, at the last minute, may look for reasons not to quit for now.

DON'T GIVE UP! Don't say, "If only I had more will power." Every effort to quit brings a greater chance of success! Don't allow anything to stop you from improving your health. BUSINESS SPOTLIGHT

A Relaxed, Friendly Restaurant Excellent Fare With A Family Flair At Cronin's Publick House

By CHRISTIAN POTTS

Tucked away over by Fore River Shipyard, it would seem as if Cronin's Publick House on Des Moines Rd. in Quincy would have a tough time attracting customers.

Walk in on an afternoon during lunchtime, though, and you'll find that Cronin's Publick House has no trouble attracting people; in fact, according to Margaret Cronin, the owner of Cronin's Publick House, the customers come all by themselves.

"To be perfectly honest, we sometimes wonder why people keep coming back," said Mrs. Cronin with a smile. "But they do."

Margaret, who is originally from County Kerry, Ireland, has lived in Quincy since 1952. She and her husband, Dennis—a retired Quincy Police sergeant—have been in the restaurant business for six years and have been very successful.

Cronin's is completely family-owned and operated; so much so that it's like coming to their house for dinner. "I have three daughters—Peggy, Eileen and Denise—who work here regularly, and my husband helps out as well. And my sons and sons-in-law also help out, too," said Mrs. Cronin.

The secret to Cronin's success? "We offer excellent meals at low prices with great service," said Margaret. "We serve generous portions, we're friendly and we have good food. I guess if there's a reason why people like to eat here, it's because this a friendly place. You know the person next to you; they aren't just strangers."

What contributes to this friendly atmosphere? Mrs. Cronin believes that because it is a family-owned and run business, people "can relate to us. My family and I can relate to everybody else because they are just like us—regular people. And so we attract friendly customers. I always say that here there are no strangers—only friends you've never met," she said.

Step inside Cronin's Publick House, which has the address of 23 1/2 Des Moines Rd., and you feel as if you have stepped inside an old Irish pub. The restaurant has a cozy feel and a warm atmosphere that is genuine; there's nothing fake or affected

And the menu is as simple and straightforward as the restaurant. It features two of Cronin's specialties, their Buffalo wings and steak tips, as well as fresh seafood and their newest feature, teriyaki and turkey tips. You can get a personal six-inch Baboli pizza for $2.50 or a 12-ounce New York sirloin strip steak with all the trimmings for $8.95.

"Our menu is inexpensive, and our food is top-quality. We have three excellent chefs who have lots of experience. I can say without reservation that our food is excellent.

"And we offer low-calorie, low-fat items upon request. We know that people today want quick lunches—good food at a good price. We try to give them that," said Margaret.

Cronin's has become known as a great sports bar, according to Margaret. They have five televisions throughout the bar and dining room and come Saturday and Sunday, if there's a game on, you can watch it at Cronin's Publick House.

Cronin's also sponsors several adult softball teams for patrons and friends alike. And they sponsor two golf tournaments—in the spring and fall—for regular customers and friends that come complete with a day of golf and a buffet dinner back at the restaurant.

"We are a community place, and the softball and golf are two of the ways that we make our customers feel more at home. It's a friendly place, and people like to do things with their friends," said Mrs. Cronin.

The atmosphere is cozy and very pub-ish, with high tables and bar stools. "Customers like it here—it's warm, it's friendly, and it's relaxed. Customers in and feel like they know everybody here; it's a family-type place," finished Margaret.

For St. Patrick's Day, Cronin's put on a three-day celebration that brought the Old Country to Des Moines St. for the weekend. "It was wall-to-wall people all weekend, with live entertainment and all kinds of menu specials.

"We featured a special St. Patrick's Day menu with corned beef and cabbage, Irish bread, a roast turkey dinner, and Mrs. Cronin's special homemade Shepherd's Pie," said Margaret.

And they had Claire O'Brien, who came all the way from County Cork, Ireland, singing Irish standards along with Irish Step Dancers.

"Everyone loved it, including the Mayor. He came in and had lunch Friday and said the service was wonderful and the food was great. It was a fun and very successful weekend," she continued.

So, despite the fact that they are tucked away in Quincy, Cronin's Publick House has never wanted for customers. As Margaret Cronin says, "If you have a nice place and offer good food, then people will come. And if they like it here, they will come back."

Sounds like a pretty good formula for success.

Have Escape Plan In Case Of Fire

Nobody wants to think about disaster, but planning can be the difference between safety and tragedy.

Every family should have a plan in case fire breaks out in the home, suggests the United Food and Commercial Workers Union. Fire departments recommend planning an escape route, picking a place outside to meet, and practicing a fire drill.

Smoke detectors should be installed on every level of the home. Batteries should be replaced once a year, and checked on occasion. Fire extinguishers can be useful for small fires. Don't use water on grease fires on the stove; clamp a pot lid on the pan and turn off the burner.

If the house is on fire, get out and stay out. If you can't get out, feel the door of the room. If it's hot or you smell smoke, find another way out, or go to the window and signal for help.

Smoke can kill. It's a gas, and rises. Drop to the floor and get below the smoke. If possible, breathe through a wet cloth or towel.

Quincy, North Place Six Wrestlers On OCL All-Star Squad

A total of six wrestlers from Quincy and North Quincy high schools were selected to the 1995-96 Old Colony League Wrestling All-Star teams.

Leading the first-team selections was Quincy's Dai Nguyen, who finished second overall in the 103-pound class at the Massachusetts All-State Championships at Franklin High School in February. Nguyen was the Mass. Division I South sectional champion and had finished second at the Division I State tourney in the 103-lbs. division.

North Quincy's Ed Ford earned OCL first-team honors in the 112-lbs. class after advancing all the way to the Division II State Championships.

Joining Nguyen and Ford on the first team was QHS wrestler Mark Froelich, who had also been chosen to participate in the All-State Championships after finishing second in the 140-lbs. class at the Div. I South sectionals.

Quincy's Rich Testa was named to the second-team squad after qualifying for the Div. I State tourney in the 125-lbs. division. North Quincy's Joe West, who had advanced to the Division II State tourney, completed the all-Quincy sweep of the 140-lbs. class, joining Quincy High's Froelich.

Quincy High School's John Cheverie was chosen to receive the OCL Individual Sportsmanship award by league coaches for his exemplary conduct and attitude during competitions and practice.

Shea Rink, Park Tour Saturday

State Rep. Michael Bellotti and Sen. Michael Morrissey will host a tour of the Shea Rink/Shea Park area in West Quincy Saturday at 1:45 p.m.

All residents are welcome to participate and discuss their concerns as they relate to the ongoing improvement project currently underway at the site.

Also in attendance will be Ward 4 City Councillor Michael D'Amico and officials from the MDC.

Last fall, through the efforts of Bellotti, Morrissey and others, a new roof costing $350,000 was installed to replace the existing roof which had fallen into disrepair. Plans to restore the playground area, tennis courts, and baseball field will be discussed during the site inspection Saturday.

"It is important that the groundwork for this project has already begun, with the installation of the new roof on the rink," Bellotti said at a recent meeting. "I will continue to work in conjunction with the MDC to see that this project comes to its fruition, as well as to the satisfaction of the residents in this area and throughout Quincy."

"It is our commitment to do everything in our power legislatively to ensure that the improvements at the Shea Rink/Shea Park area continue," added Morrissey.

Squirt B's Qualify For USA Northeast Regionals

The Quincy Youth Hockey Association Squirt B's won their last game of the regular season, beating Parkway 3-1 last Saturday.

The Squirts, sponsored by Continental Cablevision, earned a berth in the Northeast Regionals of USA Hockey, being played in Marlboro, MA on March 23-25. The B's will face teams from six New England states as well as New York and New Jersey.

Pat Clifford opened the scoring for the Squirts in the game against Parkway, converting assists by Rob Mooney and Josh Giordani. Liam Powers struck next for Quincy, taking a Dan Sullivan pass and beating the Parkway netminder. Justin Swierk scored the winning goal in the third period off a pass from Ken Young.

Quincy's defense was outstanding once again, with goalie Nick Manning and defensemen Matt Alleva, Bob Donovan, Ryan McFarland, Sean Moria-rry, Jake O'Donnell and Richard Stone keeping the Parkway offense at bay. Brendan Craig and Ryan Tobin also had great games for the Squirts.

After having won two tournaments thus far this season-The Knights of Columbus Tournament and the Central Mass. Mid-Winter Classic-head coach Pat Clifford and assistant coaches Kevin Craig and Mark Giordani are very optimistic about their team's chances.

PEE WEE PLAYERS from two countries relax after a game in the Kiwanis Tournament last month. The players from Klagenfurt, Austria (in the red jerseys) stayed with their Quincy counterparts (in white) while they played in the week-long tourney. According to Jim Virtue, a parent of one of the Quincy Pee Wees, the kids toured Boston and experienced a bit of culture shock. "They bought hockey equipment, because it is so much cheaper over here, and they had never seen chocolate milk before—they were fascinated by it," said Virtue.

Benefit For Jim Kennedy Saturday

A benefit function for Quincy native Jim Kennedy will be held Saturday, March 23 at the Square Dancing Foundation of New England on Union St. in Weymouth at 7 p.m.

Jim, born and raised in the Montclair section of Quincy, was stricken in February 1994 with a progressive neurological disease that has slowly diminished his speech and mobility, eventually robbing him of the ability to hold and play with his two-year-old son, Trevor.

Jim's mother was a special needs teacher for the Quincy Public Schools, and his father served on the Quincy School Committee for 12 years and was also the Dean of Undergraduate Studies at Northeastern University.

A 1984 graduate of Quincy High School, Jim was a standout athlete in both football and track. He graduated with high honors from Northeastern University and was an assistant football coach at Quincy High School. He was also considered by many to be one of the best croquet players in Quincy.

Jim went on to graduate with honors from Georgetown Law School in June of 1992 and passed the Maryland Bar Exam on his first try, landing a position at a prominent Washington, D.C. law firm.

1993 was a year of personal milestones for Jim. He married his wife Karen, and together they purchased a home in the Washington, D.C. suburbs. Later that same year, Jim and Karen learned that their first child was on the way. It seemed as if life, for the Kennedys, could not get much better.

But all that changed in 1994 when Jim was stricken with his neurological disease.

To assist Jim and his family in their courageous and costly battle against his disease, a support fund has been set up at Colonial Federal Bank in Quincy.

Proceeds from the March 23 event, "A Night to Help a Friend," will go towards this support fund. Admission is $20 per person at the door.

For more information—including directions to the Square Dancing Foundation—or to make a contribution, contact Ed Kennedy at (617) 770-2792 or send donations to The James P. Kennedy Support Fund, c/o Colonial Federal Savings Bank, 15 Beach Street, Quincy, MA 02170.

SCOTT DEWARE

A Thought For The Week

Have you ever thought about all the things that you planned on doing back in your early years? How many of them have you been able to do? How many times have you waited for "someday"? How many times have you dreamed of the future and what you were going to do when that time came?

Some people spend their entire lives dreaming of the future only to realize in later years that their treasured dream is still very far away. Many of us waste much time wishing instead of doing what we really dream of and want to do... always thinking that we can put it off for another year or another month... And that time never seems to come.

Someone once said that "Anything is possible, if you set your mind to it... Remember this 'ole world of ours' is full of wonderful experiences. So don't keep your dream locked away for 'someday' because that 'someday' is now before you."

"Dreams never hurt anybody if he keeps working right behind the dream to make as much of it come real as he can."... F.W. Woolworth

State Seen Paying 63% School Cost

ority List."

Creedon said part of that documentation is how the project will be funded. Mayor James Sheets has said he plans to send a bond issue for the project to the City Council to be considered for approval in the near future.

The proposal by Ward 2 City Councillor Daniel Raymond and School Committee Vice Chairman Ronald Mariano calls for the new school to be built at Victory Park near the site of the former Pollard School.

The new elementary school has been proposed to relieve overcrowding at Sterling Middle School in South Quincy. Under the plan, the new school would accept pupils who now attend Point-Webster Elementary School, which Point-Webster--currently Quincy Point's only public school--would become a middle school.

Students who now move from Point-Webster to Sterling for sixth grade would stay in Quincy Point for middle school, reducing by about half Sterling's growing population of more than 450 students.

Officials have no definitive timetable for the project. Although the School Committee recently held a community meeting on the matter, Raymond said Tuesday more meetings must be held before the committee can approve the project and before the City Council could consider any bond.

Under the present districting, half of Sterling's students originate from Point-Webster with the other half coming from Lincoln-Hancock Community School in South Quincy.

The state's letter to Creedon states that the proposal for the new school will be classified as a Category Two project for overcrowding.

State Official Says New Plan Best For Shipyard will have to secure about $230 million in federal loan guarantees from the U.S. Maritime Administration (MARAD) in order for the plan to become a reality. The Massachusetts Water Resources Authority, which owns the shipyard, has accepted an offer of $10 million to purchase it, but that deal must be approved by the state Legislature which likely will not do so until the loan guarantees are approved.

Raymond appeared bothered when Harold later objected to a resolution he introduced stating that the council should support Emmanuel's plan. The objection--which Harold said he raised because he wants to meet with Emmanuel before supporting the plan--meant that Raymond's resolution would be automatically delayed until the next council meeting.

Raymond said any appearance the council is not united in its support of the plan could hurt Emmanuel's chances for the loan guarantees. He suggested that Harold did not want the plan to succeed.

"A plan is afoot to pull the rug out from under this proposal," he said.

Harold said he is merely concerned about a proposal that will have such a large impact on the city and wants to meet with its main proponent before he supports it.

Later in the evening, however, the council passed a resolution introduced by Council President Peter Kolson that Emmanuel's company, if it reopens the shipyard, form a "linkage" with the Center for Technical Education in Quincy to train work study students the shipbuilding trade. The resolution contained language similar to Raymond's in its request that the council back the Mass Heavy Industries plan.

All passenger cars manufactured after September 1, 1997 will be required to come equipped with air bags for both the driver and front-seat passengers; however, most car manufacturers are not waiting. According to the National Center for Statistics and Analysis, air bags have saved more than 911 lives in this country since 1987, and 374 in the last year alone. The Insurance Institute for Highway Safety reports that there are 23% fewer deaths than expected among drivers involved in head-on and front-angle crashes of cars equipped with air bags. Joseph McConville Honored as Sun Citizen of Year

Joseph F. McConville, Jr., of Chickatabot Rd., Merrymount, was honored Sunday as the 1995 Quincy Sun "Citizen of the Year" for freely and generously giving a good part of his life to Quincy youth and to his city.

The 11th annual award was presented to him at a reception at the Quincy Sons of Italy Social Center attended by city and state officials, clergy, representatives of the numerous organizations he has been active with, family, friends and other invited guests.

McConville, 65, was selected for the honor from among 35 nominations submitted by Quincy Sun readers. The final choice was made by a panel of judges that considered all 35 nominees.

Sun Publisher Henry W. Bosworth presented McConville with a clock plaque inscribed: "To Joseph F. McConville Jr., for outstanding community service through many years of dedication given freely and generously to his city and its youth."

Bosworth told McConville the clock "symbolizes all the time you have given to your community and its youth and are still giving."

Sun Editor Robert Bosworth presented McConville a framed special Page One of The Quincy Sun, telling of his selection as the Citizen of the Year. The page also lists the 10 past recipients, other nominees and the judging panel which made the selection.

In accepting the award, McConville thanked The Sun and acknowledged the support of many others who have helped him in all his endeavors.

"I would like to thank The Quincy Sun, I would like to thank all the good people out there who came today and all the people who couldn't come here today who have supported me and made me do some things that I'm taking credit for today.

"I really do share this with all of you because you're the ones who made it happen. This is quite an honor just to be nominated. To be selected is a great honor.

"You don't do this alone. There are so many people... that helped me get to where I am right now," McConville said. "There are so many people who have helped me reach this particular point."

Proposed Restaurant On The Tent Site Runs Into Opposition

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO

The promise of 150 new jobs, a shuttle bus to help people move around Marina Bay, valet parking, a swimming pool and a new year-round restaurant, sounded good, but not good enough to overshadow a controversial parking problem at Tuesday's Quincy License Board meeting.

Ed Kane, owner of restaurants in Hingham, showed the board and a large crowd attending the meeting at city hall plans for Waterworks which would replace The Tent and The Tavern, a restaurant replacing the former Ocean Terrace.

Opponents said there were deficiencies in the parking plans and questioned whether the MDC would open their lot for parking.

Att'y. Jack McClone, who has law offices at Marina Bay represented some 150 tenants who signed a petition opposing the plan saying the last thing they all wanted was "another night club." He said there were deficiencies in parking throughout the whole Marina Bay.

He told the license board to view the project with "one eye open".

Citing the fact that more than 300 boats have to be displaced to pave a certain area in a short time, McClone said "It's not going to happen".

Wanted For 1993 Shooting Accused Murderer Fights Deportation From Guyana

By MICHAEL WHALEN

John A. "Tony" Diaz, the accused murderer of 25-year-old Dawn Brown of North Quincy, will fight deportation from Guyana where he was arrested last week.

The Norfolk County district attorney's office informed the Quincy Police Department Tuesday that Diaz has hired a prominent Guyanese attorney in an attempt to block his deportation to the United States where he will face a charge of first-degree murder.

Officials had hoped Diaz would face arraignment on the murder charge as early as yesterday (Wednesday), but his latest actions will delay his return to Massachusetts.

The length of that delay was unknown at press time. Nina Flaherty, spokesperson for the D.A.'s office, said only that Diaz will face a new court date in Guyana today (Thursday).

"We won't know anything new until after that," she said.

Brown's sister, Elaine Cannon, said the Brown family had no comment on Diaz' new course of action at press time.

Diaz could receive a sentence of life without

Would Require Special Permits For Business 'B' Projects QCBPA Concerned About Proposed Law Amendment

By MICHAEL WHALEN

Members of the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association have expressed concerns about a proposal by Ward 2 City Councillor Daniel Raymondi to amend a city ordinance regarding Business "B" construction projects in Quincy.

Raymondi has proposed that any project of 5,000 square feet or more zoned Business "B," whether it be construction of a new building or an addition to an existing one, require a special permit granted by the City Council. Currently, a business only needs to obtain a permit from the Quincy Building Department for such a project.

Raymondi said the proposal was prompted by a plan by Shaw's Supermarkets to build a new 53,000-square-foot superstore on Quincy Ave. To do so, it will demolish two current structures at the same site—the existing Shaw's store and the former Quinail headquarters next door, which Shaw's has purchased.

A City Council public hearing on the proposed ordinance change is scheduled for Tuesday, April 16 at 6:35 p.m. in the City Council Chambers at City Hall. The Planning Board will hold a public hearing on the matter Wednesday, April 10 at 7 p.m. in the second floor Conference Room at City Hall Annex.

At Tuesday's general membership meeting of the QCBPA, Daniel Flynn, president of the association, said he has reservations about the proposal.

"It clearly sends a wrong message to anyone who wants to open a business in Quincy," said Flynn.

While the QCBPA did not take an official vote on the matter, some expressed agreement with Flynn's concerns. Flynn suggested that members attend the City Council public hearing to express their views.

He added that the QCBPA is drafting a letter to send to Raymondi regarding the proposal.

Also in attendance at Tuesday's meeting was Building Inspector Matthias Mulvey, who said he has concerns of his own regarding the proposed ordinance amendment. He noted that he would prefer such a proposal be tabled until later in the year, since a number of current projects scheduled for the upcoming building season could be affected.

"I wish the proposal could be withdrawn," he said. "This would really hurt things this year."

Two city councillors in attendance acknowledged that the proposal could have a significant impact on local businesses.

"It's going to affect them unbelievably," said Ward 3 Councillor Patrick McDermott, who added that he wants to discuss the issue further with Raymondi and receive community input at the public hearing before he decides how he will vote on the matter.

"Obviously, we're going to take into consideration what the business community has to say," said Councillor Paul Harold.

Raymondi said this week he also is sensitive to the feelings of local merchants but added that a project as large as the new

City To Receive $245,000 From State For Snow Storm Costs

The city is now slated to receive $245,183 in state monies for snow and ice removal expenditures for this winter.

The amount is more than $70,000 higher than the figure of $175,000 state officials promised the city last month.

Members of Quincy's State House delegation recently made the announcement after legislators passed a $70 million supplemental budget which included a $21 million appropriation to assist cities and towns with their new local snow and ice removal budgets.

Quincy legislators said the appropriation was an absolute necessity.

"This winter's snowstorms have left our community in a financial stranglehold," said Rep. Ronald Mariano. "I'm delighted we were able to address this important issue, and hope that this much-needed money will soon be in the hands of our city."

Following severe weather earlier this winter, Rep. Stephen Tobin strongly supported legislation to mitigate the budgetary impact on local communities of the extraordinary snow and ice removal costs associated with the snowstorms. Tobin said the bill was incorporated in the House Ways and Means supplemental budget, and subsequently in the Joint Conference Committee report.

Rep. Michael Bellotti said the supplemental appropriation distributes the $21 million by a formula based on local aid distribution and lottery distribution formulas. In addition to the $21 million in snow aid, he noted, the supplemental budget also contains an appropriation for the state highway department to pay local contractors who plowed state highways and properties, and a $380,000 line-item for a new State Police Cadet Training Class.

The supplemental budget, having been enacted in both the House and Senate, now awaits the signature of Gov. William Weld.

The city has spent $1.7 million for snow and ice removal this winter, according to Mayor James Sheets, who said he was pleased to learn of the increased state aid.

"It provides us with some (financial) relief, there's no question about that," he said. "Every little bit helps."

The mayor said the city will use the $300,000 it annually sets aside for snow and ice removal, as well as $148,000 in Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) aid and the state aid and to pay for the winter expenditures.

The balance will be paid out of the city's free cash (cash reserve) account. Sheets said the city has about $2.3 million in the free cash account, although some of that is earmarked for employee overtime and other expenditures.

Quincy meteorologist Rob Gilman said the city received has received 112.1 inches of snow this winter. The record snowfall of two years ago totaled about 93 inches, he said.

THELMA GOLDMAN of Quincy (second from right) recently was honored as an "Everyday Hero" by officials at the American Red Cross in Quincy Center. Goldman, an octogenarian, received a Certificate of Appreciation and bouquet of flowers for performing various volunteer duties. The award was given as part of the celebration of Red Cross Month in March. Also in photo from left are Red Cross Area Manager Jacqueline Gardner, Helen Crowley, coordinator of volunteers and Red Cross Council member John Spillane.

UNDERSTANDING STOMACH ACHES

Sometimes it is easy to figure out why your stomach hurts: you had a hot pastrami sub for lunch, or you sweated through a two-hour budget bash with the boss. Sometimes, though, the causes are not so clear. Unlike occasional stomach aches, which are part of life for most people, persistent or severe stomach pain can be a warning sign of more serious problems. Among these are chronic stress, food sensitivities or allergy, gallstones or gallbladder disease, ulcers, inflammatory bowel disease (e.g. Crohn's disease, colitis), gastrointestinal bacteria or parasites, certain metabolic or blood disorders, or disorders of a woman's reproductive organs. Effective treatment depends on an accurate diagnosis.

P.S. Contact your doctor about any sudden, severe stomach pain, or pain that persists beyond a few hours.

If you have a continually upset stomach, this may indicate a more serious underlying medical condition. Get the help you need. At COMPREHENSIVE MEDICAL CARE, Dr. Lisa Antonelli and I specialize in heart disease. I am affiliated with Quincy Hospital and South Shore Hospitals. Council Musical Chairs?

There are still a Presidential and state elections to come this year but thoughts are already turning to next year's city election.

Tim Cahill's city council at-large seat could trigger a little musical chairs at City Hall.

Cahill is running for Norfolk County treasurer this year and has a good shot at it. If he wins, he definitely will not seek re-election to the council.

But win or lose, it appears the seat will be open and up for grabs.

Cahill, who was elected to his fifth council term last November, said at the time it would be his final one. But he has hinted he could change his mind about that.

Winning the treasurer's post will definitely open the at-large seat and City Hall observers are pretty sure it will be open, one way or the other.

So, who will be running for it?

It would be opportunity knocking for a present ward councillor. And probably three of them are now thinking of being there to answer the door.

KOLSON

AYERS

The three most likely to consider a run for the Cahill seat are: Council President Peter Kolson (Ward 1), Dan Raymond (Ward 2) and Bruce Ayers (Ward 6).

If one, two or three of them ran, it would open one, two or three ward seats.

CHRETIEN

But don't over overlook Larry Chretien who gave up his Ward 3 seat last year to run at-large but finished out-of-the money.

Chretien probably would have stayed put if he had known that Paul Harold was going to get into the race. Harold topped the at-large field with Cahill and Mike Cheney winning the second and third spots.

But Chretien doesn't given up easily. And he could very well be back as a candidate in 1997.

And there's Tom Fabrizio who lost the Ward 4 seat to young Mike D'Amico. He sounds like he is considering a comeback bid. Either to challenge D'Amico or--if the stage is right--maybe a run at-large.

Never a dull moment in politics.

FABRIZIO

SIX MEMBERS of last year's City Council were toasted and a little roasted by members of this year's council at a farewell party last week at the Custom House restaurant.

The party was put together by City Clerk Joseph Shea, present Council President Peter Kolson and last year's council president, Mike Cheney.

College Information
Night At NQHS

North Quincy High School will hold a "College Information Night" for junior and sophomore students and parents Wednesday, March 27 from 6:30 to 9 p.m. in the NQHS auditorium.

The event, which is being presented by the NQHS Counseling Center, will include a number of informational workshops.

The former councillors honored: Ted DeCristofaro (Ward 2), Larry Chretien (Ward 3), Tom Fabrizio (Ward 4), Chuck Phelan (Ward 5), Joseph LaRaia and Charles McIntyre, at large. McIntyre filled out LaRaia's term when the latter was named an assessor.

The six (who got in a little roasting of their own) were presented clock plaques with the map of Quincy on them.

PETER BELLOTTI, brother of Rep. Michael Bellotti, has signed on with Ch. 56 as permanent legal analyst after very professionally serving on a now-and-then-basis. Bellotti, who now lives in Cambridge, is opening a law office on Hancock St. near the North Quincy Knights of Columbus.

The two brothers, of course, are sons of former Atty. Gen. Frank and Maggie Bellotti.

EILEEN COHEN, former executive director of the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association who also owned the former Sweets 'n Things store downtown, is moving to Laguna Niguel, Calif.

COHEN

Eileen was given a farewell party by friends last week at Taso's Euro Restaurant and presented a plaque with the inscription: "A True Friend Always, From Her True Friends In Quincy Center."

An appropriate inscription. She was a true friend giving her heart and soul to downtown Quincy as executive director of the QCBPA. And her true friends will always feel she got a raw deal.

Now she will begin a new life 3,000 miles from the downtown Quincy she loved and hoped to remain.

Good luck and best wishes, Eileen.

FRANK KEARNS may be 83 but he's still as active as a 50-year-old--or even younger. Frank was recently appointed to his third five-year term as a Quincy Housing Authority Commissioner by Mayor James Sheets.

He's a marvel. He's in best at 9:30 and up at 3 a.m. Reads the morning paper and then it's off to The Tara in Braintree for swimming. Then to St. John's for Mass.

And the rest of the day he stays busy doing nice things for people. Like taking seniors to the doctor, the hospital, the dentist, drugstore for prescriptions, shopping, etc. All on his own time.

And, that's why he was selected The Quincy Sun's Citizen of the Year in 1991.

CLARA YEOMANS, another Sun Citizen of the Year who received the 1989 award for her work as an environmentalist, has been temporarily sidelined.

Clara tripped and fell over a rug at her home last week, fracturing her right hip which was immediately replaced at Quincy Hospital where she expects to remain two weeks.

She was disappointed she could not attend Sunday's reception for this year's Sun Citizen of the Year recipient, Joseph McConville.

A speedy recovery, Clara.

THINKING OUT LOUD: Do you think someone could get a step ladder, a hammer and a couple of nails and tack up that floppy Nobody's Perfect sign on Hancock St.? It doesn't do anything for the downtown.

YEOMANS

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS A 1940 postcard view of Hancock Street from the top of what is now the Bank of Boston building in Quincy Square. On the left was Heffernan's Shoe Store, the Albrama theatre and the United Cigar Shop. On the right was the gas company's appliance store, where The Quincy Sun is now located, and Woolworth's. Even with the low volume of traffic, the city had a police officer in the box in the center of the street to help pedestrians get across.

Fore River Workers Campaign For Nuclear Contracts

By PAUL HAROLD

Local 5 President Albert Oliverio issued a flyer headed, "The Double Standard," and had 10,000 copies handed out to workers as they passed through the shipyard gates. The double standard referred to the Quincy management's decision that the yard would only bid on nuclear surface vessels.

Mar. 28 - April 3 1961
35 Years Ago

Oliverio questioned why yards such as Newport News were building both nuclear submarines and surface vessels, while there was no sub work in Quincy.

The flyer said that it was Quincy's turn to receive nuclear sub contracts and urged the workers to contact their congressmen and senators.

INCINERATOR PLAN MOVES FORWARD

Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa announced that the city's plan for an incinerator had moved one step forward with the approval of health commissioner Dr. Richard Ash of the Hardwick Quarry location.

The quarry had been selected by the city council and the city's consulting engineers, Metcalf and Eddy. The plant would be built on the rocky ground near the quarry with residue being dumped into the pit.

Rezoning was needed before the plan could be finalized. The only potential blockade was the opposition of the Quincy Taxpayers' Association which was trying to force the city to accept a sanitary land fill as an alternative to incineration.

HOSPITAL REVENUES MAY LOWER TAX RATE
A sharp increase in revenues at Quincy City Hospital during the first quarter might reduce the 1961 tax rate, lower than predicted. The "new" increase was "in the vicinity of a dollar."

Some $300,000 of the city's free cash would be used to reduce the tax rate with the rest used for a variety of city improvements, including $90,000 for street resurfacing, $7,500 for the Ward 2 skating rink and $6,300 for landscaping at the hospital.

Anita's Easy Grapenut Pudding

When we are at a restaurant having dinner, and the dessert menu includes grapenut pudding for dessert, we automatically give it an "10". It's a favorite of ours and so easy to make. Also one that can be made in advance to enjoy for a few days.

Here is a delicious recipe used by my sister-in-law Anita.

I've used one percent milk, but of course it comes out must better with homogenized milk.

EASY GRAPENUT PUDDING

4 tablespoons grapenuts
2 eggs

2 cups milk
1/2 cup sugar
1/8 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon vanilla
1/4 teaspoon nutmeg

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Beat together the eggs, sugar and salt and vanilla. Heat the milk and grapenuts together. Add to the egg mixture until well blended. Place in a greased bowl and sprinkle the nutmeg on top. Set the bowl in a baking pan half full of hot water.

Bake for 45 minutes to an hour. We enjoy it with whipped cream on top.

Proposed Restaurant At The Tent Runs Into Opposition

He said tenants would be in favor of a convention center and hotel which was what was promised to Marina Bay property owners several years back.

Kane said he can't be responsible "for the sins of the past" and said he had invested about "$150,000 to get to this point."

McClone also spoke of sewage problems during peak hours and told the board to "take a serious look" before they vote for the plan.

Another opponent, John Bradley, owner of Bradley Insurance who lives in Marina Bay described The Tent as a "cash cow and money pump". He said we must "rid ourselves of this nuisance called 'The Tent'."

Even after hearing Kane's proposal in a meeting that lasted three hours, Bradley said it's the "same book with a new title" and said the tent would always be a "public menace", where "young people congregate to get drunk".

Bradley, the father of seven children said he was "violently opposed to a misplaced facility in my front yard".

He promised the board if they voted in the affirmative that he and the more than 150 tenants in opposition, are "committed to fight with everything we possess."

In quoting from a news article he read about the Marina which stated the board had to "catch the season", Bradley said "we want to sink his boat."

Another opponent Robert Kaufman a resident of Marina Bay and past chairman of the Marina Bay Board of Trustees said the tent is not a permanent structure and questioned why the MDC would allow parking there at night when in all other areas it closes "because of the drunks who park there."

He said they should "put the tent into a grave" and upgrade the whole sewage system where shoes, cans and other debris have been found.

Other opponents reiterated the unbearable noise and requested no outside speakers be anywhere in the city. Tenants said they could not open their windows at night or enjoy a deck outside their condominium because of the "horrible noise".

Ward 6 City Councillor Bruce Ayers told the board that a neighborhood meeting will be held at 7 p.m. April 4 at the Beechwood Community Center to address all community concerns, public safety and ask questions to the applicants.

License Board chairman Joseph I said "I can't support this project unless I am 100 percent convinced that parking won't be a problem. He cited "disastrous conditions" last summer when the board asked for more parking to no avail.

A sizeable group displayed a show of hands in approval of the project. Those speaking in favor of Mr. Kane included, Daniel Flynn, president of the QCBPA, Mary Collins, Joanne Condon Walsh who called the proposal the "nicest one before us", and a few of Kane's employees from Hingham and several family members.

Attorney Robert Fleming represented Kane and told the board that the Marina should be a place for "mixed uses" which bring together housing, businesses, and restaurants.

After suggestions from some of the opponents to conduct a night meeting, the board voted unanimously to continue the hearing at 7 p.m. Tuesday, April 9. Shea said it would allow those opponents who work during the day to attend the meeting at night.

Quincy Public Schools In Robotics Competition

Students and teachers from Quincy and North Quincy High School and the Quincy Center for Technical Education have been working with NYNEX engineers in preparation for the US FIRST remote-controlled robot competition March 29-30.

The three schools have joined forces with NYNEX to construct "Spectrum," the team's robotic entry for the competition being held in Manchester, N.H. A total of 94 schools will be involved in the contest.

Only two players will be allowed to control the robot. Each team will have two minutes to gather and "score" as many colored balls as they can into a goal in the center of a playing field. One player will be responsible for the robot's mobility, while the other player will handle the grabbing, holding and scoring of the colored balls.

The Quincy/ NYNEX team has been building the robot and practicing for the competition for some time. Students from the three different schools were able to communicate with one another utilizing a custom video link provided by NYNEX for video conferencing on ideas and strategy.

The "Spectrum" team will unveil its robotic creation and give a short presentation to the Quincy City Council at its regular meeting on April 15.

Kids Voting Poll: School Uniforms Cause More Division Than Weapons

A nationwide poll of 2,059 fourth and high school students shows the country is more divided over mandatory school uniforms than concealed weapons.

Results of the Kids Voting USA poll were released recently by Quincy Executive Director Harold Crowley Jr.

In a survey conducted by the nonpartisan, non-profit organization in 21 states, 64 percent of high school students are opposed to "high school students wearing uniforms in school" as a way to curb crime. Adults surveyed in the same school districts were evenly split on the issue (43 percent in favor, 43 percent opposed and 15 percent unsure).

Other poll highlights:

• On the issue of citizens lawfully being able to carry a concealed weapon, as many as 32 percent of students agreed it was OK while 54 percent disagreed and 13 percent were unsure. In the adult sample, 29 percent agreed, 63 percent disagreed and 8 percent were unsure.

• More than 50 percent of students and adults polled said people today do not believe as much in the American Dream as they did in the 1980s.

• More optimistically, 64 percent of both students and adults believe one vote can make a difference in the 1996 election.

• Forty-two percent of adults and 34 percent of students said they are against a flat tax. However, 28 percent of adults and 39 percent of students are unsure.

Both students and adults ranked "jobs/economy" as the leading reason to vote this year. Twenty-six percent of students and 25 percent of adults ranked that as the top issue. "Balancing the budget" and "violence/crime" ranked second and third respectively among students and adults.

Kids Voting USA conducted the poll the week of Feb. 19 as both a measurement of voters' leanings on issues this election year as well as an educational activity for participating students. Poll results will be used as part of the Kids Voting USA Curriculum in participating schools and communities throughout the country as students this year study the impact of the news media on the 1996 presidential campaign.

Kids Voting USA this year will involve 5 million students in nearly 40 states throughout the country.

In Quincy, students at Quincy High School under the direction of teacher John Harrington participated in the Kids Voting USA poll along with local adults. The results in most cases mirrored those throughout the country with some exceptions.

Students and adults in Quincy felt jobs and the economy was the primary reason to vote this year, just as they did in a poll conducted earlier. In addition, both sides agreed strongly that citizens should not normally be permitted to carry a concealed weapon.

QHS Alumni Directory Planned

Quincy High School Principal Lloyd Hill has entered into a contract with the Harris Publishing Company to publish a directory of all graduates of the school.

Since the early 1920s, more than 24,000 students have graduated from Quincy High. The graduates are living all over the world and working in many different fields.

The Alumni Directory will be helpful to reunion chairmen who need names and addresses of their classmates. It would also help teachers and counselors to locate speakers who are experts in certain areas as well as to find mentors for students.

"A strong alumni group has the potential to be a real support to the high school," said Hill.

The school system will release the names and addresses of all graduates to Harris Publishing Company and they, in turn, will contact each person individually to obtain additional information for the directory.

Those who do not wish to have their names released to the Harris Publishers should call Hill at 984-8751 as soon as possible.

Joseph McConville Sun 'Citizen Of The Year'

McConville has been active in the Quincy Youth Hockey association as a volunteer ice skating instructor and coach for 25 years and corporation clerk for 20 years.

He has given many years of service to the city including 10 on the Planning Board, nine of them as chairman. He was first appointed to a five-year term in 1983 by former Mayor Francis McCauley. He was reappointed by McCauley in 1988 and also served under Mayor James Sheets before stepping down two years ago.

McConville served six years on the Salary Survey Committee, 10 on the Quincy High School Business Education Advisory Board and was chairman of the Professional Conditions Committee of the Quincy Public Schools.

He has served the city in unpaid positions under six mayors.

McConville has been active in the Merrymount Association and at Our Lady of Good Counsel Church and in the St. Vincent dePaul Society. He is past president of the Parish Council and Our Lady Holy Name Society. He's also a former assistant Scoutmaster for the parish.

He was nominated for the award by Beverly Reinhardt, Quincy Youth Hockey rink manager and Lorraine Rooney, Quincy Youth Hockey secretary and treasurer.

"They've seen him in action, close-up," Bosworth said.

"Joe has taught several thousand youngsters from 5 to 9 years old how to skate. Classes, with as many as 150 youngsters in them, are held Saturday nights at the rink from September to April.

"But," Bosworth continued, "the kids get to learn more than how to skate. They also get to learn a little about life and how they should prepare themselves for it.

"Before the skating instructions, Joe gives the youngsters a pep talk on the meaning of a word such as friendship, leadership, sportsmanship and scholarship. He explains how important these words will be in their lives in the future.

"Joe gives the youngsters the word, explains what it means and then tells them to shout it back at him. They don't seem to forget the word—or its meaning.

"The kids were certainly listening when he was stressing the word scholarship. Some 10 of his skating pupils grew up and went on to West Point and other service academies on full scholarships. And many others to colleges," Bosworth added.

McConville said his good deeds and outstanding community service have been possible because others have helped him. Many of them have never received the proper recognition, he said.

For instance, McConville said the Planning Board was successful under his chairmanship because of the expertise of the lawyers, real estate professionals and engineers. "They were at my side, helping me discover what was taking place," he said humbly.

McConville said the Planning Board reviewed many major projects in his 10 years, including Marina Bay, Presidents Place, Crown Colony, Batterymarch Park and Home Depot "which really gave me a run for my money." He said those projects give him a "high degree of pride" because they have provided "jobs, jobs and additional tax revenue to keep the city where it is."

But of the myriad of endeavors and causes he has assisted over the years, McConville said none is more special than Quincy Youth Hockey.

"It is probably without a doubt the finest organization I've ever seen anywhere. It has great people." On a sad note, McConville noted the passing of Audrey Hayes last week. Mrs. Hayes was the wife of QYA founder Robert Hayes and sister of Beverly Reinhardt who is the Quincy Youth Arena manager.

"They did a marvelous job in getting the program going," he said of all the volunteers who have helped make the Quincy Youth Hockey and the rink a success. "We saved the city, I would say, a few million dollars by having our own rink."

McConville also thanked former football coach and North Quincy legend Pete Zoia, "old number 20," who was also nominated for the award. McConville, who admitted who was not much of a football player in his youth, said Zoia taught him a life-long lesson: never give up and always try your best.

Besides the Sun award, McConville received several other congratulatory commendations. He was presented a Senate citation from Sen. Michael Morrissey, a House citation from Rep. Steve Tobin and Rep. Michael Bellotti (also signed by Rep. Ronald Mariano who was unable to attend Sunday's reception) and a City Council commendation from Council President Peter Kolson.

Quincy Sons of Italy Lodge President Frank Ruscio also presented a commendation to McConville on behalf of the Lodge.

Mayor James Sheets, in extending greetings from the city, praised McConville for his many years of outstanding volunteer service to Quincy.

"Those of us who are fortunate enough to be elected to public office know all too well that too often we get the accolades and congratulations for a job well done by people like Joe McConville.

"It is indeed an honor and a privilege for me to be here this afternoon, bring congratulations to you Joe, your wife Barbara, your family and say thank you for being the marvelous human being you are.

"Thank you for your years of volunteer service to this city and for the impact contributions you have had in this city on the lives of so many individuals," Sheets said.

Fr. James Curtin, pastor of Our Lady of Good Counsel, called his friend an "asset to the parish and an asset to the city."

"In the few years that I've known Joe he's certainly a grand gentleman and friend to our parish and we certainly congratulate you on this honor. They tell me it's long overdue. Joe's been involved in many, many different ways."

Fr. Curtin noted McConville began teaching youngsters how to skate before there was a rink in Quincy. "Every Saturday night Joe is still down (at the rink) teaching kids 5, 6 years old how to skate and that's marvelous. That's a wonderful thing for a person to do.

"You taught them the skills that they needed. I'm very proud that a member of our parish has received this honor.

"Joe we congratulate you and your wife Barbara and all your family. We wish you God's blessings for many years to come," Fr. Curtin said.

In his praise, McCauley said McConville was the right man to succeed the Rev. Bedros Baharian on the Planning Board. He described Rev. Baharian as a "dominant factor in the economic life of the city of Quincy through the administrations of Jim McIntyre, Walter Hannon, Joe LaRaia and Arthur Tobin.

"When he was stepping down," McCauley continued, "I had a very important position to fill. Now, you might think it's easy. There may be 50 or 60 people that a mayor will appoint in the course of a year or over a period of years and with 85,000-odd people in the city, you might think it's, hey, you've got plenty to pick from.

"But it's not as easy as you may think because you want to put the right person in the right job. I had known Joe McConville from his position in the (Boston) Gear Works, I knew him as a community activist in Merrymount, I was a ward councillor a number of years ago and ran into Joe at that time, and I knew of him with his affiliation with the Our Lady of Good Counsel Church. So I settled on Joe McConville and it turned out to be an excellent choice.

"Joe served a five-year term and I reappointed him in 1988," McCauley explained. "Of the 10 years he served, it's interesting to note he served as chairman nine of those years. He so impressed his colleagues on the board in that first year from February 1983 to 1984, that they made him chairman and he served as chairman ever since."

McCauley said the 1980s were "very tumultuous and busy years. There were a lot of tax changes during the Reagan administration that boosted and boomed the economy, especially in the building areas and it's not an easy job. First, you're not getting paid for it and second you have to reconcile the various diverse interests in the city on any particular project and you did an excellent job, Joe.

"Any degree of success that (public officials) have depends on the Joe McConvilles of this world or this community. If they perform well in a professional capacity, then the Frank McCauleys and the Jim Sheets's of this world, when our terms of office are up, then we've been successful.

"Certainly, I think my eight years as mayor were reasonably successful and I think Joe a lot of it goes to you and many others like you in the city, whether serving on unpaid boards or serving in paid capacities. Congratulations to you on a job well done."

McConville introduced his family, including his wife, the former Barbara Donahue, and thanked them for their love and support. He and Barbara, who will celebrate their 40th wedding anniversary in June, have five children.

They are:

Joseph McConville III of Attleboro, vice president of Holsom Burns frame manufacturers; Army Major James McConville on duty in Hawaii; John McConville of Quincy, a Navy engineer; Paul McConville of Arlington Heights, Ill. a vice president of Putnum Funds and Mary Kate Falkenstrom of Bellingham, a registered nurse who was a recent recipient of a Nurse of the Year Award.

Joe and Barbara also have six grandchildren. Several of Joe's brothers and sisters, as well as a son and daughter-in-law, also shared in the special day.

McConville, who was personnel manager at Boston Gear Works for nearly 50 years, recently retired.

He graduated from North Quincy High School in 1947 and from Northeastern University in 1961. He served in the U.S. Navy during the Korean War.

AMONG THOSE ON hand to honor Joseph F. McConville, Jr. (center) as The Quincy Sun Citizen of the Year were, from left, Tom Galvin, vice president of Boston Gear-Incom International where McConville was long-time personnel manager; Deanna Gazarian, vice president of the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association, and School Supt. Eugene Creedon who were members of the selection panel; Sister Barbara Higgins and Fr. James Curtin, pastor, of Our Lady of Good Counsel Church; and former City Councillor Charles Phelan.

REAL ESTATE MARKET

When Is The Best Time To Close On A House?

The settlement of a home sale often is scheduled at the end of the month. Many buyers insist on this target, because they feel they are saving money by cutting back the number of ownership days for which they must make interest payments on their mortgage financing.

The South Shore Association of Realtors, however, reminds buyers that whether a closing occurs at the first, middle or end of the month has no bearing on the amount of interest owed. Generally, a lender collects interest, starting with closing, for as long as the buyer has a mortgage on the home.

"As the month's end draws near, the workload builds for real estate professionals and mortgage lenders as all parties are under pressure by home buyers trying to close on time," said Mary E. Dawson, president of the association.

"The money saved by closing at the end of the month are funds included in the prepaids, part of the expenses paid up front by the buyer at settlement. Except in states where regulations prohibit the practice, prepaids include interest that accrues on the mortgage from the closing day to the first day of the next month," she added.

Mortgage interest is always collected in arrears to cover the previous month's ownership. The first monthly mortgage payment made after closing applies to the first full month of ownership that comes between the settlement date and the date the first payment is due.

For example, if a closing occurs on Jan. 31, the borrower pays prepaid interest for one day's ownership in that month. If loan payments are collected once a month, the first mortgage payment likely will be due March 1.

However, if the borrower's closing is on Feb. 1, he will pay prepaid interest for 29 days of ownership for that month. But his first mortgage payment is not then due until April 1. During virtually the same amount of time—from Jan. 31 to April 1 or from Feb. 1 to April 1—the borrower pays close to the same amount of money.

"Some home buyers who find themselves short on cash needed to cover all closing costs might prefer an end-of-the-month settlement because they lack the money needed to make a prepaid interest payment for all or most of one month's occupancy," said Dawson. "In such cases, it might be more convenient financially for a buyer to pay a small amount of prepaid interest by closing at the end of the month, and then start making mortgage payments sooner."

According to Dawson, the only buyers who may actually save money by closing at the end of the month are renters, not homeowners.

"Renters who miss closing at the end of the month could be forced to pay another month's rent as well as the prepaid interest for one month's worth of ownership," she said. "But people who are moving from a home they own into another they have purchased do not save money on interest costs by closing late in the month."

The South Shore Association of Realtors is one of nearly 1,800 local boards and associations that comprise the National Association of Realtors. As "The Voice for Real Estate," NAR is the nation's largest trade association, representing nearly 750,000 members involved in all aspects of the real estate industry.

Watershed Assn. Meeting

The Fore River Watershed Association will meet Wednesday, March 27 from 7 to 8:30 p.m. at the USS Salem/U.S. Naval and Shipbuilding Museum at the Fore River shipyard.

The meeting is open to the public.

The group, which includes citizens from Quincy, Braintree and Weymouth, will discuss future activities and events designed to raise awareness of and protect the Fore River and its tributaries. A short slide show on local natural resources will also be on the agenda.

Based on input from citizens who attended the February meeting, the group will focus on three specific areas: environmental monitoring, including water quality monitoring and shoreline watches; education and outreach, including raising awareness of local natural resources and wildlife; and monitoring local and state government activities. Future activities will include working with boaters, fishermen and shellfishers; improving access, partnering with businesses, other citizen organizations and government and fund-raising.

The Watershed Association is an outgrowth of the Fore River MiniBays Project, a cooperative effort between Quincy, Braintree and Weymouth funded by the Massachusetts Bays Program. Town planners for the three communities are working in collaboration with Tellus Institute, a non-profit environmental management organization, to improve water quality and related resources in the river. The project goals are to restore swimming and shellfishing to the Fore River on an unrestricted basis.

QCBPA Concerned About Proposed Law Amendment

Shaw's store should have to be brought before some Quincy board, whether it be the Planning Board or the City Council.

"The city needs leverage in this matter," he said. "It's a flaw in our zoning ordinances that must be addressed."

Raymond said the fact that nearly 200 area residents attended a recent community meeting he held on the Shaw's plan is proof enough that there are public concerns about such projects.

Following the Planning Board and City Council public hearings, the board will make a non-binding recommendation to the council on Raymond's proposal before the council takes a final vote on the matter.

Concourse Forum Today

The Citizens Advisory Committee (CAC) for the Quincy Center Concourse will meet Thursday, March 28 at 3:15 p.m. in the City Hall Annex second floor conference room.

Chairman David Erickson said the agenda will include a public forum at which any Quincy resident can present views or recommendations concerning the proposed roadway linking Burgin Parkway and Hancock Street, the so-called west phase and Hancock Street and Mechanic Street, the east phase.

The nine member CAC will be conducting regular meetings and working sessions to consider reports and designs prior to the actual construction of the $5.6 million project which officials say, will alleviate traffic congestion in the downtown business district and make business establishments more accessible.

State Treasury Seeks To Return $85 Million in Unclaimed Property

State Treasurer Joe Malone announces that the Treasurer's Office has compiled a list of individuals and organizations who have money waiting for them under the Commonwealth's abandoned property law.

The list was published in the form of a free-standing insert in the Boston Sunday Herald on Feb. 25 and in the Boston Sunday Globe March 3, and will also appear in daily and weekly newspapers throughout the state during the week of March 25 through April 1. The local list will appear in The Quincy Sun April 4.

"This year, over $85 million has been turned over to my office as unclaimed property," Malone said. "I urge every citizen to check the abandoned property listing because we are eager to return all of this money to its rightful owners."

Under Massachusetts' abandoned property law, accounts which have been inactive for more than three years are declared abandoned and turned over to the Treasurer's Office for safekeeping. Unclaimed property consists of any financial asset that has not had owner-generated activity for an extended period of time. This includes savings and checking accounts, unpaid wages or commissions, stocks, underlying shares, uncashed dividends, customer deposits or overpayments, certificates of deposit, credit balances, refunds, money orders, paid-up life insurance policies and uncashed benefit checks.

In accordance with Massachusetts' Unclaimed Property Act, property becomes "unclaimed" when there is no owner generated activity on a financial asset for a three-year period, 15 years in the case of travelers checks. Under the law, the "holders" (banks, insurance companies, businesses, etc.) must make a determined effort to locate the true owner. If they are unsuccessful, they are to report the names and last known addresses of the owners to the Treasurer's Office, where additional efforts are made to locate the owners. The money is then deposited in the General Fund.

There is not time limit on claiming abandoned property. Owners and their heirs need not pay a finder's fee to anyone to claim what rightfully belongs to them. All funds accrue interest until claimed.

Anyone who sees their name on the unclaimed property list may call the Treasurer's Office at 367-0400, Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., or write to: State Treasury, Unclaimed Property Division, One Ashburton Place, 12th Floor, Boston, MA 02108. When writing or calling, respondents should give their name as it appears on the list, plus current address and address three years ago, social security number, and daytime phone number.

11 Players Returning For Coach Bob Keuther Veteran Experience, Depth Keys For Quincy Softball

By CHRISTIAN POTTS

You will pardon Quincy High School softball coach Bob Keuther if he seems a bit giddy. He's a bit excited, mainly because he has 11 players returning from last year's softball squad.

"I'm really excited for this season," said Keuther, now in his second year. "We have six seniors starting this year and 11 players with varsity experience. That makes it easier to coach because I have to do less teaching; these players already know what it takes to compete at this level."

Last year's squad finished 7-13, fifth place in the Old Colony League. According to Keuther, that record is misleading. "We were actually close to turning the corner in the middle of the season, but we lost a close one to Barnstable, and we never really seemed to bounce back."

The team should be much more flexible this season, mostly because they are older and wiser. Their strength this spring should be their defense, which is no surprise considering their veteran depth.

"We'll win ball games with our defense. They'll keep us in games and make it easier on our hitters. When you have a veteran club, they tend to make fewer mistakes in the field because they are experienced," observed the coach.

Keuther will also be counting on his pitchers to give him quality innings. "We're not a power-hitting team or a team that will score a lot of runs, so our pitching and defense will have to keep us in ball games."

Defensively, Quincy boasts an all-senior infield of four-year starters Katie Gallagher (shortstop) and Kerry Connolly (third base) and the senior trio of Tony Kabillian (first base), Heather Wakelyn (second base) and Mary Kelly (catcher). Throw in an outfield of OCL all-star sophomore Alicia Ford (right field), junior Kristin Sheehan (center) and senior Kelly Howard (left), and you have a solid fielding core.

"We're not emphasizing winning this season—it's more about developing the younger players and concentrating on the fundamentals. We're just going to play our game, and if we do that, the wins will come by themselves," finished Keuther.

Coach Carolyn Parsley To Field Seven New Starters North Quincy Young But Fundementally Sound

Despite the fact that the North Quincy High School Red Raider softball team has only two players from last year returning, head coach Carolyn Parsley is not overly concerned.

"We are young, but this is one of the more fundamentally solid teams I've probably ever had," said Parsley, now in her fourth year coaching at NQHS. "These kids know how to play, which means I can do less teaching and more coaching."

Thus far, practices have been going quite well, according to Parsley. "I was a bit concerned about the low numbers we had [for tryouts], but these kids have been very good and tryouts have gone very well," said the coach.

The low numbers means that the varsity squad will carry probably only 12 players, but in softball, a coach can get by with such a low number. "We don't play any double-headers, which means our pitchers can pitch back-to-back games on different days, and players don't tire out so much when they have single games," observed Parsley.

Unfortunately, however, that makes a coach fear the "intangibles" of a team sport a bit more. "Players can get hurt, get sick, miss school, have appointments—the things you can't prepare for. They can drive a coach nuts," laughed Carolyn.

Still, the coach is excited about her team's prospects. Junior Kerry Ginty returns from last season, and will assume the catching duties for the freshman-sophomore pitching duo of Kerry Skein and Kristy Deputula. "I think Kerry will have to be the leader for this team, and she is showing me she can. The players look to her to be vocal and show them what it takes to play at this level."

North Quincy's middle infielders, junior Kristin Keohane (shortstop) and sophomore Laurie Flynn (second base) are both steady fielders, and Parsley is excited about the potential the freshman outfield duo of Rachel Powers and Kristin Bowes.

"One of my goals for this season is make sure these kids learn all season long, so that they are prepared for the future. They will get playing time and major exposure to the varsity level."

"It's a tough year to read; I really can't say what we will do because it's almost a totally new team, and they are young players. I'm excited to start the season and find out what we can do," said Parsley.

The Squirt House championship final came down to the No. 1 and No. 2-seeded teams, Green Environmental and Burgin Platner. And in a mini-upset, it was Burgin over Green 7-4 in the final game.

Brendan Conley led all scorers with four points (hat trick and an assist) for Burgin, with teammate Mark DeCoste adding a pair of goals in the win. Gene Nazzaro contributed a pair of assists in the win, with John Mateu and Andrew McAllister notching one assist each.

Barry's Deli Tops Harold Club In Championship

The Quincy Youth Hockey Association Mite House championship final on March 23 pitted Barry's Deli against the Paul Harold Club. After playing scoreless hockey for the first two periods of the championship final, the teams exploded for a combined six goals.

The Harold Club drew first blood, getting one goal each from Joey Canavan and Noah Gimlewicz to take a 2-0 advantage. Dom McDougall, Glenn Peterson and Jon Griffith all had assists for the Harold Club.

Barry's Deli then exploded for four goals in the next 2 1/2 minutes to take a 4-2 lead that proved to be the winning margin. Jim Callahan started the four-goal barrage, and was quickly followed by Mike Calley, John Clark and Andrew Donovan. Assists went to Ian McRae, Joe Sweeney and Donovan.

The semi-final playoff action on March 21 featured overtime in the every game-and lots of it.

In the first game on March 22, Barry's Deli and Lydon Russell needed a shoot-out in overtime after fighting to a 2-2 tie in regulation. Barry's triumphed in the extra session, with Brian Carney scoring the game-winner in the shoot-out. Teammates James Callahan and Ian McRae accounted for Barry's other two goals, with Mike Calley assisting.

Lydon Russell was led by Mike Gibbons and Kyle Tobin, who each scored once and had an assist. Jeremiah Foley also contributed an assist in the close loss.

The second game of the day also went to an extra-period shoot-out, with the Paul Harold Club triumphing 3-2 over Samoset Pharmacy. Harold Club's Jacob McQuinn scored the game-winner in the shoot-out and after scoring once in regulation. Teammate Joe Canavan also scored for the Harold Club.

Samoset got solo tallies from Matt Quigley and Jessica Harrington in the loss, with Eddie Laura and Mike MacPherson notching assists.

Mite A's Reach Cape Cod Tourney Semi-Finals

The Quincy Youth Hockey Mite A's, sponsored by Northland Seafood, advanced to the semi-finals of the American Legion Tournament at Gallo Ice Arena in Bourne March 22-24.

The Mite A's, who were coming off a two-week layoff, played three games in 24 hours, winning two and losing a tough 4-3 semi-final to Revere.

Quincy opened the tournament with a game against Greater Boston League rival Belmont on March 22. Alex Shaeffer scored the only goal of the game off assists by Matt Haskins and Billy Jones. Goalie Pat Maloney was outstanding between the pipes for Quincy, registering a shutout. Paul Lennon and Jonathan O'Connor made life miserable for the Belmont goalie, pounding the opposing net with shots.

The Mites found themselves back on the ice at 6:30 a.m. on the next day for a long-distance matchup with the New Jersey Mavericks. Once again it was Alex Shaeffer opening the scoring, converting a Dave Oronte pass for a goal. Matt Haskins struck next for Quincy, taking a Kevin Richardson feed and beating the Jersey goalie.

Richardson scored one of his own for the Mites' final goal, with Haskins assisting. Pat Maloney registered his second straight shutout in goal, and forwards Dave Reggiannini and Mike McKeon kept the Jersey defense back on their heels all game while defensemen Andy Patten and Myles Clancy kept the Jersey offense at bay.

The Mites returned to the ice not 12 hours later for a semi-final showdown with Revere. The packed house at Gallo was treated to an exciting showdown that wasn't decided until the final minute of the game.

Revere struck first, scoring twice in the first period for a 2-0 lead. Quincy responded in the second period, tying the game on a pair of goals by Richardson, with Andy Patten and Mark Lewis assisting. Revere would score once more in the period, however, and held a 3-2 lead heading into the final frame.

Quincy would re-tie the game, however, on another goal by Richardson (his fourth goal in three games) to knot the contest at 3-3. Maloney was spectacular in net, making several key saves to keep his team in the game. But with less than a minute to go, Revere scored the winning tally to make the final score 4-3.

The Mite A's would like to thank coaches Kevin Lewis and Rick Patten for all their hard work all season long. The team would also like to thank team manager Tom Maloney, who was the glue that kept the Northland Mite A's road show moving along smoothly.

A Thought For The Week

Easter is a time for rejoicing; one of the most joyous days of the year. It symbolizes the reawakening of life that is universally associated with springtime... the season of robins' singing... meadows turning green... of life renewed. It is the happy time of people's faith.

Easter commemorates the resurrection of Jesus Christ but, surprisingly, the theme of Easter is older than Christianity itself. Among the most ancient civilizations, rituals and rebirth were very common... Sunrise services date back to the medieval custom of praying while the sun rises. The present-day parades that mark the day had their beginning in the original Easter walk of Europe, when devout men and women congregated and walked in an orderly manner reciting prayers and singing. And one of the most charming of all customs is the Easter egg hunt for children-renewing the custom far older than Christianity. In pre-Christian time, the egg was the symbol of spring. In the Christian era the egg became a symbol of the rock tomb out of which Christ emerged in His resurrection. Thus, Easter is a symbol of Christianity, just as it is a symbol of the faith and hope of mankind.

Easter combines a rich mixture of laughter and solemnity. Both are good; both are needed by the soul of man...

Name Plates Available For Hospital Auxiliary Plaque

Quincy residents can remember a loved one or honor a friend by putting their names on the Quincy Hospital Auxiliary plaque in the Hunting Hall of Founders at the hospital.

Name plates cost $75 each and become a permanent part of the Auxiliary plaque.

The Hunting Hall of Founders recognizes the contributions of the many individuals, businesses and organizations who have provided financial support to Quincy Hospital over the years. It is named for Dr. Nathaniel S. Hunting, a member of the medical staff of Quincy Hospital from its inception in 1890. Dr. Hunting became the first Chief of Staff when the City of Quincy assumed responsibility for the hospital in 1919.

The $75 contribution for the name plate helps support the Auxiliary, which raises funds for equipment and services to benefit patient care at the hospital.

To place an order, call Esther Grossman at 773-2866.

YMCA Seeking Volunteers

The South Shore YMCA in Quincy is seeking volunteers to train disabled individuals who need assistance with their fitness programs.

The Partnership Program matches a training partner with a disabled individual who is interested in participating in an organized exercise program at the Y.

Since 1992, the YMCA's Partnership Program has served more than 50 participants with such disabilities as multiple sclerosis, polio, blindness, deafness, brain injury and mental retardation.

Volunteer training partners will receive full training at the Y on strength and cardiovascular equipment that can help people with disabilities. Partners do not need to Y members to participate; however, a background in health science or fitness is helpful.

BATTERY CHECK

To assess the need to replace a car battery, the battery should be changed before any testing is done. Before that, however, it is necessary to check the built-in indicator of a maintenance-free battery or perform a hydrometer test on a regular battery to make certain the battery has no short circuits. If it does, the battery must be replaced. If the battery has no shorted cells, it can be hooked up to a battery charger. If the battery accepts a charge, it must then be determined how well it holds the charge by connecting a carbon-pile load tester across the battery terminals. Simulating a heavy load on the battery, this device can be adjusted to draw three times the battery's ampere-hour rating for 15 seconds. If the battery voltage drops below 9.5 volts during this test, the battery is almost certainly worn out hunt, a man in Guyana who saw the show recognized Diaz and contacted authorities the following day, and Guyanese officials arrested Diaz at the request of authorities in Massachusetts.

Delahunt, who had hoped Diaz would be brought back to the Bay State sometime this week after an appearance before a federal judge in Miami to face a charge of unlawful flight to avoid prosecution, said he looks forward to his eventual return to Massachusetts.

"If we're successful in prosecuting this (murder) charge, the defendant will receive a mandatory life sentence without the possibility of parole," Delahunt said.

Diaz is accused of killing Brown with a single gunshot to the head in front of her family home in North Quincy. A former Osterville resident, he is the ex-boyfriend of her younger sister, Kimberlee.

Authorities have said Diaz was apparently planning to murder Kimberlee after she broke up with him but mistook Dawn, who looks like her, for his intended target in the dark night.

Officials now say Diaz evaded authorities after the murder by traveling the globe under the name of a toddler killed in an accident 24 years ago. He apparently got the child's name, birthplace and other identifying information from an obituary published in the Cape Cod Standard Times Dec. 22, 1971.

Officials said Diaz took the identity of the toddler, Gregory Scott Grayson, shortly before the murder.

Diaz drove to John F. Kennedy Airport in New York City after the shooting and boarded a plane to Los Angeles under Grayson's name, according to officials.

Before he left, Diaz used his credit cards to their limit to obtain cash and clothing. Officials said there were reports of Diaz being seen in Tokyo, Singapore, Sri Lanka, Hong Kong, Malaysia, and the Maldives Island, all under the assumed name.

Diaz apparently managed to elude authorities eight days after the murder at Heathrow International Airport in London, England. Officials said they believe Diaz got a passport by obtaining a copy of Grayson's birth certificate a few months before Dawn Brown was killed.

Delahunt said Diaz has lived in Guyana since November 1993 where he married a woman who did not know his true identity and secured employment at an advertising business. Delahunt also praised the Quincy Police Department for aiding his office and the State Police during the last two-and-a-half years.

"The work of the Quincy Police was simply outstanding," he said. "This has been a very long and arduous investigation."

Earlier this week, Brown's sister, Gigi Suozzo, said family members expressed relief following word of Diaz' arrest.

"It feels like a celebration, some form of renewal," she said. "Of course, you can't anticipate what the next step will be, but it's a good feeling. It's a very gratifying feeling that he's not going to hurt anyone anymore."

Suozzo also expressed thanks to State Police Sgts. Joseph Flaherty and Kevin Shea, who have been on the case since the murder first took place and were among those sent to bring Diaz back to the United States.

"Those guys are the best," she said.

Resolution Passes Unanimously

Council Supports Shipyard Proposal

By MICHAEL WHALEN

A proposal to reopen the Fore River shipyard has received the support of the City Council.

The council unanimously passed a resolution Monday night supporting the plan by Greek shipbuilder Sotirios Emmanouil to revitalize the shipyard.

The vote followed an appearance before the council by Emmanouil, who spoke briefly about his proposal to bring shipbuilding back to the yard. The council has sent the resolution to Mayor James Sheets, an Emmanouil supporter, for his signature.

The resolution had been introduced by Ward 2 Councillor Daniel Raymondi at the council's March 18 meeting but was blocked by Councillor Paul Harold when he objected to it. Harold said he did not not want to vote on the matter until Emmanouil--president of Swampscott-based Mass Heavy Industries--made a formal presentation to the council.

Emmanouil, who had missed a previous opportunity to speak before the council at Harold's request, apologized for doing so and said he could not attend the earlier council meeting because he had to meet with officials from the U.S. Maritime Administration (MARAD) in Washington, D.C. The shipbuilder is trying to secure about $230 million in federal loan guarantees from MARAD, and the success of his plan depends on those monies.

The Massachusetts Water Resources Authority already has agreed to sell the shipyard to Emmanouil for $10 million, although that deal requires approval from the state Legislature.

Emmanouil said the reason his proposal to reopen the shipyard has been accepted by MARAD is because of his financial strength and his background in shipbuilding. He noted that such a combination was not found in others who earlier proposed revitalization of the yard.

Hearing Set On Proposed Hospital Merger

By MICHAEL WHALEN

The City Council will hold a public hearing Monday, April 22 at 6 p.m. to discuss a proposed home-rule petition authorizing an affiliation between Quincy Hospital and Carney Hospital in Dorchester.

The hearing on the petition, which got a mixed reaction from the council Monday night, will be held in the City Council Chambers at City Hall.

Under the proposed legislation, which was unveiled Monday by Mayor James Sheets, Quincy Hospital Director Ralph DiPisa and other city officials, Quincy Hospital would remain a public facility and its employees would keep its collective bargaining rights and retirement benefits. Sheets and other officials have said they want to submit it to the state Legislature by the end of this month to ensure action before the end of its session July 31.

While the legislation does not guarantee a partnership between the city-owned hospital and privately-owned Carney Hospital, a final agreement cannot be reached without it, according to DiPisa, who spoke briefly before the council Monday night. The two hospitals have been negotiating for months, and officials hope to close the deal by Oct. 1, he added.

Councillor Paul Harold, chairman of the council's Public Health and Hospital Committee, voiced support of the proposal.

"This [affiliation with Carney] is the best strategy for Quincy Hospital," he said. "It will help it remain a public hospital."

Two other councillors, however, said they have reservations about acting too quickly on a proposal of such importance. Ward 2 Councillor Daniel Raymondi and Councillor Michael Cheney both said they want assurances Quincy Hospital employees will be protected, while the latter wondered if any other course of action is possible.

"It's a very large decision, and we're being told it's the only option," said Cheney. "But what if it fails? What I want to know is, what are my options?"

"I'm not prepared to rush through anything," he added.

Raymondi said it is crucial that the Quincy Hospital employees be protected.

"I have similar concerns," he said. "My major concern is that the public employees of Quincy Hospital don't lose any rights or benefits they have worked so hard for."

Councillor President Peter Kolson, who joined Sheets, Harold and others in announcing the home-rule petition Monday, said he understands his colleagues' concerns but after reviewing the situation has come to the conclusion that the proposed legislation is the best avenue to take.

"The options seem to be in this direction," he said.

The council agreed to hold the Street Sweeping Begins April 8

Street sweeping has begun on main and secondary arteries in Quincy and will take place on residential streets April 8 through June 3.

The sweeping schedule outlines what ward and precinct the sweeper will be in each day so residents may assist the DPW with the spring cleanup. The following is a list of recommendations.

•Do not rake leaves into the gutter line. The city will begin collecting leaves curbside for composting

April 15 and continue to pick up for four weeks. Leaves should be bagged in clear plastic bags. Those who should do not have such bags should leave the tops off containers holding leaves.

•Residents should not park cars in front of their residences on the sweeping day in their precinct. The city will not go back and sweep because of parked cars.

•Sand should be swept off sidewalks into gutter lines—not in piles—before the sweepers are scheduled in a precinct.

•The DPW will try to adhere to the sweeping schedule, but weather, quantity of sand and break-downs may affect scheduling. Beginning April 8, WJDA (1300 AM) will provide daily updates on the schedule.

•Those with questions as to what ward or precinct they resident in should call the city clerk's office at 376-1142 weekdays between 8:30 a.m. and 4:30 p.m.

Sheets: Homeless Shelter, Affordable Housing Not Options At Squantum Site

Mayor James Sheets said this week he is not considering affordable housing or shelter for the homeless as potential uses for the soon-to-be-vacant Squantum Gardens and Naval Terrace in Squantum.

Sheets said Tuesday the city is still waiting for the Navy to declare the site "surplus land." The city will then advertise for proposals for possible site uses.

The mayor added, however, that the city will be very specific in the kinds of proposals it is seeking. Sheets said he does not want to use the 104 Naval units at the site, which are now 60 percent vacant and should be completely empty by September as a result of the closing of the South Weymouth Naval Air Station, for any kind of subsidized housing that would require federal or state support.

Sheets said after the site is declared surplus land, the city will solicit proposals for a period of 90 days. Those that do not meet the requirements of the proposal will be dismissed, while those that remain will be sent to a subcommittee comprised of state Sen. Michael Morrissey, Rep. Michael Bellotti and other officials that was formed to address the issue.

The subcommittee would make a recommendation to Sheets about what proposal(s) it thinks best, although the ultimate decision will be the mayor's. Sheets will then send a recommendation of his own to the City Council, which would hold a public hearing before taking a formal vote on the plan.

Finally, the Navy would have to approve any plan submitted by the city.

Sheets noted that the city will submit its own proposal to be considered by the subcommittee. The mayor noted that he, Planning Director Richard Meade and others are working on a plan for moderate-income senior housing at the site which should be completed within 45 days.

He added, however, that whatever plan is finally approved will probably incorporate ideas from two or more proposals.

Sheets also noted that after the 90-day search for requests, a workshop on homelessness must be held. However, that is only because such an event is required by federal law.

The city already has sent a request for proposals to hire a consultant to assist in the matter, according to Sheets. Hiring someone with such expertise will likely cost between $20,000 and $25,000, he said.

WINNERS OF THE city's National Community Development Poster Contest and Art Exhibit were honored Monday at City Hall. First, second and third prize winners in the elementary, middle and high school levels received savings bonds for their efforts and the overall winner also won a $50 cash prize. Students, front row from left, Lucy Lou, Grade 4, Squantum School; Jennifer Gordon, Grade 4, Merrymount; David Vo, Grade 4, Beechwood Knoll; Mary Ng, Grade 6, Atlantic and Jenny Lo, Grade 6, Atlantic. NQHS After-Prom Party Set For May 3

North Quincy High School will hold its first annual After-Prom Party Friday, May 3 from 11:30 p.m. to 5 a.m. at the National Fire Protection Agency, Batterymarch Park, West Quincy.

The event is being organized by Senior Stay Out '96, a subcommittee of the NQHS Parents' Advisory Council. It is being offered as a non-alcoholic, drug-free way for students to spend time after their senior prom at the Sheraton-Boston Hotel, although all NQHS seniors, not just those attending the prom, are welcome.

Subcommittee members Beth Stevens and Arthur Linehan said there will be a number of special events of interest to NQHS seniors.

"This would be a much better way for them to spend their time," said Linehan.

"We want to give the kids something positive, a positive type of situation," added Stevens.

Highlights of the event will include food, karioke, air volleyball, a palm reader, sumo wrestling, a live band, caricatures, and more.

Stevens and Linehan said among those who have supported the event in one way or another are the School Committee, NQHS teacher Thomas Bourque, Bob Edgar of the Quincy DARE Program, and members of the Quincy Police Athletic League (PAL).

In addition, eight police officers will volunteer their time to chaperone the event.

Donations of money, food and gift certificates are still needed from area residents and businesses. Checks should be mailed to North Quincy High School, Senior Stay Out '96, 318 Hancock St., Quincy, MA 02171.

ANSWERS TO ANGINA

The scene has been played out in countless comedy routines, with an actor clutching his or her chest and moaning about "angina" in response to some rude remark. There's nothing funny, however, about real angina, which is sometimes spread to other parts of the body. Angina is caused by a shortage of oxygen and other nutrients to the heart. The condition may be triggered by exercise, stress, exposure to cold, or eating a large meal. It can also come on during sleep. The important thing to know is that angina tends to be a progressive disorder, often a precursor of a heart attack. The pain itself is not dangerous, but it should be a wake-up call to consult a doctor.

P.S. Angina may be controlled by lifestyle changes, medication, or in some cases, surgery.

If you are experiencing chest pain, now is the time to contact your doctor. At COMPREHENSIVE MEDICAL CARE, located at 700 Congress St., in Quincy, we specialize in treating heart problems, hypertension and cholesterol. Whatever your medical needs, we treat you with professionalism and respect, offering you the latest in medical expertise. I am also board certified in cardiology and internal medicine. Call 472-2550; office hours by appointment. I am affiliated with Quincy Hospital and South Shore Hospitals. Happy Easter!

City Clerk Joseph Shea expects to see a healthy crop of new voters this election year.

"I think we will pick up some 3,000 new voters between now and the October deadline for registering to vote in the Presidential election," he says.

That would boost the total registration up to around 49,500.

Latest official count shows 46,486 voters with Democrats still outnumbering Republicans and unenrolled (independents) combined.

The breakdown: Democrats, 26,884. Republicans, 6,729. Unenrolled, 12,818.

But if 3,000 new faces do show to register and brings the total to that 49,500 mark, it won't be a record.

Largest number of registered voters in Quincy was in 1960. And you can probably guess why. That was the year John F. Kennedy was elected president and many months before the election, his workers were registering voters all over the state and here in Quincy.

Meanwhile, Shea is still hopeful he will have a new voting system in place for the state and Presidential elections.

The punch-card system has been used here since 1986 and took Quincy out of the paper ballot voting and hand-counting dark ages.

But there is something new, better and faster called "optical scan voting" in which the voter links the names of the candidate and office by pen and is already used in some 85 Massachusetts communities including Braintree and Hingham.

"It's state of the art equipment," says Shea. "It speeds up the voting, the counting and is more accurate. And there is far less chance of anything going wrong."

And if anything should go wrong, there is backup equipment and a technician on site.

Estimated cost for the new system is between $160,000 and $167,000.

Shea has asked Mayor James Sheets to send an appropriation order to the City Council.

"It will pay for itself within three years by cutting election costs," says Shea.

He points to Springfield which has 64 voting precincts—twice as many as Quincy's 30. In a recent election using the optical scan system, polls closed at the customary 8 p.m. and the count was completed so quickly everyone was out of City Hall by 9:02.

Shea says he would have to have the new equipment delivered by May to give him time to train election workers for the September state primary and the Presidential election in November.

"It would be well worth the investment," he says.

MARIANO

Steve Tobin is with Thomas Finneran of Mattapan who appears to be the winner while Michael Bellotti and Ron Mariano have lined up with Majority Leader Richard Voke of Charlestown.

Although Voke reportedly has 82 votes—one more than needed to take possession of the gavel—Bellotti says "it isn't over yet."

He notes that Finneran has 50 Democrats and 32 Republicans in his camp while Voke has 70 Democrats.

"That's a weak coalition for Finneran," says Bellotti. "If he wins, he will be indebted to the Republican party. Voke hasn't sought Republican votes and wants to win on Democrats votes and keep Democrat control of the House."

Bellotti says the 70 Democrats with Voke gives him a majority of the Democrats. And the 70 will try to woo some of Finneran's 50 Democrats "back to where they belong."

THE NEW QUINCY Tourism and Visitors Bureau has a telephone number that is appropriate and should be easy to remember.

It's toll free 1-888-ADAMSES. That's Adamses like in Presidents John and John Quincy Adams. You won't get them but you will get Jo-An Thomas, the city's new tourism consultant.

THINKING OUT LOUD: That tragedy on Interstate 495 in Wareham the other day in which a plane crashed onto a car taking four lives makes me wonder. Maybe I'm stupid but why do they allow single-engine planes? Well, someone might say, cars have single engines and there are a lot more of them. But there is a difference. The cars are on the ground, the planes are in the air. And when a single engine plane comes down with engine failure, it could land anywhere and on top of anything.

Students will not only interact with health agency representatives, but also attend a performance of Pilgrim Health Care's "Fit Kids" (scheduled at 9:15, 10:15 and 11:15 a.m.).

Preschool-Day Care Program 'A Wise Investment' In Future

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

On Thursday, March 21, The Quincy Sun printed a letter from one of its readers, Sal Giarratani, in which he seized upon the term "bilingual education" in a misguided attempt to discredit the Quincy Public Schools' new Wollaston Preschool and Extended Day Care Program, an integral component of the new Community Partnerships for Children (CPC) program funded by the Massachusetts Department of Education, Quincy Community Action Head Start is the agency for the CPC program.

What Mr. Giarratani fails to mention in his letter citing his view of the perils of bilingual education for preschoolers, is that the most salient aspect to all programming funded through this "cool half-million in grants" is the significant increase in access to high-quality early childhood education it affords to low-income working families throughout the community, not "merely full-day day care financed by Bay State taxpayers," as he suggests.

In total, 49 new children are to be served through this grant, while 37 children already participating in the CPC program will receive additional hours or weeks of child care services. The grant spans a two-year period, providing services to children and training to child care providers. Of the $571,428 allocated for the Quincy CPC program, Quincy Public Schools is to receive only $105,629 over two years, or $60,563 during Fiscal Year 1997.

We would like, however, to specifically address Mr. Giarratani's concerns regarding the efficacy of the curriculum of the Wollaston Preschool and Extended Day Care Program. The program, offered to 12 English as a Second Language (ESL) and six native English-speaking 4-year-olds from low-income working families, includes a three-hour educational program in the morning, and an optional extended day-care program for four hours in the afternoon to accommodate parent schedules.

The program is not a veritable "bilingual" program in the literal sense of combining instruction in two languages; all instruction in the classroom is to take place in English, with the recognized aim of encouraging the acquisition of critical English skills by ESL children. To this end, however, a Cantonese-speaking Asian aide will be available for the translation needs of both children and parents, fostering the important link between the home culture and school. The aim is to facilitate the preschoolers' assimilation in a school setting where English mastery is necessary to succeed without subjugating their ties to their own culture.

While it is quite true that 3- and 4-year-olds learn from socializing with each other, a point which Mr. Giarratani aptly mentions, a classroom in which the non-dominant culture(s) represented are viewed as valuable and supported, this learning relationship is reciprocal-native English-speaking children gain an appreciation for a different culture, while their peers develop English skills. Just as Mr. Giarratani is proud of his own ethnic heritage from Sicily and West Cork, Asian or other minority children participating in the Wollaston classroom gain self-esteem from being in an environment supportive of their culture and language.

Research also shows, contrary to popular myth, that learning a second language is as difficult for a child as it is for an adult, with the exception of pronunciation skills. Certainly mastering English as quickly and as well as possible is an imperative for school success in preschool and beyond. Support offered in children's native language, however, does not undermine the process of acquiring these language skills, since cognitive skills are transferred among languages. In fact, proficiency in one's first language is directly correlated to proficiency in a second language.

Exposure to a new language such as English does not automatically mean that children will learn these skills effectively. Supportive services from the bilingual aide in the Wollaston classroom will assist children in developing second language skills more effectively than simple "sink or swim" immersion.

Finally, parent involvement, widely shown at all age levels to make a significant difference in student achievement and participation in school activities, will be facilitated with employment of a bilingual aide. Such an aide can also assist other teaching staff in understanding parent's child-rearing practices, family relationships, and interpersonal communication practices.

In short, the Wollaston Preschool and Extended Day Care Program is a wise investment in the future of Quincy children and an astute expenditure of taxpayers' hard-earned dollars.

Christmas Festival Committee Seeks Parade Theme For 1996

The Christmas Festival Committee is seeking the general public and parade participant's input in selecting this year's Christmas parade theme.

The parade theme contest began in 1982, and each year the public response has been greater and greater, making the committee's selection process of the winner increasingly more difficult. However, the members of the Christmas Festival Committee appreciate the positive public interest the contest generates and don't mind the task.

The theme winner is invited to participate in the parade and be recognized as he/she travels along the parade route. The festival committee presents the winner with a gift of appreciation at the awards ceremony immediately following the parade.

Mike McFarland, the Christmas Festival General Chairman, said responses from past years indicates the public wants to be a part of the parade. Suggested themes should bring to mind several different ideas for potential floats, eliminating any possible duplication.

Mail your entries to Mrs. Frances Flynn, 79 Freeman St., Quincy, MA 02170 no later than Friday, April 12.

The Christmas Festival Committee will select the winning theme Wednesday, April 17.

New Regulations For Rental Halls

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO

The Quincy License Board at Tuesday's meeting voted to accept new regulations regarding function halls adopted by Police Chief Francis Mullen.

The new regulations are as follows:

At all function halls (hall for rent) in the city of Quincy, floor persons will be required to be on duty at all rentals to outside parties.

This does not include "members only" functions, but is a monitor to control excessive drinking, minors obtaining or attempting to obtain alcohol, clearing tables of excess bottles, cans or glasses, and in general controlling the area outside of the bar/bartenders control.

Parties with under 25 people will be excluded from this regulation and parties of over 125 people will be required to have two floor people on duty during the duration of the function.

If there is a question as to a waiver of this regulation for a particular function, the chairman of the board is to be contacted for an opinion, otherwise this regulation is to remain in effect.

A maitre d', club/function manager or cocktail waitress (not a waitress that is in the employ of the caterer) may be considered floor people if they are actively on the floor from the start of the alcohol service until the end of the function.

Mullen said the regulation will "extend control over premises, benefiting everyone. He said it also can "curtail a tragedy" with the drinking by "kids".

Calling it a "difficult time", Mullen praised the people in Quincy who hold licenses as "responsible individuals" and said the regulation will "help them greatly."

Quincy Receives $231,500 To Hire Civilian Police

Congressman Gerry Studds announces Quincy will receive a $231,563 federal matching grant to hire civilian police employees.

Abington, Cohasset and Hingham will receive a total of $102,123 to pay for overtime and equipment.

The federal funds will enable the police to re-deploy the equivalent of 23 full-time officers for community policing. The grants are among 26 awarded statewide, totaling $2,374,000, as part of the fifth round of funding under the COPS MORE program (Making Officer Redeployment Effective).

Three dozen communities in the 10th Congressional District have now received a combined total of more than $5 million in federal funding to hire the equivalent of 110 full-time officers since the President launched the COPS initiative. Several other towns on the South Shore have also applied for grants under COPS MORE and other COPS programs, and they remain eligible for future awards.

Internet, World Wide Web Demonstration At Library

Cahill Formally Announces County Treasurer Candidacy

City Councillor Timothy Cahill officially announced his candidacy for the office of Norfolk County treasurer before supporters, family and friends last night (Wednesday) at The Common Market in West Quincy.

In his announcement speech, Cahill cited his political experience and understanding of how government works as an advantage in the treasurer's office.

A graduate of Boston University's College of Liberal Arts with a degree in political science, Cahill served as an intern in former Congressman Brian Donnelly's office. He was first elected to the City Council as an at-large member in 1987 and has been re-elected four times.

As a City Council member, he has served as chairman of the Finance Committee, overseeing an appropriations budget in excess of $130 million. Cahill said he has been "the driving force" in keeping Quincy's tax rate from increasing for the past two years.

Four Residents On Merrimack Dean's List

Four Quincy residents have been named to the Dean's List at Merrimack College in North Andover.

They are: Robin C. Backman, 14 Greenview St., a junior English major; Christopher J. Cunio, 56 High St., a senior biology major; Michael W. Kane, 14 Florence St., a senior philosophy major and Courtney T. Sullivan, 38 Wedgewood St., a sophomore political

"The treasurer should serve as the voice of county government, and be able to work with, rather than against, the other elected county officials to provide the services that Norfolk County deserves," he said.

Cahill said that as a small businessman with almost 15 years' experience in serving the public, he understands that county government must adapt to a changing environment. He is the founder and former owner of Handshakes Cafe and Bakery in Quincy Center and is currently a partner at North American Security and Courier.

During his speech, he noted that "the simplest task, such as getting the retirees their pension checks on the first day of the month, not the second or third day, is as important as wisely investing the employee pension fund."

Cahill, a Norwood native who grew up in Quincy, said he has been committed to the Norfolk County community for years. He served as a wrestling coach at Quincy High School from 1979 to 1984 and has been a longtime member of both the South Shore YMCA and the South Shore Chamber of Commerce.

In Quincy, he has served as a trustee of the Quincy Historical Society and a member of the Park and Recreation Board. He is also the author of "Profiles in the American Dream," a book about the history and struggles of four local entrepreneurs.

Cahill, the second oldest of nine children, is the son of Theresa (Flaherty) Cahill of Dedham and Paul Cahill of South Boston of Wollaston. He and his wife, the former Tina Falco, are the parents of four daughters.

With circulation up 50 percent this year, the Crane Public Library's video collection is clearly a hit attraction among Quincy residents. What's behind the dramatic increase? In a word, Hollywood.

After building a video collection for eight years "it was time," said Rita Seeger, acquisitions librarian and the collection's developer. "Time for feature films."

The collection began in 1988 with a gift from the MacArthur Foundation of 200 videos. These were mostly PBS programs such as NOVA, The Ascent of Man, and Jewel in the Crown. Over the next few years, many self-help and how-to selections were added. It was only after "we were satisfied with the range of the collection," said Mrs. Seeger, "that we began buying feature films."

So, in the past two years, titles like "Tootsie", "Jaws", "Driving Miss Daisy", and "Casablanca" have joined the shelves next to the documentary and literary offerings.

But they don't stay on the shelves for long.

"We can't keep them in stock. Returned videos often get only as far as the shelving cart, where people see them as they are checking out. They snap them right up," said circulation librarian Betty Hilcoat.

When not caught up in the borrowing frenzy, videos occupy the back wall opposite the main entrance. A recent browse uncovered few movies, but a tantalizing selection of other good stuff: the "Yardening Series by Jeff Ball", "Power Interviewing", the plays of Shakespeare, and "Donna White's Beginning Golf for Women."

Several tapes are available in the Chinese language; many others are closed-captioned for the deaf.

The Children's Library video collection, at 506 titles and growing, rivals the general collection in popularity: FY '95 circulation figures were 8,418 and 9,664, respectively.

Like the general collection, children's videos stand next to the checkout counter "like candy at a supermarket," smiled Alyson Howe, children's librarian.

"Almost everyone who checks out a book here also takes a video," said Julie Rines, children's coordinator in charge of selecting kid-vids. "Most of the collection is based on children's books, such as The Babysitters' Club and Wonderworks."

For the very young, musical teaching videos like the Preschool Power Series are big. "Potty training tapes are extremely popular. They're almost always on reserve," Rines said.

Older kids can choose from Bill Nye the Science Guy, Ghostwriter and the Eyewitness Series. Ms. Rines' favorite? "The Schoolhouse Rock videos. I grew up watching those silly cartoons on TV in the morning. It was 'America Rock' that taught me to sing the Preamble to the Constitution!"

The Crane Library video collections total nearly 2,000 titles. The majority of videos are either out on loan, at the branches, or in the bookmobile. That's a good thing, according to Ms. Seeger. "We're in a space bind. We want to double the collection to keep with demand, but that has to wait," she said.

"At least double it," echoed Rines, referring to the children's collection. "We should offer more non-fiction videos, but they're expensive and get less use. We have limited space, so we can't afford shelf-sitters."

The proposed expansion of the library building would make the needed space available.

Still, acquisition continues. New to the shelves are computer training videos, an A&E Pocahontas documentary, and the WGBH Mystery!, "Prime Suspect."

How does the library staff decide what to buy? "I read a lot of reviews and professional publications," said Seeger, pointing to an intimidating stack of magazines and manuals. "And I do try and fill people's requests [they are welcome at the Reader's Advisors desk]."

"For example, we just had someone ask for Aerobic Boxing. We'll probably get that," she said.

Back Taxes Bring Taxi License Suspension Threat

Treasurer Dana Childs told the Quincy License Board at Tuesday's meeting that unless Michael Condon, owner of the land occupied by Marina Bay Taxi pays his taxes, that the "license should be suspended until such taxes are paid."

The taxi cab company is located at 86 Summer St., Quincy Point.

Referring to a law that allows communities to revoke or deny anyone conducting a business on a piece of property whose taxes are delinquent, Childs said Condon owes the City of Quincy $12,506.81.

Childs said Condon promised to pay $2,500 June, 1995 and then to pay $1,000 a month until the taxes were paid.

According to Childs, Condon made the one payment of $2,500 and then a $500 payment after that and nothing since. Childs said Condon has not responded to his calls.

According to Chairman Joseph Shea, Condon, after not appearing at the last two meetings, promised to be at the meeting April 23.

After viewing some pictures showing the conditions at the site, Shea told Basel Tawfik, owner of the cab company that he can't use the back of the building. Shea said he sent a letter to Tawfik back in August, 1995 warning him of such tactics.

Tawfik appeared with his attorney Kevin Burke and came under fire from the license board and Ward 2 Councillor Dan Raymondi because of "unsightly conditions" at the site.

Board member Matt Mulvey, upon inspecting the premises with Shea said part of the land is residential and called the site a "pig pen" with "junk engines and debris from crashed vehicles."

Health Commissioner Jane Gallahue told Tawfik that the "dumpster was a mess" and added "you'll have to enclose it."

Raymondi said there was "no excuse for the dumpster to be in that condition for such a long time" and advised the license board to take "swift strong action against the company to clean up the site."

Tawfik blamed the snow storms for his neglect in keeping the place clean, and said he cleans the place as soon as the snow clears.

Mulvey responded by saying "you clean up only when someone complains about it."

Burke apologized to the board and acknowledged that conditions were not up to par. He complained about the size of the site, and how hard it is to keep the premises clean. He said Tawfik has a lease until 1999 at which time Tawfik will obtain a new location for his operation.

Mulvey accused Tawfik of "running a Milton Cab Company out of Quincy".

Persons who call the Marina Bay Taxi Co., Mulvey said "think they are calling a Quincy number" when in fact, "the cab picking them up could belong to Milton or even Braintree." He added Tawfik only has a license to operate his cab company in Quincy.

Police Chief Francis Mullen told Tawfik, "you disappointed us and let us down." "We want conditions to be brought up to par as an obligation to the neighbors."

The hearing will be continued until April 23.

Raymondi Calls For 'Site Plan Review' To Protect Neighborhoods

Ward 2 City Councillor Daniel Raymondi has introduced a proposed zoning change that would give the city more control over certain kinds of neighborhood development.

The ordinance, introduced at Monday night's City Council meeting, would create a "site plan review" process designed to protect neighborhoods from increased traffic and other problems caused by new commercial buildings and apartments.

Specifically, the site plan review would apply to new buildings or additions to existing ones larger than 5,000 square feet and apartments with 13 or more units. Single-family homes would not be affected.

The process would make it mandatory for developers to show that their project would have no adverse effect on the surrounding neighborhood and to agree to pay for any necessary street improvements. In addition, city department heads would have to review the project.

The Planning Board would have the final say on each project. It would be given the authority to request changes on anything from architecture to landscaping.

The matter was kept in the council's Ordinance

Committee.

Raymondi introduced the measure following plans by Shaw's Supermarkets to demolish its current store on Quincy Avenue, as well as the former Quinail headquarters next door, to make room for a new, larger supermarket. Under current zoning laws, Shaw's needed only to obtain a permit from the city's Building Department to get the project off the ground.

SPOTLIGHT ON BUSINESS

G.J. Coddington's Restaurant

Menu And Location A Winning Combination

By CHRISTIAN POTTS

With the warm weather on the way, there's one Quincy restaurateur who is ready to bring his business outdoors—so to speak.

George Cook, co-owner of G.J. Coddington's Restaurant in the Galleria at President's Place (1250 Hancock St.), Quincy, has plans for the impending warm weather of spring and summer.

"Starting in April, we plan on putting tables outdoors on the patio [at President's Place] for cafe-style dining," said George, who owns Coddington's with partner Joe Doherty. "We plan on offering lunch and dinner service as well as social cocktails."

And that's just one of the many features of G.J. Coddington's. A Quincy mainstay for six years, Coddington's varied distinctive menu and relaxed atmosphere have made it the place to be for the diner looking for a good meal in a laid-back place.

Cook, who also co-owns Remington's in Boston (across from the Boylston MBTA trolley station), is hardly a newcomer to the restaurant business—or Quincy, for that matter; he's been in the restaurant business for 12 years and is a former Quincy resident.

"I like this city. I think that Quincy is really working hard to develop tourism again, and the location seemed is a good fit. The MBTA station is right across the street, we're right in the downtown city square, and city hall is right across the street," said George.

Speaking of location, G.J. Coddington's spot is quite well-known. Their spot is the former home of The Bargain Center, which most Quincy-ites are quite familiar with. In fact, Coddington's menu features a photo of a very crowded Bargain Center at the height of its power. "People instantly know where we are if we mention The Bargain Center, which is a great plus for us," observed George.

The real attraction of G.J. Coddington's is its menu. "We've become known for our steak tips and burgers, which are very distinctive and, if I may say so, are the best in town," said George.

The secret behind the distinctive tips and burgers? That's one that George won't reveal. "It has a lot to do with who we buy our meat from, not to mention our marinating sauce for the steak," he said cryptically.

Nevertheless, his customers have only praise for the tips and burgers. But Coddington's has much more to offer. The appetizers range from a cheese-board-fruit, crackers, cheese and bread-to icy shrimp cocktail and baked stuffed quahogs. That doesn't even mention their soups—chili to chowder—or the "Chips & Spuds" selection of potato skins and nachos.

And, according to George, Coddington's salad selection is top-notch, with garden, spinach, seafood and Greek salads, to name a few. "Our salad selection is fantastic. The prices range from $3.75 to $5.50, and we offer fresh fruit salad in the summer with cottage cheese."

Coddington's burgers are eight-ounce cuts of lean sirloin, and customers can choose from a basic burger with lettuce and tomato, or they can design their own, with choices like garlic, mushrooms, three cheeses and barbecue sauce.

Coddington's dinner menu is as varied as their appetizer and lunch fare, with weekly and daily blackboard specials to go along with their regular entrees. And all are reasonably priced.

"Every month, we have set specials for each day. Like we would have the same special every Monday, something different every Tuesday, and so on. We also offer a prime rib dinner every Sunday and Monday after 5 p.m., and a nightly all-you-can-eat deal [up to three servings] of one entree for $7.95, plus an 'Italian Night' every Monday with Italian specials that most people usually end up taking home," said George.

And on Sundays from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m., customers can come in for "G.J.'s Brunch Bunch," an all-you-can-eat extravaganza of breakfast, lunch, sandwiches, salads and other entrees for $8.95 a person. "We used to offer a buffet-style Sunday brunch, but we found that people get better service in a sit-down setting. There used to be a group of semi-pro football players from Quincy who would come in for the buffet, and they would eat everything. So we changed the format to sit-down service and limit it to a maximum of three servings. They were eating me out of house and home," laughed George.

In addition their varied menu, Coddington's also will be offering live entertainment every two weeks on the weekends. "We'll have '50s and '60s rock and roll bands that our customers like. We usually get an older crowd, so we want to have music that is more their style. People can come in, have music with their dinners and then stick around and listen some more," said George.

For the month of April, Cook is planning on offering half-price appetizers from 2 to 4 p.m. and 10 p.m. to midnight in addition to the regular entree specials. They serve food until midnight and validate parking for the President's Place Garage.

G.J. Coddington's also serves as a meeting place for the Full Gospel Men's Fellowship International, an organization that has over 3,000 chapters in 100 countries all over the world. The meetings are held on the second Saturday of every month from 8:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m., and all-men and women alike—are welcome to attend.

Take-out is available from Coddington's full menu. The restaurant is open Monday through Saturday 11 to 1 a.m. and Sundays from 10-1 a.m. They do take credit cards, but not personal checks, and offer a 10 percent senior discount daily. G.J. Fair Housing Month A Good Time For Reflection

The celebration of Fair Housing Month in April is an excellent time to reflect on what has been done to eliminate housing discrimination and to consider what more needs to be accomplished, according to the South Shore Association of Realtors.

The association has joined with the National Association of Realtors in choosing "Fair Housing Opens Doors" as its celebration theme again this year. According to Mary Dawson, president of the South Shore Association of Realtors, the theme appropriately reflects the possibilities offered by the fair housing laws. "Equal housing opportunity does open doors. The Realtor organization firmly supports the principle of fair housing for all," she said. "We are fully committed to complying with the fair housing law. There is no room in our profession for housing discrimination."

The federal fair housing law prohibits discrimination on the basis of race, color, creed, national origin, sex, familial status and handicap.

"Many real estate brokers and sales associates are taking proactive steps to guard against housing discrimination. More and more are realizing they cannot remain 'neutral' in situations involving any party who attempts to discriminate," Dawson said. "NAR supports programs to educate the public about the right to equal housing opportunities, and to educate the real estate industry about fair housing responsibilities. The best way to avoid potentially discriminatory situations is to be fully educated about the law's requirements. Awareness is the key."

To NAR, equal access to housing is consistent with the spirit of the federal fair housing law. It is with that belief that the association continues to enter into the Voluntary Affirmative Marketing Agreement (VAMA) with the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD). HUD is charged with implementing the federal fair housing law.

The VAMA, in effect since November 11, 1975, is based on the concept of using a voluntary compliance commitment as a supplement to the fair housing law to achieve equal housing opportunity. It provides participants with guidelines on marketing, advertising, training and education, and it encourages cooperation with community-based fair housing and civil rights groups.

"The agreement permits individual realtors, local boards and state associations of realtors to publicly record their support of fair housing," Dawson explained. "Essentially, signing a VAMA makes it clear that the participants are ready to go above and beyond the law to assure equal opportunity in housing."

In 1992, the VAMA was revised to provide more practical guidelines for use and offer more flexibility in applying fair housing principles to daily business practices.

The revised VAMA has been signed by more than half the NAR's nearly 1,800 local boards and associations and all of its state associations. NAR has available a fair housing handbook to assist members in meeting the requirements of the VAMA.

"The VAMA represents a 'perfect example' of the South Shore Association of Realtors commitment to fair housing compliance," Dawson said. "To realtors, fair housing means equal access. A person's ability to rent or own should be limited only by how much he can afford."

The "Fair Housing Opens Doors" campaign is being celebrated during the entire month of April.

The South Shore Association of Realtors, with more than 800 members, is one of more than 1,800 local boards and associations that comprise the National Association of Realtors. As the nation's largest trade association, NAR is "The Voice for Real Estate," representing nearly 750,000 members involved in all aspects of the real estate industry.

Economy Better But Auctions To Continue

By DANIEL J. FLYNN III

Many forecasters predicted that real estate auctions would bottom out by the end of 1995 and be practically non-existent in 1996.

While the improving economy has certainly been the main factor in the decreased need for the auction process, there are still a good number of auctions being conducted on a daily basis. It appears that as the economy has stabilized, so has the auction industry, and it looks as though there will still be a constant number of auctions in 1996.

One reason for the decreased number of auctions is that banks and lending institutions haven't been hit with a great number of delinquent loans as compared to the late 1980s and early 1990s, and they have been a little more liberal in their workout process and particularly don't want to build up their REO portfolio. However, while loan workout is the best option, it may not necessarily be the best solution, and the need for the auction process is quite necessary to satisfy the parties involved.

We have noticed dramatic increased attendance at our auctions because the product, being real estate, has dwindled but the customer base, investors and end-users have largely remained the same and are competing for many of the same properties. Where we may have had five bidders at a site three years ago, we now have maybe eight or 10 registered bidders. The auction process created an outstanding alternative market for buying real

Easter Egg Ring

Every Easter it was traditional for my mother to make each of us an Easter egg ring. And so it is now when I try to keep up the tradition much to the joy of my family.

It is easy and can be made ahead of time. (I made a double batch Monday) but plan to bake more of them through the week. They keep well in the refrigerator.

EASTER EGG RING

1 stick margarine
3/4 cup sugar
2 beaten eggs
2 1/2 cups flour
2 1/2 teaspoons baking powder
1/2 cup milk
1 1/2 teaspoons anise extract plus two or three eggs to place on top.
In a bowl, mix the melted margarine with the sugar until blended.

Add the beaten eggs, the flour and milk gradually blending until the mixture forms a dough that isn't sticky. (add more flour if it is)

Add the anise and blend.

On a floured board mix the dough until smooth. Make a ring (like a wreath) and place in a lightly greased cookie sheet.

On top of the ring, place three uncooked eggs around the ring, and securing them with a thin piece of dough.

Bake in a 350 degree oven for 25 to 30 minutes.

Make an icing with powdered sugar and milk and a smidgen of the anise extract and brush on top. Add colored decorative candies on top. This keeps for days and is delicious with a cup of tea or coffee.

things that I brought," he said. He added that he hopes to hear from MARAD by June and, if successful, to have the shipyard operating by early next year.

Emmanouil, who has a $240 million contract to build six oil tankers for the London arm of the Greek shipping company Mare Maritime and plans to call the first ship The Mare Quincy, said he hopes to employ about 1,500 shipbuilders and a number of additional workers at the yard. He said he also plans to train vocational-technical students from Quincy about the shipbuilding trade, something suggested last month by Council President Peter Kolson.

In addition, Emmanouil cited the pledge of an unnamed European government to order 15 more ships after the first six are completed.

When Harold asked Emmanouil for details about the financial details of his plan, the shipbuilder was hesitant to answer, saying he does not want to make many specifics public given the competition for federal loan guarantees. Shipyards in other states, including Louisiana and Virginia, are vying for the money.

Emmanouil became a bit unnerved when Harold noted that a total of about $600 million in loan guarantees will be divided among yards throughout the country. Harold then asked how realistic it is to expect Quincy to secure such a large portion of the loan pool.

"Ask MARAD," snapped Emmanouil, who added that the chance of success in his opinion is "absolutely 100 percent."

presentation, Harold noted that he was uncomfortable voicing support of a proposal he was not being allowed to read, but said he would do so in order to allow the council to present a united front to MARAD officials. Other councilors, including Raymond and Councilor Michael Cheney, said the city's support is crucial in the shipbuilder's success in securing the federal loan guarantees.

"I'm fully supportive of this proposal, and I have faith in the system," said Cheney.

Sheets said Tuesday he is happy with the council's support and that he will sign the resolution and send it to MARAD as a display of the city's backing of the project.

"I'm very pleased, it's very important," said the mayor. "I think we're another step closer to shipbuilding."

Heliotherapy: 'The Positive Effects Of The Sun'

The following statistics from California Tanning Products were compiled by Mike Blonde of Supertan Sun Studios, 22 Brook St., Quincy:

- Nature's Skin Protection: It is commonly known that our natural tanning process provides protection against burning. Unlike some sunscreens, a tan provides reliable, full-spectrum (UVA/UVB) protection from burning. Your natural tan offers protection that doesn't rub, sweat or wear off the way sunscreen lotion can.
- Prevention of Some Cancers: People who live in regions with more sunlight have been found to have a lower incidence of death from ovarian, breast and colon cancers than those who live in places with less sunlight.

- Other Causes of Skin Cancer:

High-fat diets have been linked to a higher incidence of most common forms of skin cancer—non-melanoma. In one medical study, patients with precancerous lesions were found to develop fewer lesions after switching to a low-fat diet.

- Vitamin D, Osteoporosis:

Sunlight and suntanning beds that emit UVB are reliable sources of Vitamin D. Vitamin D is necessary for our bodies to use the calcium we get in our diet. This vitamin is found in few foods; one study showed that Vitamin D was largely lacking in the fortified milk supplied in the U.S. Your skin produces Vitamin D naturally when exposed to sunlight. A sunscreen of SPF 8 or higher has been found to disable and halt the skin's ability to produce Vitamin D.

- Seasonal Depression Therapy:

Sunlight and simulated sunlight "doses" are successful treatments for seasonal-affective disorder, known as "winter blues." Sunlight exposure has been found to improve low winter moods. Indoor lighting, on the other hand, is generally perceived by the brain as near darkness.

- Reduce Symptoms of PMS:

Exposure to bright light has been found to help alleviate some symptoms of pre-menstrual syndrome, such as mild depression and mood swings, irritability, physical discomfort and social withdrawal.

- A Strong Biological Clock for Optimal Health:

Having well-synchronized circadian rhythms—your biological clock—results in better quality sleep, daytime alertness, and optimal health in general. The more sunlight exposure you get during the day, the more in sync with your environment your circadian rhythms will be.

• Psoriasis Treatment:

Exposure to UV light is commonly prescribed by doctors to alleviate the unsightly appearance and discomforts of psoriasis. Drugs such as Psoralens have been developed to work in conjunction with UV light treatments. Those with psoriasis should consult their doctor before proceeding with any treatment programs.

- Jet Lag Prevention:

"Doses" of sunlight or simulated sunlight timed carefully upon arrival in a new time zone can reset your body's biological clock, resulting in less daytime drowsiness and better quality nighttime sleep.

A list of studies is available upon request. Contact Supertan Sun Studio at 479-3623 for more information.

By ROBERT HELFRICH

"I am less concerned about the health issues than I am about the town's image. Seeing employees standing outside Town Hall to smoke looks bad." So stated a South Shore town official as he and colleagues debated a proposal that would make their Town Hall smoke-free.

Consider these images:

- Bob Mehrman, a radio and TV show host for over three decades, speaking to a class of young people with the help of an electronic device that makes him sound like a robot. He lost his larynx to smoking.
- A patient of a nearby respiratory hospital suffering from smoking-induced lung cancer.

CHIROPRACTIC HEALTH TOPICS

HANCOCK STREET
CHIROPRACTIC

WHAT IS CHIROPRACTIC?

Chiropractic is an independent branch of the health sciences which specializes in the diagnosis and treatment of mechanical disorders of the joints, particularly those of the spine and their effect on the nervous system.

Chiropractic prides itself on being a drug-free, non-surgical science. The most characteristic aspect of the chiropractic practice is the correction of a subluxated (misaligned) spinal vertebrae or pelvic segment by means of making specific adjustment. The purpose of this correction is to normalize the spinal vertebrae segment and relieve the attending neurological, muscular disturbances.

Currently, there is one chiropractor for every 10,000 Americans. The greater acceptance and understanding, increasing insurance recognition, the high cost of hospitalization and greater consciousness among the general population have added to the growth of chiropractic both as a profession and a medical alternative. The evidence for effectiveness is well-documented and the Agency for Health Care Policy and Research, an agency of the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services, validates manipulation for spinal-related conditions.

Here is a list of conditions which often respond favorably to chiropractic treatment: arthritis, back problems, headaches, disk problems, low back and leg problems, neck stiffness, tension, and whiplash.

Chiropractic is for the entire family. Dr. Thomas Kretz has over 10 years of experience treating sports, work and auto injuries. He was one of a dozen chiropractors from across the country to complete the "Advanced Team Physician" program through the American College of Sports Medicine.

Dr. Kretz has also been one of the treating chiropractic physicians for the Ladies Professional Golf Association.

A Pre-Easter Pilgrimage To The Holy Land

Photos And Text By HAROLD CROWLEY

The Bible and its gospels will never be the same for a group of Quincy residents who recently returned from a pilgrimage to Israel and the Holy Land.

References to places like Bethlehem, Capernaum, Tiberius, the Sea of Galilee, Jericho, the Dead Sea, and Jerusalem will bring to mind vivid pictures of actual places where the biblical stories occurred.

The recent tour was arranged by the Office of the Permanent Deaconate of the Catholic Archdiocese of Boston.

A busy schedule brought the Quincy pilgrims to many of the sites associated with the life of Jesus as well as the Old Testament.

During their stay in Israel, they witnessed the turmoil caused by recent terrorist bombings and the fervent wish of those of every religious persuasion for peace in this holy land!

Uvanitte, Sandy Sacchetti, Don Uvanitte, Rose Norton, Harry Kimball, Marion Batas, Eleanor Lebel, Harold Crowley, Mary Clark, Louise Jackson, Bill Jackson, Eileen Menz, Carol Kimball, Charlie Berry and Mildred Berry.

AT THE CHURCH of the Holy Sepulchre on Mt. Calvary in Jerusalem, the place where Jesus was crucified and died on the cross. Judy and Bernie Macauley hold cross at the church after carrying it with the other pilgrims through the streets of old Jerusalem commemorating the pathway Jesus took on his way to Calvary.

ENTRANCE TO THE ancient town of Capernaum of the Sea of Galilee, where Jesus lived with the Apostle Peter and did much of his preaching. Jack Menz (standing by the gate) served as the co-leader of the Quincy pilgrims along with Fr. Richard DeVeer of St. Boniface Church.

AN EGYPTIAN HIGH Rise, the Great Pyramid at Giza. Bernie Macauley, a Quincy firefighter, wonders how big a ladder would be needed to reach the top of this pyramid!

TO ANCIENT EGYPT and the Tombs of the Pharaohs. Quincy pilgrims who continued on to explore ancient Egypt are, from left, Rose Norton, Bridie O'Connor, Maurice O'Connor, Harold Crowley, Bernie Macauley and Judy Macauley.

FLOATING ON THE Dead Sea, the lowest point on the surface of the earth. Maurice O'Connor experiences the buoyancy of the Dead Sea, which has 25 percent salt content.

RENEWING WEDDING VOWS at Cana of Galilee, where Jesus performed his first public miracle by changing water into wine at the wedding feast. Fr. Richard DeVeer presides over the renewal of wedding vows outside the Franciscan Church.

AT JERICHO, the oldest city in the world dating back over 10,000 years, Fr. Richard DeVeer resorts to an ancient means of transportation.

PLANTING TREES IN Galilee, helping to restore the vistas of the Bible to the Land of the Bible. From the left, Harry Kimball, Donna Uvanitte, Don Uvanitte, Jack Menz, Eileen Menz, and Harold Crowley.

AT MASADA ON the shore of the Dead Sea, where Jewish zealots held out against the Romans for three years after the fall of Jerusalem in 70 A.D. Bernie Macauley, Judy Macauley and Harold Crowley atop Masada, a symbol of Jewish determination to hold out even in a hopeless situation. This picture was taken just hours after the Quincy pilgrims witnessed the turmoil created in Jerusalem when a terrorist bombed a bus, killing 23 people.

NQ Academic Decathlon Team Takes Ninth Place In State Finals

North Quincy High School students brought home a total of five individual awards at the Massachusetts Academic Decathlon hosted by Wellesley High School on March 5.

North Quincy placed ninth overall out of the 16 competing schools at the Decathlon, the state's most prestigious academic contest.

Over 200 high school students from 16 public and private schools across Massachusetts competed in the state-wide competition that is designed to encourage enthusiasm for academic endeavors among students of all grade levels.

Each of the high schools sent a nine-member students team comprised of three "A" level students (Honors Division), three "B" level students (Scholastic Division), and three "C" level students (Varsity Division) to compete in a series of 10 academic events covering economics, language and literature, mathematics, physical and biological sciences, fine arts, and social sciences.

Each team member competed against students of the same division in all 10 events.

In addition, the students were asked to deliver a four-minute prepared speech, a two-minute impromptu speech, give an oral interview and write an essay.

The highlight and final event of the Decathlon was the "Super Quiz," a relay in which all 16 teams answered multiple-choice questions on the United Nations, in honor of this year's 50th anniversary of the U.N.

The individual winners from North Quincy were: Russell Savella, Varsity Division, who earned a silver medal in social studies, bronze medal in science, and an honorable mention (brass medal) in mathematics; Vincent Leung, Scholastic Division, with a bronze medal for interview; and Ben Tran, Scholastic Division, with an honorable mention in social studies.

Other notable achievements: Rebecca Gordan leading the team in total points; Jessica Quilty receiving the highest score among North Quincy students for her speech; and Kosanna Poon leading NQHS scoring in mathematics.

Other NQHS competitors were: Andy Wu, Maureen Sullivan, Michael Griffin; and alternates Kelly Magnuson, Ted McGillicuddy, Wendy Traflet, Annie Liu, Lisa Renzi and Chandra Leister.

To prepare for the Decathlon, the students worked with coach Thomas Donnelly and studied such diverse subjects as Capitalist Theory, International Trade and Finance, Postimpressionism Art, the Pythagorean Theorem, the Impact of the Population Explosion, Reestablishing Balance in the Ecosystems, and the Economic Role of Government.

The 15 other schools which competed in the Decathlon were Acton-Boxborough, Cambridge Rindge & Latin, Franklin, Marblehead, Needham, North Middlesex, Pittsfield, Sharon, St. John's (Shrewsbury), Waltham, Walpole, Wayland, Wellesley and Weymouth.

Coach Bob Sylvia: Making State Tournament 'A Reachable Goal'

Deep Bullpen Could Put Presidents Over The Top

By CHRISTIAN POTTS

Springtime in New England is basically a gamble. You never really know what to expect weather-wise. It's a forecaster's nightmare.

But thus far, the spring of 1996 here in Quincy hasn't been all that bad. Sure, there's been rain and some cold and wind, but for the most part, it's been fairly tame. And that has allowed Quincy High School varsity baseball coach Bob Sylvia to take his team outside a bit more than he expected to be able to.

"Normally, the kids would be going stir-crazy by now from practicing in the gymnasium," said Sylvia, now in his 15th year of coaching baseball at QHS. "But we've been outside four or five times in the first two weeks already. That has been a tremendous boost."

The Presidents felt one game short of qualifying for the state tourney last season, and graduated several starters from that squad. Still, Coach Sylvia feels his team has the potential to make the tournament this season.

"We're a young team, and we have a lot of players who will be making a big jump to the varsity level. But from what I've seen so far, I believe that our goal of making the state tourney can be reached," said Sylvia.

One of the strengths of this spring's President Nine is that they are, in their coach's words, "good kids. They enjoy being out there and have an enthusiasm and a willingness to learn. Plus, from what I've seen, the chemistry is good; there aren't any head cases or kids complaining about positions."

Sylvia has a bullpen that should be the envy of his competitors. The staff ace is returning veteran and team captain Geoff Russell, with lefty Mark Kelly—"The first lefty we've had in a while," said the coach—following.

Bobby Walsh, Brian O'Connor and John Duffy round out the President's staff.

"They've all had a chance to throw and they look solid. Having a deep bullpen like this is an advantage, because in the cold weather we'll have in April, arms get a little sore. With these kids, we have the depth to make sure we can rest those arms," said Sylvia.

With the youth of this team, it will be few games before this team does jell. "Everybody has looked good in practice, but it will probably take seven or eight games for us to see if we can put it together."

"We'll muddle through a few games until the fielders get used to the varsity level. It's quite a jump up [junior varsity to varsity], but these kids should be able to handle it. I'm looking forward to this season," finished Sylvia.

And some warm weather.

Rebuilding Program Focus

For New Skipper Dave Perdios

Pitching Must Be The Strength For Raiders

At one time or another, every baseball coach is guilty of spouting cliches. The nature of the game makes one use those sayings, because over a baseball season, they usually turn out to be the truth.

So one can excuse new North Quincy High School baseball head coach Dave Perdios if he indulges in some cliché-spouting of his own. "All I want from these players is that they practice hard, be willing to learn and give 100 percent," said Perdios. "I know what kind of coach I am, and that's what I will give to them."

Although this will be his first year at the helm of the Red Raider Nine, Perdios is not a coaching greenhorn. For the last nine years, Perdios has coached the NQ junior varsity squad. And for the 10 summers, he's been the head coach of the Morrisette Post Legion baseball squad—and if you know your Quincy baseball, you know that his track record with that squad makes him a proven winner.

In assuming the NQ varsity head coaching duties, however, Perdios has his work cut out for him. Last year's team finished 4-16 and graduated a number of seniors to boot. Is the coach intimidated by the task he faces?

"From what I've seen so far [tryouts began March 18], the majority of these kids are dedicated, ready to work and wanting to play. We're going to be a young squad, which means there are no set positions; if a player wants to work hard and shows it, they can move up and earn a spot," said Perdios.

The key word for this season will be rebuilding. "I want to bring the North Quincy baseball program back to the top. I have an advantage in that with the youth in this program, I can basically start from scratch with no expectations," he said.

The strength of this team will need to be pitching. "Our pitching will need to keep us in ballgames—we're going to have young players in the field, so our pitchers are going to have to strike people out and make smart pitches when we need them. The players need experience and they have to learn how to play, and they won't learn much if they are always behind.

"This season is not going to be about wins and losses. We have to rebuild the program, which means that from freshman to varsity, all the players have to understand the total program concept. All I ask is that from March 18 to May 28 [the last regular-season game] the players commit to this team, and everything else will take care of itself," concluded the new coach.

Jennifer Walker Named Academic All-American

Quincy's Jennifer Walker recently was voted to the Academic All-America Team by the College Swim Coaches Association.

Walker, a junior at Iona College in New Rochelle, N.Y., was captain of the 1995-96 Iona women's swim team. At the recent Metro Athletic Conference (MAAC) Swimming Championships held at Iona, Jennifer was voted an All-Academic Selection by the MAAC coaches.

A Dean's List student, Walker is majoring in psychology with a minor in criminal justice. She was recently accepted into the prestigious Psi-Chi Psychology National Honor Society.

Jennifer, a 1993 graduate of North Quincy High School, is the daughter of Quincy Public Schools athletic coordinator Bill Walker and his wife, Jean.

Michael Patch On Dean's List

Quincy native Michael Patch was named to the Dean's List at Mount Vernon Nazarene College for the fall semester.

Patch, a junior majoring in business administration, posted a 3.75 grade-point average for the semester. Dean's List requires a minimum 3.3 GPA to qualify.

Patch is a pitcher for the Mount Vernon Cougars baseball team, which won the NCCAA Championship in Division II NAIA baseball last spring.

Michael is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Bradley L. Patch of Quincy.

Lights Planned At Upper Faxon Park Softball Field

The Men's Night Softball League won't have to worry about someone turning out the lights on them anymore.

In response to the South Shore YMCA's planned expansion, the Quincy Parks Department has put in a bid invitation to erect lights at the upper field at Faxon Park in Quincy for softball.

The Parks Department had been using the Rotary

Field and its lights with the YMCA's permission. In exchange for allowing the use of the field, the Parks Department had been paying the electrical bills for the lights and maintaining the field itself.

By using the upper field at Faxon Park, however, the Parks Department will be using one of its own fields.

According to Parks Director Thomas Koch, the maintenance and upkeep costs will be "about the same after the lights go up. We're not sure yet if the leagues will have to postpone games or delay the season while the lights are being put up; there might be an interruption, but we don't really know," said Koch.

With the new lights at Faxon Park, the Quincy Parks Department now has a total of five lighted fields for softball—three for men and two for women.

The Night Softball League is made of several hundred players from Quincy and other surrounding towns.

The bids for the lighting installation at the upper field at Faxon Park will be opened and read by the City of Quincy's Purchasing Department on April 18 at 10 a.m.

15th Anniversary Tournament For Youth Soccer June 7-9

Quincy Youth Soccer has scheduled their 15th anniversary soccer tournament to be held in Quincy the weekend of June 7-9.

The tournament, sponsored by Merrill Lynch, NYNEX and Quincy Youth Soccer, is open to any boys' and girls' soccer teams playing at the town level in the under 10, 12 and 14-year-old divisions. Each team will play a minimum of three games apiece, with a playoff round for the top teams. Thus far, a number of teams—some from Rhode Island and New Hampshire—have registered to participate, and QYS expects a full field of 64 teams will register by mid-April.

A total of eight soccer fields will serve as playing venues for the various age groups, including Faxon Field, Upper Merrymount Colla, Pageant Field, Varsity Field and Veterans Memorial Stadium.

The tournament committee will be working with the National Parks and USS Salem staffs to showcase their facilities to tournament participants outside the area. A schedule of events will be released in late May.

Admission to the tournament for spectators will be free, and Quincy Youth Soccer encourages Quincy residents to come down and enjoy the sport of soccer at any of the fields.

If you are interested in volunteering or participating in the tournament or would like more information, contact tournament director Malcolm MacNeil at (617) 471-5371, or write to Quincy Youth Soccer, P.O. Box 2209, Quincy, MA 02269.

SCOTT DEWARE

A Thought For The Week

Easter is a time for rejoicing; one of the most joyous days of the year. It symbolizes the reawakening of life that is universally associated with springtime... the season of robins' singing... meadows turning green... of life renewed. It is the happy time of people's faith.

Easter commemorates the resurrection of Jesus Christ but, surprisingly, the theme of Easter is older than Christianity itself. Among the most ancient civilizations, rituals and rebirth were very common... Sunrise services date back to the medieval custom of praying while the sun rises. The present-day parades that mark the day had their beginning in the original Easter walk of Europe, when devout men and women congregated and walked in an orderly manner reciting prayers and singing. And one of the most charming of all customs is the Easter egg hunt for children-renewing the custom for older than Christianity. In pre-Christian time, the egg was the symbol of spring. In the Christian era the egg became a symbol of the rock tomb out of which Christ emerged in His resurrection. Thus, Easter is a symbol of Christianity, just as it is a symbol of the faith and hope of mankind.

Easter combines a rich mixture of laughter and solemnity. Both are good; both are needed by the soul of man...

Hearing On Proposed Hospital Merger Set

April 22 public hearing but did not set a date for when a final vote on the petition will be taken. Raymondi suggested that the Retirement Board and other agencies that will be affected by the legislation be contacted in advance so they can plan to send representatives to the hearing.

DiPisa and other hospital officials also plan to be in attendance.

Sheets said Tuesday it is important for the petition to be sent to the Legislature before the end of its session because any matter not addressed before then will have to wait until next year to be reintroduced. He voiced concerns that Carney, which is not a municipal hospital and does not require a home-rule petition to a merger, may become impatient and merge with another hospital if that happens.

"These days, hospitals that don't affiliate aren't going to survive," he said. "It's basically something we've got to do."

Although few details of the talks have been made public, the proposed home-rule petition outlines the basic framework.

Under discussion is a non-profit parent company which would oversee certain operations of the two hospitals. The company would be known as the Blue Hills Health System Corp.

Each hospital would maintain separate assets, and each would also keep a board of directors and president who would manage day-to-day operations and make decisions on matters involving only their facility.

The mayor of Quincy and the Daughters of Charity—an order of Catholic nuns that owns Carney Hospital—would each appoint an equal number of members of the parent company's board of directors, and the company's board would appoint Quincy Hospital's board of managers. Currently, the mayor appoints all man-agement board members.

The home-rule petition also calls for Quincy Hospital to be restructured into a new, non-profit entity call the Quincy Hospital Corp. It would, however, remain a public employer and would recognize all of the existing unions. Employees would remain part of Quincy's retirement system and would retain all of their benefits and seniority rights in their transfer to the new corporation.

Under the partnership, the parent company would make certain decisions for the hospitals, such as whether to pursue specific managed care contracts or cut or expand certain services offered to patients.

Officials said the theory is that the partnership would make the hospitals more attractive to insurance companies. Insurers and HMOs are increasingly paying hospital and physician networks to treat large groups of patients, and the networks with the most to offer generally win the contracts.

READING ON THIN RUBBER

Car owners should adopt the habit of inspecting their cars' tires for wear every few weeks. Most tires have tread-wear indicators built into them. They appear as bars of hard rubber across the treads when the treads have been worn down to 1/16th of an inch on the tire's surface. In the event that these indicators show up on the tire in two or three different places less than 120 degrees apart around the circumference of the tire, it is time to purchase replacement tires. Ideally, drivers will not allow their tires to wear to the point where the indicators appear. Because minimal tread compromises handling and braking to the absolute need to do 9pm, Sat 7am-9pm, Sun 9am-5pm. Car owners should also be in the habit of inspecting their tires for unusual wear patterns. HINT: If front tires show more wear than those in the rear, as well as show abnormal wear patterns, it is probably time to have the wheels aligned and balanced. For most of your cars maintenance needs, including alignment and complete front end work, rely on our technicians at LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO. GOV. WILLIAM WELD made an impromptu appearance at Bibb's Service Center Monday to speak out against a John Kerry-supported 50-cent gas tax. Weld Sees Re-Opened Shipyard As 'Major Player'

By CHRISTIAN POTTS

Gov. William Weld stopped off at Bibb's Service Center on Sea St. in Adams Shore Tuesday, using the station as a setting to take issue with Sen. John Kerry's proposed 50-cent gas tax.

Weld also discussed the proposed reopening of the Quincy Shipyard. He said he would work toward the predicted reopening of the Quincy Shipyard, and predicted the yard would make Quincy "a major player in the world shipbuilding market."

Weld's appearance at Bibb's gave Quincy supporters a chance to cheer on Weld, who is running against Kerry for the U.S. Senate.

The Governor arrived and spoke for about 10 minutes on the impact the gas tax would have, especially on working families.

"Senator Kerry's support for a 50 cents a gallon increase...will cost the working men and women of this state six or seven bucks more every time they fill up, and close to $350 per car per driver each year," said Weld. "The working men and women in this state don't have the money to spare for a junior senator with his head in the clouds."

Weld also pointed out his track record of 11 tax cuts—five for the working class—in his tenure as governor. "I have never raised taxes, and I never will. The single most important thing government can do is let people keep their money."

Behind the governor's podium was a sign reading "Today: Kerry Special! Add 50¢ a gallon," and above that sign were mock gas prices reflecting the 50¢ increase. When asked if he knew the cost of a gallon of gas, he quoted normal prices, and stated that he does indeed pump his own gas.

"I don't know if Senator Kerry does...maybe they don't have pumps on the Elizabeth Islands," quipped the governor.

Weld also defended his aggressive appearance and demeanor at Monday's televised debate, saying (Cont'd On Page 20)

Quincy 2000, QCBPA In United Effort

Marketing Manager For Center

By MICHAEL WHALEN

Quincy 2000 and the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association are joining forces to hire a "Quincy Center manager" who will address marketing and related issues for the downtown.

Quincy 2000 Executive Director Joseph Mannarino said he hopes the manager, who will work through Quincy 2000, is hired within four to six weeks.

"On a full-time basis, we need someone to market Quincy Center and promote business in Quincy Center," he said. "Quincy Center is the largest of the commercial districts in the city, and it also has some of the greatest needs."

QCBPA President Daniel Flynn of Daniel J. Flynn & Co. agreed.

"This is a true joint effort between Quincy 2000 and the QCBPA," he said. "I'm very excited about it. We need to draw more people to Quincy Center."

"There's a great retail mix in Quincy Center. We just need to get it exposed."

Mannarino and Flynn said the primary duties of the downtown manager will be:

- Development and implementation of a marketing plan and advertisement campaign for the promotion of Quincy Center.

- Development of a data base of national and local companies suitable for location to Quincy Center.

- Gathering of data for the creation of maps, brochures, and a Quincy Center logo.

- Working with Quincy Center property owners and realtors to attract potential tenants and buyers to their properties, particularly at vacant sites.

College Partnership Would Enable QC Students To Earn 4-Year Degrees

By MICHAEL WHALEN

Quincy College is hoping to enter into a partnership program with other local institutions that would allow its students to pursue four-year degrees.

The college is also seeking additional classroom space at its overcrowded downtown facility.

Dr. Jeremiah Ryan, president of the college since last month, said under the "Two and Two" partnership plan, students would work toward a two-year degree or certificate at Quincy College while earning credit for a four-year degree to be completed through another school. He noted that students would continue taking classes in Quincy, and possibly Quincy College's other campus in Plymouth, during the third and fourth years at the other institution.

Although details have yet to be worked out, Ryan said he hopes the entering the program would be a simple process for students.

"Hopefully, for example, they could just sign up for a UMass 'Two and Two' program and that would be it," he said.

Ryan said discussions about the "Two and Two" program have been (Cont'd On Page 20)

City Curbside Leaf Collection Begins April 15

The city will conduct curbside leaf collection workdays from Monday, April 15 to Friday, May 10.

Leaves should be placed in appropriate containers to one side of the recycling bin and trash barrels on regularly-scheduled trash pickup days.

Appropriate containers include barrels and reusable containers, large paper sacks designed for leaves (available at Stop & Shop, Star Market, Shaw's Market and Tedeschi Food Shops), and clear plastic bags.

Since 1989, 25,600 tons of leaves and yard waste have been collected. Officials anticipate that four weeks will provide residents enough weekend and weekday time to clean their yards.

Leaf and yard waste dropoff for Quincy residents will also continue at the Corporation Yard, 55 Sea St. (rear), Saturdays from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. effective April 15.

Yard waste includes leaves, grass clippings, and small brush (diameter no larger than a wooden pencil) that corresponds to residential landscape.

Cheney Opposes Raymondi Zoning Change Proposal

City Councillor Michael Cheney submitted a letter Tuesday to his council colleagues and members of the Quincy Planning Board that voices strong opposition to a proposed zoning change.

A public hearing on the matter will be held Tuesday, April 16 at 6:30 p.m. in the City Council Chambers at City Hall. The proposal by Ward 2 Councillor Daniel Raymondi would affect every parcel in the city zoned Business "B" that has a business of 5,000 square feet or more.

Raymondi has said he made the proposal for the protection of Quincy's neighborhoods.

Cheney, who will be unable to attend the hearing, noted that according to the zoning change, any new business seeking to locate or relocate in the city with a gross floor area of 5,000 square feet or greater would have to receive a special permit from the Planning Board before it could open. He said businesses are not likely to relocate in Quincy if they have to go through a special permit process.

"These are not businesses such as Wal-Mart, Roche Bros., Stop & Shop and Shaw we are talking about," he said. "This zoning change will affect much smaller business establishments in the city."

Cheney said he is concerned that the city will "micro-manage" most Business "B" parcels, which will cause business owners and investors to look elsewhere to do business.

"It is better that we lay the ground rules down upfront so the businesses will know what their upfront costs will be," he said. "There are other ways to mitigate impacts on neighborhoods."

Cheney added that he also fears that the real estate market is already tight enough in business districts and that the city will end up with a number of boarded-up business buildings that will remain vacant as a result of the zoning change.

"Boarded-up buildings will not serve the best interests of the business or residential communities," he said.

Cheney said he looks forward to debating the issues in subsequent meetings of the council's Ordinance Committee that will take place after the public hearing.

Raymondi proposed the zoning change after Shaw's Supermarkets announced it would be demolishing its existing store on Quincy Avenue as well as the former Quinail headquarters next door in order to build a new "superstore" at the site.

Under current zoning laws, Shaw's only needed to obtain a permit from the city's building department in order to go forward with its plan. Raymondi said news of the superstore has surprised and upset a number of neighborhood residents who are concerned about the traffic impact and other related issues.

QTVB Launches Toll-Free Visitors Hotline For Tourists

As part of its new tourism promotion campaign, the Quincy Tourism & Visitors Bureau (QTVB), a subsidiary of the Quincy 2000 Corporation, today launched the city's first toll-free visitors hotline, 1-888-ADAMES (1-888-232-6737).

The hotline is one of the first new "888" number designations for toll-free calls, and will be accessed by consumers across the U.S.

Individuals calling the hotline receive a menu of information on Quincy's attractions and special events, including the Adams National Historic Site, U.S. Naval Shipbuilding Museum and USS Salem, historic houses, and the City of Presidents Blues Festival. The hotline also enables visitors to request brochures and other information from the QTVB.

"Establishing a visitors hotline was a top priority for our promotional efforts," said new QTVB Director Jo-An Thomas. "It's an excellent way to promote the city and provide both residents and potential tourists with up-to-date information on what's happening in Quincy."

Thomas said the hotline will be publicized through advertising, public relations and in cooperation with marketing partners. The International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, Local 103, will feature the hotline on its electronic billboard on the Southeast Expressway in Dorchester.

ATTENTION QUINCY & WEYMOUTH RESIDENTS

Due to Patriots Day, Monday, April 15, 1996, rubbish collection will be a day late. Monday's rubbish will be collected on Tuesday. Tuesday's will be collected on Wednesday, etc. There will be a Saturday collection for rubbish usually collected on Friday. This applies to all routes. BFI

Sheets Sees No Temporary Housing At Squantum Site

Mayor James Sheets said this week he is confident a proposal to use military housing in Squantum as temporary homes for low and moderate-income Boston residents will not become a reality.

Sheets made his comments Tuesday when asked by The Quincy Sun if he thought the proposal by the Massachusetts Housing Finance Agency (MHFA) would affect Quincy's plans to use the 105 units at Squantum Gardens and Naval Terrace, located off East Squantum Street, for a senior citizens community and clinic.

The mayor said in order for such an occurrence to take place, the MHFA would have to follow the same formal process the city has in developing its plans for the site. He added that since the city has been designated as the local redevelopment authority by the U.S. Department of Defense--which controls the site through the Navy--there is really no chance at all the MHFA proposal could ever reach fruition.

"It's (MHFA proposal) simply not the use we want for the site," said Sheets. "It makes no sense to do that because it would disrupt the timetable for the senior service center. And an agency can't just exempt themselves from the process."

MHFA officials already have been quoted as saying they will not press the issue if opposition in Quincy is too strong. Previously, they indicated that the Squantum site was only one of several under consideration for its plan.

The MHFA is seeking a temporary home for the Boston residents while their current housing is renovated. Officials have said the work could take up to two years.

Sheets, meanwhile, and city officials are hoping to use Squantum Gardens and Naval Terrace for senior housing. The site is now about 60 percent vacant, and should be completely empty by September, as a result of the closing of the South Weymouth Naval Air Station.

Sheets and other local officials hope to formally recommend a plan for the use of the site by October. The mayor noted that the Department of Defense, which has the final say on how the location is used, is under no obligation to make a quick decision but may very well do so because winter will soon follow.

Seniors, however, may begin moving to the site as early as August or September, according to the mayor.

Sheets said he and John Leigh of the Department of Defense he have discussed the possibility of an interim lease rental agreement between the Navy and the city. Leigh thinks the idea makes sense, according to the mayor, because keeping at least some of the units occupied at all times will reduce the possibility of vandalism and other destruction at the site.

City To Observe National Infant Immunization Week

A series of events will be held in Quincy in recognition of National Immunization Week.

Quincy Health Commissioner Jane Gallahue said that while immunization rates in young children have improved dramatically, many are still not protected against infectious, serious and sometimes fatal diseases such as measles, Haemophilus influenza and pertussis.

About 80 percent of a child's immunizations should be given during the first 24 months of life, Gallahue added. To receive the total series, about five separate visits to a physician or clinic are recommended, she said.

Information on immunization for infants, children and adults will be available at the following events:

•School Health Fair, today (Thursday) from 8:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. at Presidential Plaza. The event will include a Quincy Health Department exhibit on communicable diseases.

•YMCA Healthy Kids Day, Saturday from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. at the South Shore YMCA. Literature and material will be available on immunizations and communicable diseases.

•Safety Saturday, Saturday, April 27 from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. at Quincy Hospital. The event will include a Health Department exhibit on communicable diseases and immunizations.

National Infant Immunization Week is April 21-27. For more information, call 376-1284, 1285 or 1286.

THE ATTACK OF MONDAY MORNINGS

Just about anyone who has worked a Monday-through-Friday job knows what happens when the alarm clock blasts off on Monday morning: The stomach tightens, the head throbs and a desperate urge hits to burrow under the covers. Now there may be another reason to be wary of Monday mornings. Researchers are discovering that they are prime time for heart attacks. It is not yet clear exactly why Monday mornings are hardest on the heart, but theories include the extra dose of physical or mental stress, hormonal changes, body rhythm variations, behavioral patterns and eating and drinking habits. While more study needs to be done, heart patients may be advised to allow themselves some extra TLC at the start of the work week.

P.S. Mornings in general are the riskiest time for heart attacks among workers and non-workers alike.

Monday mornings are the most frequent time for heart attacks, which may mean it is wise to pay attention to your reaction to stress at your job. For more information, visit COMPREHENSIVE MEDICAL CARE, located at 700 Congress St., in Quincy, or call me or Dr. Lisa Antonelli at 472-2550. Office hours by appointment. Sheets In The 21st Century?

It looks like it will be a long time before Quincy mayoral hopefuls will have to think about ordering bumper stickers.

It appears more and more that incumbent James Sheets plans to be around City Hall for a while yet. A long while. Like, maybe, right into the 21st century.

Sheets has noted in the past that he has an agenda he wants to complete before he hands the keys to the office over to his successor. An agenda that includes the Quincy Center Concourse, a hotel and other municipal goodies that would seem to require at least a fifth term to see to conclusion.

Now comes a new indication that he is thinking not only of a fifth term but probably a sixth one, too.

He will naming a special "Millennium Committee" sometime this summer to raise money and put together a series of special events to celebrate the arrival of the new century and commemorate Quincy's achievements during this past century. The committee would work in union with the First Night Committee headed by Councillor Michael Cheney.

The events will focus on Quincy's history the past 100 years including its granite and shipbuilding industries that produced world famed granite and world famed ships.

There will also be a salute to Quincy's Colonial history--the birthplaces of John and John Quincy Adams, John Hancock and the Massachusetts Constitution, the first commercial railway, the first productive iron works, etc.

The celebration will also take a projected look at the Quincy of the 21st century.

"It sounds like you plan to be around as mayor for awhile," we said to Sheets the other day.

"Well," he replied, "let's say I would like to be here when all this happens."

Let's see, now.

To be around as mayor Dec. 31, 1999 to usher in the new century as Quincy's chief executive, Sheets would need one more two-year term. His present fourth term runs through 1997. A fifth term would take him to New Year's Eve 1999.

With a fifth term he would then have a couple of days in the new century year 2000 and then leave office.

But a sixth term would give him two full years as mayor in the new century.

He would be the first mayor in Quincy's history to be in office in two different centuries.

He has already made political history. He's the only Quincy mayor ever to be elected to two terms unopposed. Two others, Thomas Burgin and Frank McCauley, were each elected to one term without opposition.

If he is elected to and completes a fifth term he will also be making more history. He would have served the longest--10 years--of any mayor under the city's Plan A form of government.

The late Charles Ross holds that distinction now. He served nine years, but not consecutively.

SHEETS

DELLA CHIESA

Amelio Della Chiesa was mayor 12 years but only eight under Plan A. Four were under Plan E in the 1950's when a city manager actually was the city's chief executive.

The mayor back then was a city councillor elected by the council. He presided over the council like a council president does today and performed ceremonial duties such as cutting ribbons and welcoming visiting dignitaries.

Sheets is one of the city's all-time popular mayors. On a 1-10 popularity scale he has to be at least a 9.9. That friendly Papa Bear-like image, his day-to-day mayoral style and performance are politically appealing.

Right now it would seem that if he wants a fifth--or sixth--term he could have it. And who knows, maybe even one more as frosting on his mayoral cake.

TIM CAHILL packed them in at his announcement party for his candidacy for Norfolk County treasurer the other night at the Common Market.

A lot of new faces were there as supporters from other county communities joined Quincy backers to help build the campaign chest. Over 350 turned out at $10 per. Among the crowd were quite a few young people.

Cahill has been moving around the county meeting voters at town meetings and at town elections and at Democratic town committee meetings.

"The response has been good," he says. "I'm meeting a lot of people. It's very encouraging."

GEORGE BURKE, one of the all-time basketball greats at UMass and now its No. 1 fan, thinks the Minutemen will come back just as strong next season providing Marcus Camby doesn't leave for the pros.

Burke was on hand for the regional playoffs and the Final Four staying to the very end even after Kentucky knocked UMass out of the Final Two.

He stayed for the Kentucky-Syracuse game with his son, George and daughter, Joanne, both of whom are Syracuse graduates. They were rooting for Syracuse obviously while George found himself leaning a little toward Kentucky.

Kentucky Coach Rick Pitino was a star at UMass in the 1970s and Burke in the 1950s. Both were point guards.

Tickets for the two games were sold as one for $140-$70 for each game. And they were like certificates of gold.

Burke said the demand for tickets was so great that those with them could have become wealthy on the spot. They could have sold the two-game set for as much as $3,500 and the final game for up to $1,500.

A Quincy group that went down to the Meadowlands with Burke for the Final Four included:

John Franceschini, Brian Buckley, Jeffrey LaPointe, Barry Welch, Ron Mariano, Michael Draichio and Ray Papile.

COUNCIL VOTES BOOSTS SHIPYARD AND JORDAN MARSH PROJECTS

By a unanimous vote, the City Council advanced two major projects in the city.

Its support of legislation that would make Jordan Marsh's ownership of land along the Neponset "irrevocable" gave a green light to the $18-20 million warehouse project at the former Squantum Naval Air Station. Mayor James McIntyre estimated that the project would create 1500 jobs, with an annual payroll of $12 million.

Further council action, creating a five-person industrial development financing authority, paved the way for low-interest federal tax exempt bonds for General Dynamics' expansion and modernization plans.

BRETT, MCINTYRE URGE NEW BUS ROUTE

Rep. Joseph Brett and Mayor James McIntyre urged MBTA general manager Leo Cusick to consider temporary bus crossings over the railroad tracks, during the closure and reconstruction of the Hancock St. bridge.

The bridge, near Sagamore St., was closed by the Department of Public Utilities as unsafe for vehicles over six tons.

Rep. Brett said that the Quincy Square to Fields Corner bus route was a vital link to Boston and the temporary crossing would help avoid delay and inconvenience. He noted that during the reconstruction of the Beale St. bridge a temporary crossing at Beale and Weston Ave. helped avoid congestion and delays.

Fabrizio Supports Site Plan Review Law

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

Recently, the Quincy City Council was presented with a resolve calling for the establishment of a Site Plan Review Ordinance. As a former city councillor who authorized this ordinance on two occasions, I applaud Ward 2 Councillor Dan Raymondi's efforts and support this plan.

The Site Plan Review Ordinance is the establishment of a comprehensive review process to address conditions that a particular proposal may bring to an area. Currently, there is only the building inspector's review of certain development without any public input or comprehensive review. The criteria for site plan review provides proper standards and reasonable regulation by imposing reasonable terms and conditions on allowed uses and is not a prohibition of the use.

Quincy has a limited amount of building space available and our goal for the future should be to encourage vital commercial development to increase our tax base while providing for public input and high community standards. Our city is one of the few cities or towns in the Greater Boston area that does not have a Site Plan Review process. Hopefully, this will change as Site Plan Review gives the professional planning staff and the administration the ability to review and mitigate proposed development. Site Plan Review is an important planning tool that can bring Quincy into the next century.

I hope the Planning Board reconsiders its past position on this plan and recommends positively to the City Council on this proposal.

A Word of Welcome to Shaw's Supermarkets

Now that we're neighbors, we thought it would be a good idea to let you know how pleased we are to have you open your 100th store next door to us.

You've come to what we consider a special part of the city, although we're the first to admit that we might be just a bit biased. But what would you expect? We've been in this neighborhood for 90 years. Come to think about it, Boston Gear may be doing business at the same address longer than any company in Quincy.

You'll like being here in the Wollaston and North Quincy area. You'll find your new neighbors to be good, hard-working family people who care about their community. Since many of your employees live in our community, it won't take long before you're very much at home here.

On a personal note, we watched with interest as you recycled the buildings that were once our manufacturing facility. We're very pleased with the way you transformed our old factory into a modern, attractive shopping center. Congratulations.

So take it from your neighbors at Boston Gear, you've come to the right place, and we hope you'll stay around for at least 90 years.

Bond Bill Approved By House

Reps. Ronald Mariano, Stephen Tobin and Michael Bellotti announce that the Massachusetts House of Representatives has approved a transportation development and improvement plan that authorizes approximately $3.8 billion in spending for projects throughout the state.

The monies will serve to improve the state's infrastructure, facilitate economic development and create jobs for local contractors.

"In order to maximize benefits of this measure and to allow for work to begin in the upcoming construction season, it was important to act in a timely manner. This initiative will create jobs for both small and big businesses and will provide a welcome stimulus for the Massachusetts economy," said Mariano.

Regarding the initiatives addressed by the bill, Bellotti said the spending will further develop and repair the state's commuter rail network, tunnels, bridges, marine facilities, airports and highways.

"Also included in this authorization is an appropriation which will permit the state to meet its commitment to the Central Artery Project," added Bellotti.

Of specific note to Quincy residents, Tobin pointed to a $300 million appropriation from local roadway construction.

"Under this plan, Quincy is slated to receive $2,940,105 in Chapter 90 monies which will improve public safety, convenience and access for Quincy's residents," he said.

Seventh Annual YMCA Phone-A-Thon Raises $29,135

The South Shore YMCA's seventh annual Phone-A-Thon recently raised $29,135 for its support campaign.

The phone-a-thon, held at the Quincy Mutual Fire Insurance Company, 57 Washington St., Quincy, on March 24-28 and April 1, had a goal of raising $175,000, up from 1995's goal of $165,000.

According to Staff Chair Erik Abboud, the phone-a-thon "continues to grow even after. We put in about 28 hours over eight nights with over a hundred volunteers on the phones. It was a tremendous team effort," said Eric.

All the money raised through this year's phone-a-thon will be used for the YMCA's financial assistance program helping fund scholarships for Y programs and memberships.

"Every dollar raised—100 percent—goes back into the community and the YMCA for support. We were very pleased with the response," finished Abboud.

Quincy Doctor Joins Surgical Team In Bosnia

Dr. Harold Goodman, an orthopedic and trauma surgeon who practices in Quincy, will leave for Bosnia today (Thursday) as part of a volunteer surgical team that will give specialized medical attention to children in the war-torn country.

The team's efforts are being made possible by a non-profit organization known as the MEDIC foundation. There are three other surgeons on the team—one from California, one from Texas and one from Florida—as well as Sonja Hagel, R.N., MEDIC founder and project coordinator of Los Angeles, Calif.

"The war in Bosnia may be over, but the carnage and horror that have been left behind still exists," said Hagel. "We cannot and must not ignore those who have become the 'leftovers' from a heinous war."

Dr. Goodman will be in Bosnia until April 27.

SOUTH SHORE YMCA recently raised $29,135 at its seventh annual phone-a-thon. The event was held at Quincy Mutual Fire Insurance Co., 57 Washington St., Quincy Point which donated its facilities for the fund-raiser. Crime Watch

By ROBERT HANNA
Crime Prevention Officer
Quincy Police Department

What To Do Before The Burglar Comes

Residential burglary is a national, rapidly growing, costly and potentially dangerous crime that can lead to other crimes. When your home is burglarized, you'll probably lose a radio, TV, stereo, camera or jewelry and any guns you may have. More than that you'll probably lose peace of mind and you could jeopardize the safety and welfare of your family. In most cases residential burglary is a crime of opportunity committed by young amateurs able to enter your home. You can eliminate the opportunity and minimize the chance of burglary by making your home as difficult as possible to enter. All that is needed is a little time and money to take the preventive steps recommended.

The quality of hardware and preventive measures described in this series will deter and help detect a burglar. They will increase the risk of a burglar being caught by stopping the amateur thief and slowing down the professional. The time to install this hardware and take these steps is NOW -- not after the burglary. But these steps are only effective if observed by each family member.

Don't forget that burglary prevention goes beyond good locks and household security. It is being a good neighbor and reporting to police any suspicious person or vehicle in your neighborhood.

Next Week: Securing the outside of your home.
(From the Massachusetts Neighborhood Crime Watch Commission.)

Four Residents Recognized By Blue Cross/Blue Shield

Four Quincy residents were recipients of the second annual President's Award for Team Excellence in Service Quality for their outstanding performance as a member of Blue Cross and Blue Shield's claims processing team that implemented the BlueCard program.

Kathy Skotniczny, Abby Statsky, Kim Vautor and Joyce Walorz, all of Quincy, were named winners of this prestigious award for their work in the BlueCard program, which has become the model for other Blue Cross and Blue Shield programs.

The BlueCard Program was established by the Blue Cross and Blue Shield Association in 1994 to respond to the changing needs of the insurance market.

The Association determined that subscribers and their families were receiving services more and more outside of their local service areas. To meet this demand, the Association needed to link the 73 independent BCBS plans so members of any plan could receive services in another plan's area with relative ease. The goal was to establish software and national billing formats that could be used to transmit the data among all BCBS plans.

Abigail's Crossing: 'Keeping It In Quincy'

By CHRISTIAN POTTS

Combining the atmosphere of a small Cape Cod gift shop with the selection and service of a large chain department store, Abigail's Crossing has become the place to go for customs and collectibles.

Located at 1350 Hancock Street in Quincy Square, Abigail's Crossing is becoming as well-known as Hallmark and The Christmas Tree Shops for their selection of collectibles and knickknacks. With soothing new-age music playing and the cozy appearance of the store itself, Abigail's Crossing is a collectible shopper's dream.

What sets Abigail's apart from the chain stores, however, is their Quincy link. They specialize in custom Quincy items—everything from mugs and pens to miniature wooden replicas of some of the city's most famous buildings and landmarks.

"Our most popular sellers are our 'Quincy' pieces by Cat's Meow Village," said owner and life-long Quincy resident Joanne Dondero, who runs the store with her husband Hank. "They're made by a company called The Cat's Meow. They are all wooden models of buildings and historic sites within the city."

That personal Quincy touch is what makes Abigail's a unique new member of the city's growing business community. And they are getting bigger.

The store gets its name indirectly from Abigail Adams. "We had originally wanted to call it 'Abigail's Attic,' but that sounded too much like an antique store. I came up with 'Crossing' partly because there is a crosswalk right outside our door. It all just sort of fit."

Dondero started the business on the urging of her husband, Hank. She had been thinking about it and one day mentioned it to him while walking by the location, and he told her to go for it. "I checked into the property and what it would take to get the business started, and before I knew it, it was already moving forward," said Joanne.

Because Abigail's is just one store and not part of a chain, publicity is critical. But, by offering good service and a friendly smile to all her customers, word-of-mouth has made sure that Abigail's is always busy.

"Networking is our number-one way of getting good customers. We try to make it a pleasant experience to shop here by keeping a clean store, being friendly and trying to accommodate any special requests. I've always been a people person, and I like meeting the different customers who come in.

"We've also established in-store 'Collector's Clubs' for each of the different lines we carry in the store, like Cat's Meow, Byers or Possible Dreams. We offer different sales incentives, such as buy nine pieces and get the tenth one free or purchase 10 figurines and receive a free $50 gift certificate. These are things that offer a more personal touch," explained Dondero.

Being a shopper at heart, Joanne knows that people not only want selection, but they want good service as well. "People don't want to spend a lot of time looking around. Most customers don't have a lot of time to shop around—when they go out, they want to be able to find what they want quickly. We also do special orders and some deliveries and try to help as much as we can."

Abigail's most popular sellers, the Quincy pieces by The Cat's Meow Village, are proof that Dondero knows her customers—and how to keep them happy. "We work directly with the company's artists. We take pictures of the buildings and send the photos to the company. The artists do a line drawing from the pictures, then send them to us for approval, and we send them back with any corrections they might need."

Currently, Abigail's has eight pieces in their Quincy collection, including Quincy City Hall and the Adams' houses, with six more pieces coming later this year. There are also plans to begin Milton and Braintree pieces sometime this year. "Customers love the collection. They put them on mantles, chair-rails, windows, in kitchens—anywhere. It's great."

With the growth of the business, Dondero finds that she stays quite busy. A mother of four—three daughters and a son—and active in the community, Joanne has seen Quincy "come around. Tourism is picking up and people are starting to shop here again. The city looks wonderful. It's become more 'metropolitan' and it has become a nice place to live, raise a family, and a great place to shop."

The store is playing a part in the resurgence of Quincy's shopping areas, donating pieces from its exclusive Quincy collection to auctions and organizations, and trying to draw customers away from the malls and back to Hancock Street. Abigail's will be hosting an "Open House" on April 18 from 5-8 p.m. for all new and regular customers alike. The open house will also serve as a coming-out party for two new additions to The Cat's Meow Quincy collection: Quincy and North Quincy high schools. A portion of the sales of each of these pieces will go towards a book scholarship for each of the schools.

Abigail's is one of a kind—it's the only specialty collectibles store in Quincy Square. It's distinctive country look and feel are a welcome break from department and chain stores, bringing back the era of window shopping along Hancock St. "I really try to make the window displays interesting and exciting so that customers will want to come in. You want to draw people in, and using the window displays are the best way to do that."

"I spend a lot of time here in the store, trying to make it look nice and find room for all the items we have in stock. Friends say that they've driven by the store at night and seen me in the windows setting something up. When you have a store, you want to appeal to people's senses, and the windows, music, scent and look of the store are a part of that," said Dondero.

The store truly is a labour of love for Joanne and her husband. Being in the community and meeting new people has proved just as rewarding as running a successful business. "I love it here. I love the location and the people who shop here. I really enjoy the gift business and the people I meet," finished Joanne.

Abigail's Crossing Gifts & Collectibles is open Tuesday through Saturday, 9:30 to 5:30, and stays open until 7 p.m. on Thursdays. Starting again in May, Abigail's will be open on Mondays 9:30 to 5:30 as well. During the Christmas season, Abigail's is open Thursday and Friday until 8 p.m. and Sundays. Out-of-state customers who wish to have items shipped anywhere in the U.S. should call 1-800-407-5667.

REAL ESTATE MARKET

Mass. Realtors Assn. To Present Free Real Estate Show May 4-5

The Massachusetts Association of Realtors (MAR) will present a two-day real estate show for home buyers and sellers interested in previewing residential market listings and learning more about the home purchase and selling process Saturday and Sunday, May 4-5 from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. at the Royal Plaza Trade Center, Rte. 20, Marlboro.

Designed primarily for first-time, trade-up, vacation and second home buyers, MAR's first annual "Showcase of Homes" will offer consumers the opportunity to view more than 30,000 property listings from all across the state, including many via on-line computer. Home seekers will have an opportunity to complete the mortgage pre-qualification process.

Prospective home buyers and sellers will be able to attend nearly a dozen half-hour education sessions on topics such as mortgage qualifying and alternative financing programs, home inspections and property disclosure issues, how to present an offer, make a counteroffer and negotiate contingencies; and how to select a real estate agent.

As the largest home buying and selling show of its kind in Massachusetts, MAR's Showcase of Homes will feature as many as 75 exhibits by real estate brokerage firms, mortgage lenders, home inspectors, real estate attorneys, and homeowners insurance and home warranty companies. Additionally, for the convenience of consumers, there will be a children's activity area at the show, and the exhibit area will be organized geographically by regions within the state, allowing individuals to easily locate the realtors, banks, and other real estate industry specialists who serve the community or market area they're interested in learning more about.

Admission to the Showcase of Homes is free but those planning to attend are encouraged to bring a canned good as a good-will donation to area food pantries across the Commonwealth.

For more information, call 617-890-3700.

A Model Kitchen: A Good Selling Feature

Q. Our youngest child is now in college, and we're getting ready to sell our large family home. Should we remodel the outdated kitchen or just sell it as it is?

A. In general, making improvements to a kitchen is one of the best ways to increase a home's resale value. One of the most critical points to consider is the condition of the other homes in your area. If most of the kitchens of these homes have been updated in recent years, then you may have trouble competing for buyer attention if yours doesn't meet the neighborhood standards.

What you need to determine is whether minor cosmetic changes will bring your kitchen up to neighborhood standards or whether extensive remodeling is needed. A knowledgeable real estate professional has access to the information you need to make such an important decision.

On the other hand, it's not wise to over-improve your home in an area that's not attracting buyers who expect the latest in trendy amenities. Trying to

QCAP Plans First Home Buyers Workshops

The Quincy Community Action Programs, Inc., an approved first time homebuyer counseling agency, will hold a series of First Time Homebuyer Workshops. They will begin April 30 and continue May 2, 7 and 9 from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. at the Braintree Town Hall off of Washington St., Braintree.

Attendance at all four workshops is mandatory in order to qualify for the different mortgage options through the Mass Housing Finance Agency and other financing options.

The agenda will be comprehensive and individualized. Focus will be on different aspects of the homebuying process; including how to locate a property within your budget, how to make an offer and the types of financing best suited to your needs.

Advanced registration is required and space is limited. A fee of $30 for all four sessions covers the cost of the workshop text and all copied materials.

For more information and registration forms, call Debbie Kidd, Housing Specialist, 479-8181, ext. 115.

The workshop is sponsored by the City of Quincy and EOCD.

Conway 'Spring Sell-A-Bration' Continues Through May 5

Nearly 200 homeowners from Boston to Cape Cod are putting out their welcome mats for Jack Conway & Co.'s annual "Spring Sell-A-Bration" open house weekends.

This year, the company is holding open houses each weekend through May 4-5, with the exception of Easter weekend. Each "Spring Sell-A-Bration" weekend will feature open houses in a different geographic area served by Conway, allowing house hunters to visit as many homes in one area as possible.

"Spring is traditionally house-hunting time, and our 'Spring Sell-A-Bration' makes it easy to find your dream home," said Chairman Jack Conway. "With so many homes open for inspection, buyers can visit dozens of homes in one weekend without having to make appointments."

In addition to possibly finding their dream home, Conway added, each person who attends a Conway open house during the "Spring Sell-A-Bration" will be eligible to win an overnight getaway for two to Boston's Le Meridien Hotel.

Display advertisements announcing the dates, times and locations of the "Spring Sell-A-Bration" open houses will be published in local newspapers through May 5.

"Last year's open house event was a great success for both buyers and sellers," Conway said. "Approximately 30 houses went under agreement directly as a result of the open houses, and we're predicting an even more successful event for 1996."

Jack Conway & Co. is one of the largest real estate companies in Massachusetts, with more than 600 agents from Boston to Cape Cod. For more information, call 871-0080.

Assisting the QCBPA and Quincy 2000 in the implementation of the comprehensive master development plan scheduled to be unveiled this summer.

Participation in national and regional trade shows for the development of urban centers.

Quincy 2000 will pay 80 percent of the manager's salary and the QCBPA will fund the other 20 percent, although the latter will contribute no more than $9,000 per year, as stipulated by a vote of the QCBPA Board of Directors Tuesday. Flynn said the manager will be hired for a two-year position for an annual salary of approximately $40,000.

Mannarino said after the position is advertised, an advisory committee comprised of three Quincy 2000 officials and three QCBPA members will select about 10 candidates to be interviewed. Quincy 2000 will be represented by Thomas Galvin of Boston Gear, Michael Kenealy of Key Realty and Robert Curry of Curry Hardware, while the QCBPA members serving on the committee will include Flynn, Charles Ryder of Ryder's Curtain and Drapery Store and QCBPA Executive Director Maralin Manning.

Mannarino said the person selected for the position will be the unanimous choice of himself, the advisory committee, the executive committee of Quincy 2000, and others.

Citizens Bank Donates $10,000 To Quincy 2000

John O'Connor, regional president of Citizens Bank of Massachusetts, recently presented The Quincy 2000 Corporation with a check for $10,000.

Quincy 2000 is an economic development corporation dedicated to promoting Quincy and enhancing the city's position as an attractive investment for existing and prospective businesses.

"Quincy 2000 is committed to creating an economic climate that attracts businesses to the city," said Joseph Mannarino, executive director of Quincy 2000. "Citizens Bank has been a leading partner in our efforts to place Quincy among the best small cities in the Northeast."

O'Connor added, "Quincy 2000 is a unique and effective public and private partnership. Our pledge to Quincy 2000 not only includes the contribution of funds, but the commitment of time and expertise of our employees as well."

Citizens Bank is also a member of the Quincy 2000 loan pool, which provides capital to new and established businesses in the city. Citizens is one of 11 participating banks which have committed nearly $6 million to the pool.

"The Quincy 2000 loan pool is perhaps the most effective community-lending vehicle that I have ever seen. Driven through the leadership of local bankers, we have an efficient mechanism for placing working capital in the community," said Mannarino.

that "I will continue to speak and act the same when it comes to the issue of taxes in Massachusetts."

When asked by The Sun about what plans—if any—he and the state of Massachusetts had for the Fore River Shipyard, Weld said the state would "be working with MARAD [the U.S. Department of Maritime Administration], Massachusetts Water Resources Authority and other agencies to help get it off the ground.

"We've been disappointed in the past, and I hope this goes through. We're very supportive of this effort. There is a worldwide need for shipbuilders, and it can help boost the economy, not to mention make Quincy a major player in the world shipbuilding market," the governor said.

Weld chose to appear at Bibb's mainly because the owner of the Mobil station, Bill Marsters, is a friend of former Quincy Mayor Francis McCauley. He is scheduled to make similar appearances at service stations in Brockton and Lowell as well held with officials from Curry College in Milton and that several other institutions, including Eastern Nazarene College in Wollaston and the University of Massachusetts and Suffolk University, both in Boston, are under consideration.

College Proposal Would Enable QC Students To Earn 4-Year Degrees

Regarding the need for more classroom space, Ryan said it is an issue that needs to be dealt with right away.

Ryan noted that by "redistributing" current space at the college, he hopes to have five additional classrooms by this fall. The extra space would be made possible by a three-pronged plan of what he termed "musical chairs" and would include the following:

•Moving the admissions office from the old Victorian home on the college campus to its Coddington Street building.

•Moving several administrative offices from Saville Hall to Coddington.

•Moving the college's library next door to the Quincy Center for Technical Education (CTE).

The end result of the moves—which have not been finalized and are being discussed with School Supt. Eugene Creedon and other officials—would be space for about five new classrooms, Ryan said.

"It's our hope to eventually make Saville a purely academic building," he said. "We want to put the students first."

Ryan said next year, he hopes to add five more classrooms on top of the five that open up this fall. Plans for those rooms have not been finalized, he noted, and may require looking at other sites downtown for more space.

Ryan added that Quincy College officials will design a "strategic planning process" for the future over the summer and that details will be shared with downtown business representatives in the fall. He said it is important that Quincy Center merchants voice their opinions over what the institution should and should not do in the months and years to come.

"It's our commitment to be a downtown institution," said Ryan.

USS Salem Museum Volunteer Informational Meeting April 13

The U.S. Naval and Shipbuilding Museum Volunteer Association will hold an informational meeting on Saturday, April 13 at 6 p.m. aboard the USS Salem at the Fore River Shipyard in Quincy for active volunteers and all others interested in volunteering.

The purpose of the meeting is to give present and prospective volunteers an overview of the work to be done on the Salem during the spring and summer.

Association president James J. Cousin Sr. and operations director Thomas J. Laliberte will preside at the meeting, and will introduce the Association's operations committee, the division chiefs responsible for coordinating volunteer work in the Salem's ongoing restoration and in conducting tours and other activities.

Cousin and Laliberte have also invited the Museum's executive director, William MacMullen; operations director Kathleen Devine; and chief engineer John Mahoney to outline their priorities for volunteer endeavors. Cousin and Laliberte will also talk about the Volunteer Association's origins and plans, and hope to receive feedback from the volunteers at the meeting.

The U.S. Naval and Shipbuilding Museum Volunteer Association was formed in September 1995 to coordinate, recognize, and recruit volunteers for the Salem's ongoing restoration, maintenance, and tours.

The USS Salem, a heavy cruiser, is the former flagship of the U.S. Sixth Fleet. It was built at the Fore River Shipyard and was launched in 1949. On May 14, 1995, it was opened to the public in a ceremony commissioning it as a living history museum.

The Museum's plans call for the Salem to participate in the USS Constitution's bicentennial in 1997. The Museum will also eventually house the military archives of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

•Granted a one day beer and wine license to South Shore Habitat for Humanity for a charitable auction to be held May 11 from 7 p.m. to 12 midnight at the Atrium Lobby at Presidents Place, Quincy Center. Board members advised David Bigley to seek the help of vendors in a cookout for volunteers and sponsors will be held at Pageant Field, 100 Southern Artery, at noon.

"We have come a long way in seven years, but we must continue our efforts to keep Quincy beautiful," said Wheelwright. "Without the hundreds of volunteers, donations of various supplies from the business sector, the cooperation of the mayor, city councillors and city departments, we could not accomplish our goal of a Cleaner-Greener Quincy. Therefore, we urge all citizens to lend a helping hand in making Quincy a better place for all."

Part Of Dana-Farber Challenge These Residents Are Running For Someone Else

By CHRISTIAN POTTS

On Monday, April 15, some 7000 runners will descend upon Boston for the 100th running of the Boston Marathon. Some will be running for glory; others for a sense of accomplishment. But for three Quincy residents, the Marathon will be run for someone else.

Nancy Pujalte, Charlotte Cuneo and J.J. Lerner are running the Boston Marathon as part of the Dana-Farber Marathon Challenge. Sponsored by the Dana-Farber Cancer Institute in Boston, the Challenge is now in its seventh year. Four hundred Challenge runners will try to raise $1 million in pledges for the Claudia Adams Barr Program in Cancer Research, which plays a critical role in advancing cancer research.

When the Challenge began in 1987, there were 19 runners. Now there are 400 runners (up from last year's 350) seeking to top 1995's pledge total of $960,000. The Boston Athletic Association (BAA) provides the Challenge with a limited number of "invitational" entries that waive the time qualifications that runners must normally make. Of the 400 Challenge runners, 75 are from Massachusetts.

Pujalte, 27, a sales assistant at Merrill Lynch in Boston, is participating in the Challenge for the second time. In 1994, she raised $2500 in pledges for the Challenge. "I first became interested in 1994," said Nancy. "I'm a member of the Boston Athletic Club, and some of the other members run in the Challenge as well, so I joined them."

This year, Nancy received her entry in a lottery because of the huge interest in the 100th Marathon. "I called the Marathon Challenge Hotline and was put in a lottery with a lot of other runners. I was thrilled when I got a bid."

"I've always wanted to run Boston, and this [the Challenge] just gives me more inspiration. The kids have such an unbelievable fight, and seeing their courage and smiles...I just can't explain what that makes me feel," said Nancy.

Runners have the option of sponsoring a child or a family member fighting cancer, or running in memory of someone who died of cancer. Although she didn't have time to commit to sponsoring a child, Nancy has managed to raise close to $1500 already. "There's a patient partner program where you meet a child with cancer and get to know them, but I didn't have enough time for something like that and it would have been unfair to sign up for it and then not spend time with the patient."

For Charlotte Cuneo, 43, participation in the Challenge gives her a way to honor her father, who succumbed to cancer in 1982. "I've been affected by this disease, and this is a chance to run in my father's memory while raising money to help people who have cancer," said Charlotte, who works in the Cardiac Rehabilitation Unit at South Shore Hospital.

An avid runner (she is a member of the L Street Running Club in South Boston), Cuneo has been training since December. "I've run through snow, rain, high winds—everything. Last winter was real mild, but not this year. Still, it was kind of fun to do," she said.

A self-described "emotionally and physically addicted runner," Charlotte has run the Boston Marathon once before in 1992, and she believes that running has all sorts of benefits. "It makes you feel good; you eat better, lose weight, and meet people in running clubs. I go to a running camp in Newport, R.I. during the summer that is like a vacation, but it's also instruction."

So if running makes Charlotte feel much better about herself, she wants to help others feel good by running as well. "I've raised over $1200 [in pledges] so far, and I'll probably raise a lot more. It's an exciting thing to be a part of. It's the 100th running, there's people coming from all over, and it's an historic event."

"Plus it's also a way for me to honor my father by helping other people with cancer. This is a disease that I have seen and I've been affected by it, so I can help find a cure for it by doing something I love to do, then all the better," finished Charlotte.

For more information on the Dana-Farber Marathon Challenge, call the DFMC Office at (617) 259-8881.

Rotary, Feenan Roll In 12-Under Soccer

The Quincy Youth Soccer 12 & under co-ed league kicked off their spring season recently with three games.

In the first game, Quincy Rotary blanked Bank of Boston 3-0. Will Henderson, Brian Papile and David Armstrong all scored goals for Rotary.

Walter Perry, Dan Hooker and Kristen Clarke

all played well in the loss for Bank of Boston.

Flavin & Flavin Insurance topped the Quincy Sun 3-2 behind goals by John Norton, Michael DeAngelo and James McQuinn.

The Sun's goals were scored by Andy Ross and Jessica Smialek.

The Quincy Sons of Italy and Century Bank

'Biggest Thing I've Ever Been Part Of' Siciliano Expecting A Long, Exciting Boston Marathon

By CHRISTIAN POTTS

You've heard about the Olympic and world-class runners in the 100th Boston Marathon. About the streets being closed off, the 40,000 (or more) "bandit" runners that will sneak on without numbers, and the projected 1.5 million spectators along the 26.2-mile route.

What you probably haven't heard about, though, is who will be responsible for making sure those world-class runners aren't disturbed, that the streets are closed off and traffic re-routed, and that nobody gets hurt; basically, who will be responsible for making this thing a go.

Tony Siciliano, the president of the Massachusetts Emergency Management Association and the Mass. Police Auxiliary, is that person. He's been working in concert with other state and local agencies to ensure that the Marathon is every bit as successful as it promises to be.

"This is definitely the biggest thing I have ever been a part of," said Tony. "I worked on the Tall Ships, the Pope's visit—this is by far the biggest. There hasn't been anything like this that I can remember in my 27 years."

How big? Consider this: At last year's Marathon, No. 99, there were 150 port-a-johns brought in for the spectators; this year, that number has nearly tripled to 400. According to Tony, increases like that run across the board.

"Compared to past marathons, this is probably 100 times bigger. They [the Boston Athletic Association, who run the marathon] are expecting 38-39,000 registered runners, and probably about 40,000 bandits. That means approximately 350-400 people crossing the starting- and finish-line per minute," said Tony.

And all those people will need water, ice and, most likely, medical attention of one form or another. Emergency Medical Service personnel from all over Massachusetts and New England will along the route in the event something should happen. Siciliano has the unenviable task of coordinating those personnel—along with 60 police and auxiliary units—from a command center at Hopkinton.

"There will be over 500 auxiliary officers between Hopkinton and Boston, and they will all be reporting in to the command center, along with the EMS units and state police units. There's a total of about 10,000 personnel between the emergency, police and volunteer units," said Tony.

It would seem to be a logistical nightmare. Not quite, however. Siciliano has been working with the Hopkington police, Mass. State Police, Mass. National Guard, the police auxiliary, the Emergency Management Association (EMA) and the Department of Public Safety for nearly two years in preparation for the historic running, and nothing has been left to chance. He hasn't been alone in this daunting task, however. "We [state and local agencies] owe a tremendous amount of thanks to Amy Dominici, who handles public relations for the Department of Public Safety. She has really done a great job of keeping everyone coordinated."

"We've been meeting and planning since 1994, because we knew that this would be big. We have all the different radio frequencies of the EMS, police and auxiliary units programmed into the command center, so we will know exactly who is checking in and where they are in case of emergency. And the EMA will be fully-activated and staffed for any situation; I can't recall any time when we were doing that," said Siciliano.

In addition, the Enhanced 911 system (E-911) will be used along the marathon route in case of any emergency. "We are using the E-911 system in case of overflow or emergency calls," explained Michael Mancini, the Director of Information Technology and Telecommunications for Boston EMS. "It allows to make sure that should something happen, we can redeploy auxiliary and emergency units as necessary. It basically insures the integrity of emergency communications along the Marathon route."

With the streets closed off because of the expected crowds, emergency preparations had to be creative. This year, there will be three medical tents, up from the usual one in other years, not to mention 24 water stops, 26 Red Cross centers, and some 1,200 medical personnel along the route. The towns along the route will be using their own EMS personnel, and they will be supplemented by auxiliary units who will move in and out of the route.

And since police cruisers and ambulances will be useless, bicycles will be the favorite mode of transportation. Some will even be equipped with medical equipment. "I have about eight high school students and other volunteers from my staff here in Quincy that will be cruising the route on bikes to assist in any situations," said Siciliano.

Tony plans on arriving in Hopkinton by 8 a.m. Sunday to coordinate the auxiliary units and arriving medical personnel. And he says he'll be up by 3 a.m. on race day to prepare for the arrival of the over 800 busloads of runners.

"It's going to be a long day, but I'm excited. There's nothing like being at the starting line when those runners start; it's an adrenaline rush to see them line up."

"This is my 21st marathon, and I still get that rush when it starts. It's the most exciting place to be, and this year, it's even better. I get swept up the feeling and excitement. Everybody has worked hard, and we're definitely prepared," finished Tony.

SCOTT DEWARE

A Thought For The Week

Some of the world's most talented people have never been paid a cent. They are called volunteers. They take time from their work, their leisure, their home-life to volunteer their talents and their energies. Volunteerism is in the spotlight this week. It is the time to publicly thank them for their work and let them know that it is valuable and important to us. This week is the time to make an effort to look around the see who is doing what, to help out... Look at the nursing homes and hospitals and you'll see men and women finding time to visit with the residents and help the staff... Look at the schools and you'll see people who serve on committees, who donate materials, who help raise funds all for the love of doing... Look at the churches and you'll see people who give their time to sing in the choir and work on committees... You'll see people who deeply care about their community and want to work to make it better, honor it and tell others about it.

When asked why they volunteer, the popular reason heard will be, "Because I care, I want to help."... We ask that our readers join us in saluting the volunteers in our community... Let us show them that because they care, we care about them!...

$2.9 Million For City Road, Bridge Work

The city will receive more than $2.9 million for work on its roadways and bridges as a result of new state legislation.

The Massachusetts Senate has passed a $4.1 billion bond authorization for the Commonwealth's roads, bridges, mass transit systems, regional airports, waterways and other transportation projects.

The legislation includes federal contributions of $1.5 billion and a state contribution of $2.6 billion.

"Transportation Bond Issue will provide the resources and direction to meet the Commonwealth's 21st century transportation and Clean Air Act goals," said Sen. Michael Morrissey of Quincy.

Locally, Morrissey successfully advocated for language directing $15 million for a study of access and road improvements leading to the South Weymouth Naval Air Station, $1.5 million for reconstruction of Union Street in Rockland, money to upgrade traffic control devices in Holbrook, funds to reimburse Braintree for traffic signal installation, and financial assistance to Quincy for the reconstruction of Highfield Street. He pledges to continue the fight to include these funds in the final Conference Committee version.

The legislation includes a $300 million authorization for the Chapter 90 program, which provides reimbursement for projects conducted and developed at the local level. The formula distribution of the funds will provide Quincy with $2,940,105 for the construction and reconstruction of local roads and bridges.

"Responding to the priorities and concerns of municipalities is one of the state's primary responsibilities," said Morrissey. "Chapter 90 funding represents only one of the ways in which Legislature grants local aid to out cities and towns. The flexibility of the program enables projects to be determined at the local level, but funded by the state."

Morrissey praised the range of authorizations in the legislation and expressed confidence with the overall framework of the legislation.

"This legislation benefits citizens of the Commonwealth, in general, and the constituents that I represent," he said.

The Transportation Bond Issue will now be sent to a Conference Committee for the development of a single bill to be approved by the House and Senate and then submitted to the Governor.

Special Panel Makes Recommendations

65-Point Plan To Combat Alcohol Abuse

By MICHAEL WHALEN

MAYOR JAMES SHEETS (center) receives report completed by a special mayoral panel that includes 65 recommendations for combating the problem of alcohol abuse in the city from Rev. Sheldon Bennett, panel chairman. At left is Steve Ward of Impact Quincy which has played a major part in the effort to address the issue.

Delahunt Expects Diaz Returned In 6-10 Weeks

Norfolk County District Attorney William Delahunt said Tuesday he hopes to have a man accused of killing a 25-year-old Quincy woman back in Massachusetts to stand trial in six to 10 weeks.

Former Cape Cod resident John A. "Tony" Diaz, the accused killer of Dawn

Brown of North Quincy, is fighting deportation from Guyana where he was arrested last month. He has hired a prominent Guyanese attorney to assist him in the matter.

Local authorities are working to have Diaz brought back from Guyana where he will face of charge of first-degree murder. He could receive a sentence of life without parole if found guilty of the July 10, 1993 shooting death of Brown, a 1985 graduate of North Quincy High School and a nursing student.

Delahunt said Tuesday (Cont'd on page 8)

A special mayoral panel of community leaders has completed a report that includes 65 recommendations on how to combat the problem of alcohol abuse in the city.

The report, which addresses seven areas--prevention, education and training; intervention, treatment and follow-up; alcohol-free activities, identification and referral, reporting mechanisms, policy analysis and development, and enforcement--was released at a press conference Tuesday at City Hall.

The full report appears in a special section appearing on Pages 15-18 of this week's issue of The Quincy Sun. Among its recommendations:

- Development of an ongoing community education campaign on alcohol abuse with both short-term and long-term goals to foster a climate of community support.

- Scheduling of neighborhood forums to be facilitated by ward councillors with an aim towards better understanding of problems of alcohol abuse and how to address them.

- Establishment of a centralized site for intervention and referral services information.

- Increased alcohol-free activities for residents of all ages.

Many of the recommendations involve cooperation between the panel created by Mayor James Sheets and various city departments, churches, social service agencies and community members.

TEXT OF COMPLETE REPORT STARTS

Sheets said at the press conference he is pleased with the panel's work, which he called a "most meaningful, compassionate and sensitive effort."

"Alcohol and other substance abuse is having a very detrimental effect on the families of our communities," he said. "The deterioration of the family has resulted in an erosion of those values that help keep our communities together."

The mayor also noted that because alcoholism is primarily a problem that affects families, he foresees his Commission on the Family, which is headed by School Committee-woman Linda Stice, as playing "a very centralized role" in the city's future battle against alcohol abuse.

Sheets added that he will send the panel's report to the City Council and city department heads for their support. In the future, he added, he plans to ask the council for an appropriation of $25,000 to help combat the problem of alcoholism.

Sheets said he wants to convene a group of Quincy service providers that will focus on the coordination and communication aspects of the effort. In addition, he will have the Commission on the Family hold a "citywide conference on alcohol" that will likely take place following a senior citizens conference scheduled for September.

Also speaking at the press conference were several members of the panel, which met last fall at City Hall. Statistics revealed at the Nov. 30 hearing by the Alcohol Action Group (AAG)--an alliance of community members and organizations coordinated by Impact Quincy--showed that alcohol abuse is a serious problem both nationwide and the city and affects

Will Mark 50th Anniversary April 26

QHA Has Grown From 20 To 2,600 Units

By MICHAEL WHALEN

The Quincy Housing Authority, which will mark its 50th anniversary with a special celebration Friday, April 26 at Lantana in Randolph, has changed considerably over the years.

But the evolution of the authority can be summarized by QHA Executive Director John "Jake" Comer in only five words. "It's gotten bigger and better," he says.

The QHA—organized in April 1946 by a City Council vote under Chapter 121 of the Massachusetts General Laws—has grown from an authority which initially controlled 20 housing units in Quincy Point to one that now oversees about 2,600 units in 15 sites throughout the city.

Likewise, the authority's headquarters has moved from City Hall to the former Sailors' Snug Harbor Home to Sawyer Towers at 95 Martensen St. to its current home at Tobin Towers, 80 Clay St., Wollaston.

But although the authority has changed, its mission has not, Comer noted. "It's all about providing safe and sanitary housing for those who need and deserve it," he said. "The authority took the city, which began offering public housing in 1943, out of the business of collecting rents."

Comer said the QHA began by operating about 20 units in the Point's Cleverly Court/Pond Street area for returning World War II veterans. It added Westacres, one of its best-known sites located at Sullivan Road and West Street, a couple of years later.

In 1950, the authority made David J. Crowley Court in Germantown, named after a former Ward 1 city councillor Comer refers to as "the father of public housing at the time," its first elderly complex. And the QHA continued to grow at a steady pace over the years.

Today, the authority—which is guided and controlled by two agencies, the state Executive Office of Communities and Development (for state projects) and the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (for federal projects)—has an annual operating budget that falls between $3 million and $4 million, according to Comer. He added that $1.2 million of that comes from the rent charged to the authority's 6,500 tenants, while 55 percent of the rest is supplied by the federal government and 45 percent by the state.

The QHA pays its 74 employees an annual total of about $1 million in salaries, Comer noted. The rest of its budget is used for operational and other costs.

On top of the operating budget, he said, the QHA receives additional subsidy monies from the state and federal governments and is able to annually put $9.3 million back into the community as a result. Most of that ($7.1 million), he noted, is paid to landlords on the authority's leased housing programs.

Comer added that the authority now has seven elderly complexes, three family complexes, three homes for the severely handicapped, one single-family home and one two-family home. Some of the facilities were federal projects, while others were built by the state.

Comer's job is to administer the policy set by the QHA's five-person

Board of Commissioners, four of whom are appointed by the mayor and one by the governor. The executive director is appointed by the board to a five-year contract which is renewed or terminated at the board's discretion.

The director is also the only member of the staff under contract. Comer noted that other employees, such as Assistant Director Jackie Loud, are board-appointed but receive tenure at some point.

Both Comer and Loud began their service for the authority in 1982.

"No two work (together) better," said Comer. "And the commissioners have pretty much given us free rein. We've had great support from the commissioners, from the city, and from the state and federal governments."

Comer said he is proud of the work he, Loud, and the rest of the "great staff" at the housing authority have accomplished in the past 13 years. First and foremost, he said, is the quality of the housing provided to the tenants, who pay 30 percent of their monthly income for rent.

The QHA receives rent amounts ranging from $25 for completely disabled veterans (who receive priority treatment from the authority under current laws) to $1,400, Comer

Damage Estimate At $100,000 HoJo Factory Blaze Under Investigation

By CHRISTIAN POTTS
A four-alarm blaze at the former Howard Johnson Candy Factory on Newport Ave. Tuesday morning may have been set, according to Fire Chief Thomas Gorman.

The cause of the fire, which was called in to the Quincy Fire Department at 11:38 a.m., is being investigated, although Gorman said early signs are that "the fire was set. We don't know if it was intentional or accidental, but we believe it was set," said the chief.

The four-alarm blaze began in the third floor of the building, which has been up for sale for over a year. Capt. Jeff Starr, the first to arrive on the scene, called in the alarms after quickly surveying the building. All told, eight engine companies—as well as two ladder companies from Boston—were called to the fire.

Firefighters were able to place a "water curtain" over the adjacent St. Ann's School building to prevent and damage or spreading by the fire. "Thank God that the kids are on vacation this week, or we may have had a bad situation," said Gorman.

The chief estimated fire damage at approximately $100,000, mostly because of the extensive damage to the third floor and roof.

"The third floor received heavy damage, both structurally and from the heat, and the rest of the building has water damage. We were able to quickly confine the fire to the third floor after about a half-hour. We did a search for anyone inside, but the building was empty, thankfully," said Gorman.

Firefighters investigated the scene for any flammable liquids, but have not yet turned any up, leading to the belief that the fire was indeed set. "There really wasn't anything up there [on the third floor] that could have sparked it. Whether it was a homeless person or an accident or whatever, we still don't know," concluded Gorman.

Fire investigators will try to determine the fire's point of origin and the exact cause in the coming weeks, said Gorman.

FOUR-ALARM FIRE caused heavy damage to the former Howard Johnson Candy Factory on Newport Ave. in Quincy Tuesday morning. Boston fire departments assisted Quincy at the scene, providing a ladder truck to put a water curtain over the adjacent St. Ann's School building.

Sheets Sees $2.5-3M FY97 Budget Hike

Mayor James Sheets is predicting that his Fiscal Year 1997 municipal budget will be $2.5 million to $3 million larger than last year's $135,789,646 budget passed by the City Council.

Sheets, who is in the process of putting together the new budget, said he foresees an increase of 2 to 3 percent, which could result in an increase as high as $3 million. He would not go into specifics, but said the budget should be completed in about two weeks.

The City Council, which has the power to cut Sheets' proposed budget but cannot add to it, must pass a final budget before July 1, the start of the new fiscal year.

Planning Board Recommends Marina Court Condo Proposal

The Quincy Planning Board has voted to recommend to the City Council that it grant a special permit to Thorndike Development for the building of a condominium community at Marina Bay.

The plan, entitled Marina Court, would feature 268 homes and eventually contribute approximately $700,000 annually in property tax revenues to Quincy, proponents said.

"As the details and benefits of this project become clear, people are getting more excited about Marina Court," said Lloyd Geisinger, managing partner of Thorndike Development. "I think most everyone involved understands we want to work in a co-operative effort with the city. And as we continue to meet with residents and officials, I'm confident the few remaining concerns will be replaced by an even greater eagerness for Marina Court to move ahead."

In 1986, the Marina Court was part of a lot slated for the construction of 525 units, comprised of buildings limited to six stories. This would have completed the residential component envisioned for the Marina Bay community.

However, only 125 units were built, leaving a space of 19.7 acres, retitled as Lot 37. Last April, Thorndike Development placed Lot 37 under contract with the intent to build Marina Court, effectively completing the Marina Bay residential concept.

Sensitive to concerns of congestion by some Marina Bay residents, 330 homes were proposed in the initial Marina Court plan, far short of the remaining 400, which could have been built under the original special permit terms. Two and three-story structures—instead of the original developer's plan of two to five-story buildings—were also planned in

Week Of The Young Child Begins April 22

Mayor James Sheets will officially kick off the festivities for this year's Week of the Young Child Monday, April 22 at 9 a.m. The Head Start program at Snug Harbor Community School, 333 Palmer St., will be this year's host.

The mayor will greet parents, children and teachers for a continental breakfast, story time and music program. Invited dignitaries will see firsthand how high-quality early childhood services are meeting the needs of young children and their families in Quincy.

This year's Week of the Young Child theme is "The Early Years...Make Them Count!". The week is a time to reflect on how well children's experiences in Quincy are preparing them to take advantage of their educational opportunities and to become citizens, workers and parents, and to develop specific strategies for improving the quality of life for young children in our community.

Other activities through the week, sponsored locally by the Quincy Early Childhood Advisory Council, will include parent workshops, children's activities, and professional recognition.

A calendar of event is available at all public schools, private daycare centers, preschool programs and children service organizations.

For more information, call Jeanne Satterlund at 472-2960 or Nancy Harvey at 984-8777.

Council Hearings April 22 On Hospital, PUD Permit

The City Council will hold two public hearings Monday, April 22 in the Council Chambers at City Hall, 1305 Hancock St., Quincy Center.

The first hearing at 6 p.m. will concern the proposed merger of Quincy Hospital and Carney Hospital in Dorchester.

The second hearing at 7 p.m. will be for review and discussion of the Planned

Unit Development (PUD) special permit granted in 1994 for the Granite Crossing shopping center. The Quincy Point mall includes the recently-opened Roche Bros. Supermarket and a Wal-Mart store scheduled to open this fall.

All interested residents are encouraged to attend.

Once A Quincyite . . .

Once a Quincyite, they say, always a Quincyite. Those of us who were lucky enough to grow up in Quincy remain a Quincyite forever regardless of where life takes us.

I was reminded of this the other day while checking on out-of-state mail subscriptions to The Sun.

I counted over 360--most of them former Quincy residents--in 38 states who are receiving The Sun weekly by mail. From Maine to Hawaii. To them, some of them tell us, "it is like receiving a letter from home."

There is also one reader in the military getting the paper in Okinawa.

In addition to the out-of-staters, there are several hundred other former Quincy residents scattered through the South Shore who get The Sun to keep up on what's going on in their hometown. Though they don't live here anymore, they remain here in heart.

As you have probably guessed, most of the out-of-staters are in Florida: 113 of them. Runner-up is California with 40. (The weather may have something to do with that).

Next come New York with 23 former Quincy residents and New Hampshire with 21. They are followed by Connecticut, 15; Pennsylvania, 13; Illinois and Virginia, 12 each; Maine and Texas, 10 each and Arizona, 9.

The remainder are scattered thusly: North Carolina, Georgia and Oregon, 6 each; Vermont, Alabama, Ohio and Rhode Island, 5 each; New Jersey, Hawaii, Kansas and Washington, 4 each; South Carolina and Kentucky, 3 each; Tennessee, Minnesota, two each; Indiana, Iowa, Wisconsin, South Dakota, North Dakota, Missouri, Nebraska, Louisiana and Nevada, one each.

While most of us who grew up here stay here or close by, many move out of the area for one reason or another but never forget their roots.

The late award winning actress Ruth Gordon, one of Quincy's most famous daughters, received The Sun by mail at her New York City apartment and really read it closely.

She didn't miss much. We got to be good friends and whenever she called to say hello, she would mention something like: "Well, I see your (The Sun) hockey team got beat by Burgin Platner."

When she died in 1985 her husband playwright Garson Kanin told me: You were her Quincy connection."

At renewal time, we sometimes get a note from out-of-state subscribers. One of our favorite ones came from Paul F. Judge in Berlin, Md.:

"Thanks for being a great weekly newspaper. Thanks for keeping me in touch with my beloved hometown."

That kind of sums it up. □

CITY CLERK Joseph Shea is assembling photographs of various city councils to be hung in the city council chamber.

One of them is the very first council of 1888-89. That one had 24 members. Imagine how long those meetings took.

There is one of the 1913 council the year Quincy celebrated its 25th anniversary as a city. Joseph Whiton was president of that council and went on to become mayor.

There is also the 1925 council which produced three future mayors: Charles Ross, who was council president; Thomas Burgin and Thomas McGrath.

The 1970-71 council photo shows two future mayors: Arthur Tobin, president, and Walter Hannon. And a future Norfolk County sheriff: Clifford Marshall.

These and photos of other councils will take their place on the walls in the council chamber. Including a handsome layout of the present council done by Mike and Diane Ryan of Fine Light photography. □

FR. PETER QUINN, pastor of St. John's Church, is a patient at Carney Hospital with painful lower back problems. And anyone who has ever had that experience can readily sympathize with him. A speedy and full recovery, Father. □

MILESTONE: Fire Lt. William Phelan and his wife, Mary, the always friendly secretary-receptionist in Mayor James Sheets' office, are proud grandparents for the first time. Daughter, Christine, and husband, Charles Phillips of Braintree, presented them with Jessica Alise, who made her debut at 9 pounds April 11 at South Shore Hospital. Jessica is also the first grandchild of Paul and Rosemary Phillips of Tarayton, N.Y. Congratulations, all. □

THIS IS A 1930 POSTCARD showing the Stony Brae Golf Course clubhouse on the top of Forbes Hill in Wollaston. Now known as the Furnace Brook Golf Club, the course originally had 18 holes and was bisected by Furnace Brook Parkway. Today's 9 hole course was created when the portion south of the Parkway was sold and developed into house lots in the early 1950's. The area is now the neighborhood of Puritan and Joan Drives. This postcard was one of a series on Quincy published by Howard Johnson and sold from his store on Beale Street in Wollaston.

Let's Not Erase Public Education

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

Both of my parents were Catholic school educated, but I am not. My first nine years have been experienced in the Quincy Public Schools.

It was a conscious choice by my parents. It was a vote of confidence in public education; confidence that is being challenged and undermined by those who least understand public school education, who see it from a distance, see its failures and not its successes.

I become more and more confused by what I read about what Gov. Weld wants to do in the area of education. He seems to be making contradictory proposals.

Although newspaper articles report that the fiscal 1997 budget would fully fund the 1993 Education Reform Act, his recent proposals would turn it upside down.

A recent article in the newspaper stated that the governor proposes to get rid of locally elected school committees, dispose of the current system of teacher certification, allow unlimited movement of students—bringing the students tax money with them as tuition, change the state constitution to permit taxpayers' dollars to go to parochial schools, and allow without limits the establishment of new charter schools, free of almost all state rules that public schools abide by.

What is really disturbing to me is that the governor, as the state's chief executive, should be leading the way to improve upon public education. He seems to want to take the "public" out of "public education," as he stated recently when proposing an increase in charter schools, "If the public schools can't stand up to the competition, let's just get rid of public schools and replace them all with charter schools."

I feel that my education in the public schools has been a wonderfully rewarding experience. The teachers are very dedicated to what they do. They help guide you in whatever you do. We need to celebrate the things that are good and work to improve the things that aren't. I also fear that money is being drained from the local public schools to fund charter schools along with more and more money being spent on special education, which is also draining local school budgets.

Unless we address these problems together, I think that the future of public education may be in danger. Let's not erase public education.

Letter Carriers Food Drive May 11

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

It's hard to imagine that while we're celebrating the summer excursions to the countryside and trying our hand at water sports, summer is clearly the time of greatest need for the hungry of eastern Massachusetts. It's especially true for children.

Children account for one-third of eastern Massachusetts' hungry population, and during the summer they cannot rely on breakfast or lunch programs.

To address this greatly underpublicized need, the National Association of Letter Carriers (NALC), in conjunction with the U.S. Postal Service, the AFL-

CIO and the United Way of America, are joining with local emergency food providers across the nation in the 1996 Letter Carriers Food Drive on May 11. Last year, 44 million pounds of food was collected and delivered nationally in one day. Last year, NALC Boston Branch 34 collected 710,609 pounds of food.

For more information, please contact the Employee Involvement Office at 617-269-8140 or 617-654-5618 so that we could arrange for you to accompany a letter carrier in your community and experience first-hand this unique program in action. Helping to publicize this program will substantially contribute to the challenge to collect the tons of food necessary to stop summer-time hunger.

New NQHS Cost At $24 Million

By PAUL HAROLD

At a special meeting at Atlantic Junior High School, requested Councillor Vincent Smyth, the cost of the proposed new NQHS adjacent to State Street South was pegged at $24 million.

School Supt. Lawrence Creedon said it would cost $1.8 million to purchase the 18-acre site with costs of $22.1 million for construction and borrowing costs. However, he pointed out the state would reimburse the city for 65 percent of the actual construction and $7.1 million in borrowing costs.

Councillor Smyth had proposed, in place of a new building at State Street South, a 500-student wing to Atlantic Junior High School at an estimated cost of $4 million.

QCA WANTS HEARING ON URBAN RENEWAL

Joseph Slattery, president of the Quincy Citizens' Association, asked the state to hold off action on H 5233, which would authorize the city to establish a planning and community development, until there was a hearing in the city.

In a letter to Council President Arthur Tobin, Slattery said, "There are many aspects of the bill that trouble the Q.C.A., particularly the latitude bill gives for permitting the spread of urban renewal throughout the city against the wishes of the residents."

SOPHOMORES KEY PRESIDENTS' TRACK

After an undefeated season in the Greater Boston League last year, the Q.H.S. track team was dependent on its sophomores for a winning year. Coach Tom Hall noted that of the 63 who went out for the team, 32 were sophomores.

Paul Riggs and Steve Oriola were leading long jumpers with Riggs, Steve McCarthy and Bob McDermott in the triple jump. The field events also included Dave Stenn, Ed Marden and Frank Guido throwing the discus.

Phil's 'Tasty' Spread

My brother Phil is the original "watch what you eat guy." So much so that when he tells us that something has "no fat, no salt, no sugar," my husband's classic answer is "yeah, no taste."

But last week when Phil and his wife Teresa came to the house, he told us about a spread he concocted that truly "has taste." It's a spread for toast in lieu of butter, margarine or any other topping.

PHIL'S "TASTY" SPREAD

3 tablespoons olive oil
1/2 teaspoon red pepper
1/2 teaspoon garlic powder
1 teaspoon fresh or dried parsley.

Heat the oil and add the rest of the ingredients until blended. It can be stored in a jar or other container in the refrigerator where it solidifies. It's great on English-muffin or just plain toast.

"The great response to the theme contest each year shows that people care about the parade and want to be a part of it," he said.

Past parade themes have included "Christmas on Parade," "Forty Years of Christmas Memories," "The Wonders of Christmas," "Christmas in Toyland" and others.

The winner of the contest, which is open to all, will be invited to participate in the three-mile parade and will receive an appreciation gift from the committee.

To enter the theme competition, contestants should complete the accompanying entry coupon and mail it to Frances Flynn, 79 Freeman St., Quincy, MA 02170.

Delahunt Expects Diaz Returned In 6-10 Weeks

local authorities are cooperating with Guyanan authorities so that the matter can be resolved as soon as possible.

"We feel we have done everything properly," he said. "The first hearing should conclude this week, and the court should issue an order next week assuming we win, which I'm confident we will."

Although an appeal will likely follow the court's action, Delahunt added, the problem will likely be resolved in a matter of weeks.

"It appears that within 6 to 10 weeks, all appeals will be concluded, and he will be back in Massachusetts to stand trial."

Diaz, 27, who has been out of the country since the murder, was indicted a few months after the crime on a charge of killing Brown. He was arrested last month in the South American nation of Guyana.

The arrest was the direct result of the case being mentioned on NBC-TV's "Unsolved Mysteries" March 15. According to Delahunt, a man in Guyana who saw the show recognized Diaz and contacted authorities the following day, and Guyanan officials arrested Diaz at the request of authorities in Massachusetts.

Diaz is accused of killing Brown with a single gunshot to the head in front of her family home in North Quincy. A former Osterville resident, he is the ex-boyfriend of her younger sister, Kimberlee.

Authorities have said Diaz was apparently planning to murder Kimberlee after she broke up with him but mistook Dawn, who looks like her, for his intended target in the dark night.

Officials now say Diaz evaded authorities after the murder by traveling the globe under the name of a toddler killed in an accident 24 years ago. He apparently got the child's name, birthplace and other identifying information from an obituary published in the Cape Cod Standard Times Dec. 22, 1971.

Officials said Diaz took the identity of the toddler, Gregory Scott Grayson, shortly before the murder.

Diaz drove to John F. Kennedy Airport in New York City after the shooting and boarded a plane to Los Angeles under Grayson's name, according to officials.

Before he left, Diaz used his credit cards to their limit to obtain cash and clothing. Officials said there were reports of Diaz being seen in Tokyo, Singapore, Sri Lanka, Hong Kong, Malaysia, and the Maldives Island, all under the assumed name.

Diaz apparently managed to elude authorities eight days after the murder at Heathrow International Airport in London, England. Officials said they believe Diaz got a passport by obtaining a copy of Grayson's birth certificate a few months before Dawn Brown was killed.

Delahunt said Diaz has lived in Guyana since November 1993 where he married a woman who did not know his true identity and secured employment at an advertising business.

YMCA, Quincy High Team Up To Enhance Early Childhood Education

The South Shore YMCA of Quincy has teamed up with Quincy High School Center for Technical Education to provide Early Childhood Education students an opportunity to develop their own classroom teaching resources.

The week-long project, to begin April 8, is designed to give high school students the opportunity to supplement their classroom studies and placement experiences under the supervision of a field professional. The project will take place at the high school, 10 Woodward Ave., from April 8-10, and at the South Shore YMCA's "Kids Unlimited" full-time child care center, 79 Coddington St., on April 11 and 12.

Several months ago, Quincy High School Technical Center Teacher Maureen Ajemian approached the South Shore YMCA to help develop and implement the project. Deb Jackson, lead kindergarten teacher for the South Shore Y's Kids Unlimited, was chosen to help supervise the five-day project, and evaluate the students in conjunction with Ajemian, as part of the pre-school teacher certification offered by the school through the Office for Children and the Department of Occupational Education.

"Our school has been providing placements for the early childhood students for six years," said South Shore YMCA Kids Unlimited Director

Marcia Bailey, "and I'm quite impressed with the technical and career programs at the high school as well as the dedicated staff. This program is a match made in heaven for Deb Jackson! She is not just committed to the children, but to the community. I wish every child had the opportunity to work with Deb."

According to the Encyclopedia of Career and Vocational Guidance, the number of child care workers in the 1990s is estimated at over 600,000. By the year 2000, that number will reach 700,000.

The project will emphasize creating science experiences for young children. Jackson and Ajemian will work with the career-focused students to develop science activity kits that will be part of their classroom resources. The kits will be on loan for students to take to their individual placements in the community. The kits will include activities for water, sand, plants, and small pets.

BUSINESS SPOTLIGHT

Wiz Kidz Toys Fills 'The Toy Vacuum'

By CHRISTIAN POTTS

Opening a toy store can be a tricky proposition. It has all the problems of any other retail-type store, with an added wrinkle: The customers, namely kids, are very fickle. They demand toys that will hold their attention.

Wiz Kidz Toys at 550 Adams St., Adams Plaza, Quincy, is up to the task of pleasing kids. Their toys are not the usual collection of easily-broken gadgets and gizmos that kids tire of quickly. Wiz Kidz Toys carry toys that kids can use for hours—and that will help them develop intellectually as well.

Robert and Susan Braga of Quincy, the owners of Wiz Kidz Toys, have had years of experience in dealing with kids and running toy stores. Robert has been in the toy store retail business since 1980, and together he and his wife Susan ran the Milton Country Store in East Milton Square. And they have two children—Timmy, 13, and Melissa, 11—as well.

"My father owned a toy store in Cambridge called Irwin's [voted Boston's best toy store by Boston Magazine] for almost 20 years, and he also ran the Milton Country Store," said Robert. "I took over the Country Store in 1992, and we decided to open a toy store in Quincy. Ever since Child World went out of business, there's been a vacuum of toy stores in Quincy. We thought Quincy could use another toy store, the space was available, so we decided to open up a store."

Robert and Susan closed the Milton Country Store in the first two weeks of January and started renovations on the space that houses Wiz Kidz Toys right away. According to Robert, those

"renovations" were more like a complete reconstruction. "This building used to be the garden center for Channel Hardware. It had no heat, no plumbing—not even a front door. It was like a big garage without a door. We had to have all that stuff put in."

There were a few problems, like a gas pipe that broke that set back construction about 10 days, but it "all went fast. We were really pleased with how fast we were able to get everything done," said Susan.

Including naming the store and coming up with a logo, Robert and Susan asked customers, friends, relatives and their kid's friends to submit ideas for a name, then pared those suggestions down, finally choosing "Wiz Kidz," which Robert says was actually "our second choice, but we really liked it."

And their logo, a wizard

WIZ KIDZ TOYS, located at 550 Adams St., Quincy, carries toys that teach and entertain, helping children develop their cognitive, motor and physical skills. Robert (left) and Susan Braga, the owners of Wiz Kidz Toys, will hold a grand opening sale on Saturday April 20 and Sunday, April 21 with sidewalk chalk art, face painting, and a special appearance by Madeline, a popular character in a children's book series. with wands joining the "i's" in Wiz Kidz, was developed by a commercial artist—with a little help from Robert and Susan's 13-year-old, Timmy. "Timmy and his friends were sketching logos and faxing them to the artist. I don't know how helpful it was, but the kids loved it," laughed Robert.

So with a catchy name and a logo, Wiz Kidz Toys opened for business on Feb. 13. One problem, though: The International Toy Fair in New York City—a must for toy store owners—was Feb. 14. That made opening day a very long day, indeed. "We opened up and had a great day, then were up until 3 or 4 a.m. packing for New York. It was a long day, but a fun day," said Susan.

The International Toy Fair, a yearly event, was so important because that's where all the major retailers of toys show their new wares. It's the largest fair in the world, and it draws buyers from all over the world. Says Robert, "It's a must for a toy store owner. It has all kinds of toys: everything from action figures to Legos."

It's the latter that Wiz Kidz Toys is most interested in. "We carry toys that are non-violent—no plastic guns or swords. And the toys we do have are not just mindless ones. We have toys that help develop a child, from cognitive skills to physical hand-eye coordination," said Robert.

Wiz Kidz has an extensive collection of Kin'x sets and a budding array of Legos (with more on the way), both of which are "building" toys where kids can let their imaginations create virtually anything. "Sometimes kids are spoon-fed through TV. With these toys we have, a child has to think through and work it, making them use their imagination and creativity," said Robert.

Wiz Kidz Toys sells toys for ages 1 to 15, boys and girls alike. "It's been a refining process of finding out what kids like and don't like. We'll have a few kids buy something—like magic tricks—then a couple of days later few more kids buy the same thing, then a few more, and all of a sudden there will be a rush on that item," said Robert.

Robert and Susan will be hosting a grand opening sale on Saturday, April 20 from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m., and Sunday, April 21 from noon to 5 p.m. at Wiz Kidz Toys. Everything in the store will 20 percent off, with a grand prize drawing of a Playmobil castle or doll house. Special appearances will be made by Blossom the Clown and Madeline, a character in a popular book series—Montilio's Cake Shoppe is donating a Madeline cake—and sidewalk chalk art in the Adams Plaza parking lot.

"It's been a lot of work so far, but the parents and kids who have come in have had nothing but good things to say. We're still in the building phase a little, and we know what we want to do and don't want to do. We've been very busy. March was the busiest month we ever had anywhere; busier than any month in the Milton Country Store."

"We love the location, we love the city, and we love the people that come in. It's just been great so far, and we're looking forward to the summer and beyond," concluded Robert.

Wiz Kids Toys is open Monday, Tuesday, and Saturday 9 a.m. to 6 p.m., Wednesday through Friday 9 a.m. to 8 p.m., and Sundays noon to 5 p.m. You can reach Robert or Susan Braga at Wiz Kidz Toys at 479-3325.

Mayor's Special Hearing Panel On Alcohol Abuse Recommendations For Community Action

I. Introduction

The following report is the result of public testimony given at a special Mayoral Community Hearing on Alcohol Abuse which took place on November 30, 1995 at Quincy City Hall. This hearing was convened by Mayor James Sheets, who opened the hearing with the following words:

"It is a pleasure for me to welcome each and every one of you here this evening to participate in a public hearing that involves what many consider, and what I consider, as perhaps the number one public health problem across this country. And that is, simply, alcohol abuse... We're here this evening to consider the issue of alcohol abuse so that we can bring beauty and light into the lives of individuals, into the lives of families, and into the society and into the country in which we live... I deeply appreciate each distinguished panel member here this evening to listen to testimony and to bring back to us recommendations that will result in an action plan that will allow us to meaningfully and intelligently and successfully attack what I consider to be our public health problem number one in this country and in all of our cities and towns—alcohol abuse."

The testimony given at this hearing was supplemented by information gathered by the Alcohol Action Group, an alliance of community members and organizations coordinated by IMPACT QUINCY. The members of the Mayor's Special Hearing Panel on Alcohol Abuse offer these findings and recommendations as guides to progress towards an even greater quality of life than we are currently experiencing.

The testimony and materials presented at the hearing make clear the point that the many forms of alcohol abuse, including but not limited to alcoholism, effect all of us. It is estimated nationally that one person in ten is alcoholic, and one person in four is seriously and negatively affected by someone else's alcoholism. A great many more people are effected by less obvious manifestations of the misuse of alcohol, creating situations and incidents that endanger the safety, lives, and/or property of all persons. Our efforts to address alcohol abuse therefore must focus not only on alcoholism, but also on these other areas where misuse by even the non-addicted create serious problems within our community. This effort must focus not only on children, the usual targets of such programs, but also on adults, who in reality abuse alcohol in greater numbers and to greater harm than youth. Finally, alcohol abuse is a public health issue, meaning that its causes and effects are not simply matters relating to individual persons; rather, it is an issue that has roots in and implications for the life of the community as a whole. As a community, we are responsible for creating an environment that promotes healthier living; we must understand how our community's use of alcohol or perspectives on the use of alcohol creates either a healthy environment or an unhealthy environment in which our children grow and in which we all live and work.

We would like to express our deep appreciation to those who offered moving and courageous testimony, and in so doing have made our charge that much easier. We commend Crystal, a 15 year old Quincy youth; Kathie Cowie, Massachusetts Department of Social Services; Gerry Reade, community member; Sarah Bachrach, Massachusetts Bureau of Substance Abuse Services; Shawn Sheehan, Faxon House/Quincy Detoxification Center; Joseph Hajjar, local business owner; Officer Frank Spring, Quincy Police Department; Ruth Daley, community member; Jane Gallahue, Quincy Health Commissioner; Fred Dolgin, M.D., Manet Community Health Center; Josephine Shea, Norfolk County Correction Center; James Kilcoyne, Norfolk County Correction Center; Martin Dundon, Quincy District Court; Jim McGill, Father Bill's Place; Joanne Young, Quincy Housing Authority; Chief Thomas Gorman, Quincy Fire Department; and Janet Powell, Director of Guidance Services, Quincy Public Schools.

II. Identification of the Problem

Alcohol abuse in the United States is a national public health crisis—a crisis that diminishes the quality of all of our lives. While it is understood that responsible and appropriate use of alcohol is part of our social and cultural life, it is clearly indicated that the current levels and manner of the use of alcohol has serious negative consequences upon the quality of life of communities across the country, and of this community. These negative consequences impact every aspect of our lives from health care to social and family disruption to worker productivity to public safety.

While Quincy is not alone in having these problems, our community is courageous and forthright in confronting the issue of alcohol abuse together. Quincy is in a unique position to be a national leader in addressing this problem that affects every community in our nation. The convening of this community hearing panel, which we believe to be the first of its kind in the United States, is a significant step and dramatic indicator of our community's willingness to deal with the problems associated with alcohol abuse.

A National Problem

The following information relates to the extent of alcohol abuse problems nationally; this information can be appropriately extrapolated to relate to Quincy:

- Alcohol is involved in:
60% of all child abuse cases
54% of all fights and assaults in the home
70% of all murders
41% of all assaults
50% of all rapes
55% of all arrests
50% of all convicted offenders had been drinking immediately prior to their arrest.
- Hospital based treatment of alcohol-related disorders costs Americans over $10 billion annually.
- Substance abuse, of which alcohol abuse is the leading component, costs American businesses approximately $700 per year per worker in lost productivity, workers compensation, and associated health costs.

•60% to 70% of all hospital admissions for elderly persons are related to alcohol use.

A Quincy Problem

Indicators are also available that relate directly to alcohol abuse and its effects upon Quincy. These include the following:

•Deaths of Quincy residents from cirrhosis of the liver, an alcohol abuse related disease, were higher than the state average for 20-64 year olds in 1990 and 1991.

•The Quincy Police Department estimates that 37% of all calls for service are alcohol-related. It should be noted that this estimate is made in the absence of a specific monitoring protocol, the presence of which would undoubtedly yield higher numbers.

•The rate of admissions of Quincy residents to state funded substance abuse treatment is 2283 per 100,000 population. This is significantly higher than the state-wide rate of 1435 per 100,000.

•In 1993, 1958 Quincy residents entered publicly funded substance abuse treatment programs. This does not include those receiving private treatment, and represents only approximately 20% of those residents actually needing treatment.

•Juvenile court records indicate that youth involved with Quincy District Court have alcohol-related problems at a much higher rate than the state average.

•In a survey of its residents conducted by the Quincy Housing Authority, 65% of all respondents identified alcohol-related problems and disturbances as a major concern.

•Approximately 90% of all high school students in Quincy believe that it is easy or very easy for them to acquire alcohol. Most reported that they obtained alcohol by having an adult of legal age buy it for them.

•50% of all high school seniors in Quincy rode with a drunk driver in the past 30 days.

•Of the 50% of high school seniors in Quincy who drink, 70% drink 5 or more drinks in a row when they drink.

•33% of all male Quincy residents seeking substance abuse treatment were referred to treatment programs outside Quincy.

•43% of all female Quincy residents seeking substance abuse treatment were referred to treatment programs outside Quincy.

•We must use this and other information to honestly examine our community's attitudes to and relationship with alcohol, and the implications of these upon our children and ourselves. For example, while our city is the site of several alcohol free events, most of our community's activities that have high youth participation, such as social and business festivals, also include the presence of alcohol. This may be sending the message to our youth, and to adults, that the use of alcohol is a requirement in order to have a good time. This point is borne out in the 1995 Survey of Quincy Youth which reported that 90% of all high school youth believe that people have a better time when they are "high" than when they are not under the influence of alcohol or other drugs.

During the course of the Community Hearing on Alcohol Abuse on November 30, 1995, several themes surfaced related to alcohol abuse. The problem of alcohol abuse is seen as a community illness that affects not only individuals but families, neighbors, friends, co-workers, and employers. Alcohol abuse is a cross-generational issue as evidenced by the admission of different generations of family members to Quincy Detox. Alcohol abuse affects virtually every aspect of society. Poor academic and job performance can also be tied to alcohol abuse.

The widespread nature of the problem was highlighted by those that testified. Also identified were the many services that currently exist within the city to serve those suffering from their own or a loved one's alcohol abuse. However, it is clear that while we are fortunate to have such services, they are not sufficient to address our community's needs. The following sections of this report describe our recommendations for addressing these needs.

II. Assessment of Resources

The City of Quincy is in a unique position to address problems associated with alcohol abuse because of the many services which currently exist in the city. However, the need is far greater than what is currently available. What we have, we do well. But, even with current resources, our community cannot keep up with the needs of its members. The current resources, so vital to the community, are also facing very real threats due to proposed cut-backs in both federal and state funding. The following identifies the current resources in the city, points out gaps, and is followed by a list of recommendations regarding needed resources.

Prevention activities can be found in many programs offered throughout the city, several of which may not be immediately recognized as such. Quincy's Recreation Department offers after school and evening recreation programs for the city's youth. The South Shore YMCA provides both youth and family-focused activities.

Teen Get-Away, a community based organization, has coordinated the opening of two weekend evening Teen Centers, working with the YMCA and the Quincy Community United Methodist Church in Wollaston. These programs and others sponsored by many other churches and social organizations offer young people opportunities to socialize in safe environments which promote healthy choices, a vital component in any community's efforts to prevent alcohol problems among our young people.

Once again, though, there exists greater need than current services provide. The perception of 90 per cent of our high school-aged youth that people have more fun when they are high, and the fact that a large number drink regularly at friend's houses, parties, and in our parks, indicates that greater opportunities for alcohol-free activities for youth are needed.

The Quincy Public Schools offer a number of quality services through their health and guidance programs. In addition to individual counseling, the health curriculum in grades 6-12 offer educational programs on alcohol with varying levels of complexity depending upon the grade level of students. Additional programs offered through the schools include the most comprehensive DARE program in the state for students in grades 4-8; peer education programs for grades 7-12; short-term alcohol awareness groups and special assemblies for middle and senior high students; and referrals to outside agencies for alcohol related problems. Many of the QPS staff might benefit from additional training on identification and referral for those students abusing alcohol, and/or being affected by someone else's alcohol abuse.

IMPACT QUINCY, a community-based volunteer organization, offers prevention programs for the residents of Quincy. Through its training and education efforts, the level of understanding of problems related to Alcohol, Tobacco and Other Drugs (ATOD) has been heightened throughout the city. Residents have supported these efforts by developing skills which have enabled them to develop prevention activities on their own. However, IQ has not been successful in enlisting the involvement of certain key community sectors, such as business and the faith communities, whose participation is crucial to accomplish sustained, comprehensive community wide prevention.

Some businesses have made contributions to our community's efforts to address alcohol abuse. Arbella Insurance has been a leader in creating and supporting a peer leadership program on drunk driving for middle and high school youth. The Yardrock Cafe has organized a major family-oriented, alcohol-free concert for several years. Several other businesses have joined in co-sponsoring other alcohol-free community celebrations. Several alcohol selling businesses have taken great pains to provide proper training and supervision of their employees to eliminate alcohol abuse in their establishments. A few businesses have established drug free workplace policies. These efforts by the business community are to be commended. However, the involvement of this sector in directly addressing this issue has been limited.

In the area of treatment and after-care, our community also benefits from many resources. Quincy Hospital is a state-of-the-art community hospital that offers patients quality Emergency Room services. Manet Community Health Center offers primary medical care at several sites within the city. However, emergency room and other medical personnel may not have received enough training in accurate identification, appropriate treatment, and successful referral procedures for those affected by alcohol abuse. These skills typically receive little attention in most formal courses of medical study.

Community residents in need of detoxification from alcohol benefit from the presence of the Quincy Detox/Faxon Recovery Program, which provides in-patient treatment, counseling, and educational services to nearly 2,000 men and women from throughout the state each year. However, due to financial constraints, this facility must currently turn away approximately twenty-five to thirty people per day who are seeking treatment. Also seriously affecting this treatment service have been recent efforts by funding sources to severely curtail the length of stay of each client, in effect "rushing" clients out of treatment before they are fully ready to leave.

Follow-up and aftercare programs are vital links to the recovery process and Quincy is fortunate to have the South Shore Halfway House which provides a stable environment at any one time for up to twenty men in the early months of recovery. Additionally, there exists a number of out-patient treatment and counseling services in Quincy such as those provided by Bay State Community Services which treat not only individuals but also families affected by alcohol abuse. These services are also compromised by financial constraints similar to those mentioned above. Length of stay for residential treatment and duration of services for outpatient services limit the comprehensiveness of treatment that can be provided. There also exist two glaring gaps in service: Long-term residential treatment for women and for adolescents. Currently, there exists no such services in our community, thus forcing any persons who fall within those categories to seek services elsewhere. Given the difficulties that this may cause to families, the lack of these services often serves as a very real barrier to treatment for these persons.

The city's Neighborhood Centers provide additional resources for our community's young and young at heart. Residents can visit their local center and participate in many activities from quilting classes to learning new computer skills or receiving a GED. These positive programs all enhance the quality of life for Quincy residents, thereby reducing the need for turning to other less healthy activities. These centers can, however, be a vital component in addressing alcohol abuse directly through the sponsoring of topic-specific workshops and community events for residents, as well as serving as information centers.

The Quincy District Court frequently imposes as a condition of probation a requirement of abstinence from the use of alcohol and drugs in those cases where there is evidence of prior alcohol or drug abuse. These conditions are enforced through a system where probationers are given a color code and required to call a pre-arranged telephone number daily to determine whether they are required to report for urinalysis. If their color is told to report, they must do so on the following court day. If the probationer fails to report or if the test is positive, the probationer is given a notice of surrender and a probation surrender hearing is scheduled to determine whether the defendant should be incarcerated. The program is the only one of its kind in the Commonwealth.

This assessment of current resources indicates two immediate needs in order for our community to effectively address alcohol abuse:

- 1) Conduct a thorough assessment of all current services to identify needs and gaps
- 2) Develop formal communication and coordination linkages between all service providers

III. Responding to the Challenge

In order to effectively respond to the challenge posed by the national public health crisis of alcohol abuse, our community needs to undertake many activities. In order to begin this effort in Quincy, four key steps need to occur:

1. The public and private sector leadership of this community must acknowledge that alcohol abuse is a serious national, and community problem.
2. Such leadership must make a public commitment to addressing this issue.
3. Our community, through the Public Health Department, should develop and adopt a set of model standards for reducing alcohol abuse indicators.
4. Our community and its institutions must provide real support to carry out such recommendations and activities as may be identified by this panel, and by the community at large.

We publicly applaud the courage and foresight with which Mayor Sheets has called attention to this issue through the convening of this panel. We also publicly express our support for this effort, and pledge our commitment to working towards real and lasting solutions to this problem.

The following recommendations have been identified for development or expansion in the city. These areas have been divided into seven main topics: Prevention, Education and Training; Intervention, Treatment and Follow-up; Alcohol-Free Activities; Identification and Referral; Reporting Mechanisms; Policy Analysis and Development; and Enforcement. Each area has been expanded in detail as described below.

A. Prevention, Education, and Training

Several areas have been identified where additional educational opportunities and training activities may enhance the community's ability to reduce the harm caused by the misuse or abuse of alcohol. Statistics show that for every $1 spent on prevention, a community will save $7 in treatment costs. Recommendations for action in this area are:

1. Develop an on-going community education campaign on alcohol abuse with both short term and long term goals to foster a climate of community support.
2. Schedule neighborhood forums facilitated by Ward Councillors with an aim towards better understanding of problems of alcohol abuse and how to address them.
3. Collaborate with Churches and other Social Service Agencies to distribute materials on preventing alcohol abuse in the community.
4. Develop a community wide conference to identify problems associated with alcohol abuse and to explore methods for dealing with them as a community.
5. Foster the development of a Mothers Against Drunk Driving (MADD) chapter.
6. Involve MADD with the court system to reach youth and adults in alternative schools and make community service in an alcohol related field a component of the program.
7. Assess and provide support to Students Against Driving Drunk (SADD) programs in both city high schools.
8. Provide training programs for all city department heads on alcohol abuse.
9. Train medical, police, fire, and other public safety personnel in early identification of problems associated with alcohol abuse.
10. Review practices and procedures of medical and public safety providers in documenting and follow-up of persons who display symptoms related to their own abuse of alcohol or the abuse of alcohol by another.
11. Develop a public relations campaign modeled after the Massachusetts Tobacco Control Program (MTCPP) "It's Time We Made Smoking History" to raise awareness about alcohol abuse.
12. Continue and expand "Operation Prom Night" while working with Police and Fire Departments to stage mock crashes.

13. Develop additional sober housing where men and women would be supported as they begin to rebuild their lives and live with dignity in a self-sufficient environment. These programs would be used as models for others along the con-

14. Utilize staff of the City's Employee Assistance Program (EAP) to educate employees to seek help for substance abuse problems.

15. Develop a community wide conference to identify problems associated with alcohol abuse and to explore methods for dealing with them as a community.

B. Intervention, Treatment, and Follow-up

The move towards prevention does not diminish the need for quality treatment and follow-up programs, however. In looking at services for residents, the following recommendations are made:

1. Establish centralized site for intervention and referral services information.
2. Develop clear guidelines for all residents on appropriate intervention and referral.
3. Develop identification, intervention, and referral procedures for medical personnel, especially emergency room staff.
4. Establish special programs and residences, and increase accessibility to services for women seeking to recover from their own alcohol abuse or the alcohol abuse of another.
5. Increase the number of detoxification treatment slots available within the city for all persons.
6. Explore the development of an in-patient adolescent treatment program.
7. Allocate funds to implement a comprehensive alcohol training program on a community-wide basis.
8. Set up a foundation through local businesses to provide support for intervention and treatment.
9. Increase case management for populations at risk to support adherence to treatment plans, especially to ensure compliance with any mandates imposed by law enforcement agencies.
10. Develop a "Wet Shelter" in cooperation with the Quincy Police Department and Father Bill's Place to house individuals who are placed in protective custody while under the influence of alcohol.
11. Develop linkages between alcohol abuse treatment services and domestic violence services by coordinating with the court system to insure safe and secure havens for women and their children.
12. Expand quality aftercare programs to support persons after discharge from treatment facilities. Such programs should provide viable alternatives to previous high risk situations. Examples would be half-way and three-quarter houses which assist clients' transition from treatment to quality, stable lifestyles.
13. Develop additional sober housing where men and women would be supported as they begin to rebuild their lives and live with dignity in a self-sufficient environment. These programs would be used as models for others along the continuum of recovery.

14. Utilize staff of the City's Employee Assistance Program (EAP) to educate employees to seek help for substance abuse problems.

C. Alcohol-Free Activities

Quincy is a leader in developing quality family oriented, alcohol-free activities for its residents. Existing programs such as Arts in the Park, the City of Presidents Blues Festival and First Night Quincy are models for other communities. These and other existing programs should be supported and additional activities should be developed. It is recommended that the following be developed:

1. Alternatives for youth after school and on weekends. These programs could be based in schools, neighborhood centers, churches, or other community organizations, and should be offered on weekends. Programs such as Teen-Get-Away, the weekly teen center housed at the YMCA and at the Quincy Community United Methodist Church in Wollaston have been identified as highly effective alternatives for teenagers.
2. Social and recreational activities for young adults. Programs geared to "under 21's", including older high school and college-aged youth, need to be developed. This age group experiences some of the highest rates of drinking, and concurrent health risks, such as alcohol-related traffic accidents.
3. Alcohol-free activities for adults. Businesses, service clubs, and other social organizations should be encouraged to sponsor alcohol-free activities for all persons, to emphasize that alcohol is not a necessary component of social activities.
4. Alcohol-Free space for family activities. Regularly scheduled activities and specially designated space for family activities should be developed.
5. Programs for Elders. Isolation and loneliness are major contributors to increased rates of alcohol abuse among Elders. The development of a Senior Center would help reduce these problems.

D. Identification and Referral

Proper identification of persons with problems associated with alcohol abuse is a vital component in our community's efforts to develop healthy lifestyles. Every system and opportunity within our community must be utilized in order to achieve this objective. In order to facilitate this, the following recommendations need to be implemented:

(Cont'd on page 17)

1. Create systems to identify families at risk and to offer them quality services to meet their needs.
2. Strengthen service coordination between agencies to encourage and support residents in their journey towards recovery.
3. Expand Medications Misuse Awareness Programs for elders.
4. Train hospital, police, fire, and other public safety personnel in alcohol abuse identification and referral procedures.
5. Develop systems to follow up with individuals or families who have been identified as needing services to ensure they receive the care they need.
6. Develop linkages between pharmacies and among liquor distributors to monitor the unlawful use or misuse of medications and/or liquor.

E. Reporting Mechanisms

Aside from statistics gathered for the Massachusetts Department of Public Health by selected medical and treatment providers, our community does not have a system for monitoring alcohol-related risk factors. In order to quantify problems associated with alcohol abuse, the following steps should be taken:

1. Review current reporting methods utilized by Police, Fire, and Health Departments, as well as those used by emergency medical and other services within the city, to assess their ability to correctly identify and report problems with alcohol.
2. Revise such instruments as necessary, and establish data collection systems for monitoring purposes.
3. Distribute information regarding alcohol related problems to interested agencies and community members as appropriate.
4. Provide training opportunities for all city employees and interested residents on identification of alcohol problems.

F. Policy Analysis and Development

Any community wide effort will be enhanced by strengthening

ALCOHOL ACTION GROUP MISSION STATEMENT

We will promote a healthy Quincy Community by mobilizing all to confront Alcohol Abuse - the National Public Health Crisis that diminishes the quality of all our lives.

Adopted October 1995 existing policies and by developing new initiatives that promote responsible use of alcohol while also reducing problems associated with alcohol abuse. The following initiatives are recommended:

1. Involve alcohol servers and interested residents in developing community norms regarding the safe and responsible use of alcohol. Such norms should be widely distributed and publicized.
2. Request that our community's state legislators support adequate funding levels for alcohol abuse services.
3. Request that the state insure that funds generated from Driving While Intoxicated programs be utilized for alcohol-related prevention, intervention, and treatment.
4. Create community support for recovery, and for the removal of stigmatization from those in need of addiction services.

5. Promote all city sponsored events as alcohol-free.

6. Establish mandatory alcohol-screening in all automobile accidents resulting in fatalities.

7. Promote all events geared towards youth as alcohol-free.

8. Encourage the community to be open to any models of recovery.

9. Encourage sobriety (the absence of intoxication) as a community norm.

10. Request the establishment of a state-wide alcohol tax to fund prevention and treatment programs, similar to the tobacco tax which funds the Massachusetts Tobacco Control Program.

11. Establish on-going mechanism within the community to review and critique federal and state initiatives that effect the community's ability to address alcohol problems.

12. Endorsement of the Alcohol Action Group's mission (see attached) by the city's elected leadership and the development of Model Standards for reducing the stated alcohol abuse indicators within the desired period of time.

13. Assess current state of Employee Assistance Program availability sponsored by city's employers.

14. Encourage the development of Drug Free Workplace policies by all businesses and employers within the city.

15. Review current number and location of liquor licenses throughout the city, and examine implication of same on economic and social development.

G. Enforcement

The Quincy Police Department and Quincy District Court do an admirable job in enforcing our laws, but citizens have as much responsibility in maintaining the public order as do law enforcement personnel. Support for the following recommendations will greatly bolster our law enforcement efforts:

1. Continue compliance checks to insure that underage access to alcohol is eliminated.

2. Cooperation in the "Cops and Shops" program where undercover Police Officers work in liquor stores to eliminate the purchase of alcohol by minors.

3. Review, revise as needed, and strictly enforce current statutes and ordinances regarding the use of alcohol by minors as well as the inappropriate use of alcohol by adults.

4. Strictly enforce ordinances relating to the procurement of alcohol by adults for use by underage youth.

5. Support the Massachusetts Alcoholic Beverages Control Commission in its role of regulating alcohol distributors and servers.

6. Review all existing city ordinances relating to the licensing and regulation of alcohol servers and outlets.

7. Continue alcohol server training sponsored by the Quincy Police Department.

8. Collect separate data on Motor Vehicle Accidents (MVA) with Operating Under the Influence (OUI) charges for placement on a computerized software statistical program.

9. Collect separate data on Motor Vehicle Accidents (MVA) with fatalities and Operating Under the Influence (OUI) charges for placement on a computerized software statistical program.

V. Summary

It is our hope that the special hearing on November 30, 1995, and this resulting report are merely the first few steps in our community's efforts to address this most important issue. Experience and study indicate that the key factor for success in addressing a social issue of such magnitude as alcohol abuse requires the involvement, collaboration, and support of all segments of a community. We present these recommendations for community action to our neighbors, co-workers, and community leaders in the hope that they will foster and promote even greater discussion and action upon this major public health problem.

ALCOHOL ADVISORY GROUP

The members of the Alcohol Advisory Group have committed themselves to raising $84,985 to support this effort to address alcohol abuse within our community. This figure represents $1.00 for every man, woman, and child in our city, and will be a visible expression of broad-based community support for this initiative.

Tobin Named To House Budget Debate Team

Massachusetts House Ways and Means Chairman Thomas M. Finnerman has announced that Rep. Stephen Tobin of Quincy will join a contingent of leading Democrats in the House as the Legislature prepares the Commonwealth's Fiscal Year 1997 budget.

In keeping with his recent tradition of assembling a budget debate "team," Finnerman has asked Tobin to assist the Ways and Means Committee in addressing a number of floor amendments that are offered during the budget debate.

"In light of the severe constraints on the Commonwealth's resources in Fiscal Year '97, and because of the intense pace of the budget floor debate, it is essential to the bud-get's integrity that thoughtful, responsible and prudent members lead us forward," said Finnerman. "We will have to debate and resolve literally hundreds of significant and consequential amendments during the course of budget week. The taxpayers' interests are best served and protected through the work of well-informed and articulate floor leaders. That's why I have asked Rep. Tobin to join me.

"Because of Rep. Tobin's track record of achievement and action during previous legislative debates, I asked Steve to assist me and the entire Ways and Means Committee. Our goal is nothing less than to continue the dramatic progress we have made over the past five years toward honest and balanced budgets, with no new taxes or gimmicks, and with a continued commitment to the causes of education reform, public safety, economic development and job creation, and fiscal stability. Rep. Tobin has been instrumental in securing our many advances on these fronts and I look forward to his continued involvement and leadership."

Foot Pain And Neuroma

By DR. THOMAS LYONS

There are many causes of discomfort in the ball of the foot.

One cause of pain is a condition referred to as Morton's Neuroma. Although its name implies a sort of tumor-like condition, it is merely an irritation of a nerve in the ball of the foot. It is very common, especially in those who wear tight shoes as well as in athletes.

Babe Ruth was said to have had a flare-up of the condition the day he pointed to the bleachers before hitting a home run in that direction. Some say a slight limp could be detected as he rounded the bases.

The affected nerve most commonly lies between the knuckle (or metatarsophalangeal joints) of the third and fourth toes. The nerve between the second and third knuckle can also be the source of pain, but is so to a lesser extent. As the nerve passes between the knuckles in the ball of the foot, it gets squeezed and over the years scarring within and around the nerve develops.

Symptoms vary and include burning pain, numbness, tingling sensations or shooting pains to the toes. Tight, narrow shoes and women's heels definitely make the pain worse. Relief often occurs after removing the shoe and walking barefoot.

The simplest treatment involves wearing wider shoes that provide maximum width for the ball of the foot. Padding and arch supports may provide relief as well.

If this is not effective, a cortisone injection to shrink the swelling around the nerve may be helpful. This may not need to be repeated, but no more than three shots is recommended.

Finally, surgery may be indicated when all else fails and consists of removal of the enlarged section of the nerve, usually under local anesthesia. The surgery is generally very successful, with patients returning to full activities in six to eight weeks.

Dr. Thomas E. Lyons, D.P.M., is associated with Boston Podiatry at Quincy Hospital. He is a clinical instructor in surgery at Harvard Medical School.

Running To Find A Cure For Leukemia

On June 22, Dr. Steven M. Windwer, a chiropractor and physical therapist at Milton Chiropractic and Rehabilitation, Inc., 111 Willard St., Quincy, will be running the mayor's mid-night marathon in Anchorage, Alaska. He writes the following:

"I am running for a reason much more important than the personal challenge of completing the 26.2-mile marathon. As a member of the Massachusetts chapter of the leukemia society's 'Team in Training,' I will run the marathon to assist the society in their efforts to battle leukemia, the leading cause of death among children ages 2 through 15.

"My run is dedicated to the memory of nine-year-old Kiki Neidermeyer. Kiki unfortunately passed away from leukemia on January 19, 1995. There have been great advances in the treatment of childhood leukemia, but obviously much more needs to be done.

"These much-needed advances can only be achieved through generous contribution that support the Leukemia Society's research programs. With additional research dollars, a cure for leukemia and other forms of cancer could actually be found by the year 2000.

"As a member of the 'Team in Training,' I am committed to raising a minimum of $3,500 for leukemia research. Please help me with my goal by being one of my sponsors for this event. Any contribution regardless of size is appreciated.

"Thank you in advance for your support. If you have any questions about the leukemia society's 'Team in Training,' please feel free to call me at (617) 471-4491.

"P.S.—Please make checks payable to the Leukemia Society of America and mail or drop of at my office at 111 Willard St., Quincy, MA 02169."

Whiplash Injuries Are Serious Health Problems

By DR. THOMAS KRETZ

Neck and spinal injuries due to auto accidents or athletic injuries are serious health problems.

The force irritates the spine, which can impair health for a long time if not corrected. Your delicate spine and related muscles and ligaments cannot absorb such a great force without injury. The most common symptoms to occur in a whiplash injury to the neck are: headaches, visual disturbances, stiffness, fatigue or numbness of shoulders, arms or

Chiropractic treatment can help relieve nerve irritation, muscle spasms, and decrease the pain. If left uncorrected, the injured areas of the neck and spine will heal improperly, which may result in early decay (degeneration). More people today have found great relief with chiropractic rather than taking pills. Often, drugs have side effects and just cover up the problem.

Dr. Kretz has more than 10 years' chiropractic experience. For more information, call him at Hancock Street Chiropractic, 1245 Hancock St., 773-5400.

"Building Healthy Kids"

By Dr. Marjorie Hogan

(NAPS)—While American adults slice the bacon from their diets and climb the equivalent of Mount Everest on their stair machines to get in shape, their children may be suffering from poor eating habits and a lack of exercise. Recent studies show that 25 percent of our nation's youth are seriously overweight.

Although high-fat diets can lead to trouble, kids do need plenty of food energy for proper growth and development. Finding the right balance for the whole family might be easier than you think.

Q. I work hard to reduce the fat in my family's meals, but is there a danger of going overboard?

A. Most Americans get more than enough dietary fat, so cutting back usually is a step in the right direction. However, when you cut the fat in your diet, you are also cutting calories. Although this helps adults trying to lose weight, growing children need calories to fuel their growing bodies.

One way to replace fat calories is to serve plenty of carbohydrate-rich bread and grain foods. Because grain foods like bread, cereal, pasta and rice are full of complex carbohydrates and are naturally low in fat, they boost energy levels in children and adults alike.

Gram for gram, complex carbohydrates contain less than half the calories of fat. That makes bread and grain foods a good choice for families working to reduce or maintain their weight. Essentially, grains fill you up without filling you out, and they give your children much-needed energy. An extra slice of bread at breakfast, a bagel before soccer practice and a dinner roll at suppertime are all easy ways to fuel up during the day.

Q. My child munches all day, but won't eat much at mealtime. Will this cause a weight problem? How do we keep him from snacking so much?

A. Actually, it is OK for kids to snack between meals. Grazing throughout the day helps keep their energy levels up.

To keep kids from filling up on high-fat junk food, provide them with healthy substitutes. Try carbohydrate-rich snacks, such as a bagel, low-fat crackers, a slice of cinnamon toast or a slice of bread, rolled up around a fruit spread filling. Offer carrot sticks or apple slices instead of higher-fat potato chips.

The best way to help your children make smart snacking choices is to teach by example. Give your children cereal or graham crackers after school instead of letting them grab a candy bar. If they're staying after school for sports practice, send along a snack of pretzels, breadsticks or a sandwich to load them up with extra energy.

As long as you provide healthful snacks and your child stays active, snacking should not lead to a weight problem.

Q. My child's favorite hobby is to watch television. How can we encourage him to be more active?

A. Again, the best way is to teach by example. Take a family walk through the park or a short hike. Teach your children to play ball. Have a jump-rope contest. Give your child the chore of walking the dog. Show your kids how much fun exercise can be.

Once you get your family moving, feed them balanced meals to keep them going. Follow the guidelines of the Food Guide Pyramid, starting with a base of bread and grains.

Dr. Marjorie Hogan, mother of four, is a pediatrician at Hennepin County Medical Center in Minneapolis, Minn.

Roche Bros. Opens, Wal-Mart Next For Atlantic Development

A Roche Bros. Supermarket has opened at the Granite Crossing Shopping Center in Quincy Point.

D.J. MacKinnon, president of Atlantic Development, said the 65,000-square-foot supermarket is the first phase of the 240,000-square-foot Granite Crossing Center. Phase II will include a 135,000-square-foot Wal-Mart department store, scheduled to start construction soon.

The shopping center is located at the intersection of Southern Artery and Rte. 53 in Quincy Point, close to the Weymouth and Braintree town lines. The 240,000-square-foot shopping center is valued at approximately $20 million.

Atlantic Development permitted the site through the city, state and federal processes in less than a one-year time frame. The permitting included a full Environmental Impact Review at the state level and over 100 meetings at the local level with numerous city agencies, neighborhood groups, business groups and other concerned residents.

Part of the site was a former junkyard and required environmental remediation in close coordination with both the DEP and EPA. Those activities were all managed by Atlantic Development as part of the overall permit and construction process.

Atlantic Development is currently planning a luxury multi-family apartment development of approximately 200 units on land abutting the shopping center. The approval process for that project will start in the near future.

- sagging gutters;
- roof-line water damage;
- water from your roof collecting around the foundation of your home.

But how? Cleaning your gutters spring and fall is a chore, and conventional wire mesh and plastic dome gutter covers are only partially effective because they still become clogged by leaves and debris. Fortunately, a new gutter guard system can channel rainwater into gutters and downspouts, while preventing leaves, needles, twigs and other types of debris from entering or clogging the system.

How It Works

The scientific principle is called liquid adhesion. As rainwater flows off the roof and over the downward steps of the gutter guard, the natural surface tension of the water causes it to follow the surface contour into water-carrying channels through drainholes and into the gutter. At the same time, the leaf and twig debris falls over the downward steps and onto the ground below.

Made of the same tough, weatherable material used in premium house siding, the product, aptly called the PermaFlow® Gutter Guard System, withstands extreme temperatures and weathering. Tests on typical homes showed that it was effective in eliminating clogging while maintaining waterflow in all kinds of conditions from light sprinkles to heavy downpours. This means you'll never have to get up there on the roof to clean your gutters.

Installation is simple. Standard three-foot lengths can be cut with a hack saw or circular saw. A flat tab tucks neatly under shingles and a flexible joint conforms to any gutter or roof pitch. The gutter guard snaps onto the edge of the gutter for a snug fit that even stands up to high winds.

The system is available from many do-it-yourself retailers. For more information, or the name of your nearest supplier, contact Crane Plastics, Inc. at (800) 420-7246.

Exhibitor Registration Open For MAR Showcase Of Homes

The Massachusetts Association of Realtors (MAR) first annual Showcase of Homes currently has limited exhibit space available for Realtor firms, mortgage lenders, home inspection and environmental testing firms, and other industry-related companies.

The event is a two-day real estate show for home buyers and sellers interested in previewing residential market listings and learning more about the home purchase/selling process. The culmination of MAR's four-week-long American Home Month celebration, it will be held Saturday and Sunday, May 4-5 from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. at the Best Western Royal Plaza Trade Center, Marlboro.

Designed primarily for first-time, trade-up, vacation and second home buyers, the free consumer show will feature more than 100 exhibits by real estate brokerage firms, mortgage lenders, financial planners, home inspectors, real estate attorneys, and homeowners insurance and home warranty companies.

In addition, there will be a dozen half-hour education sessions for prospective home buyers and sellers on topics like mortgage qualifying and alternative financing programs, home inspections and property disclosure issues, how to present an offer, make a counteroffer and negotiate contingencies and how to select a real estate agent.

As the largest home buying and selling show of its kind in Massachusetts, the MAR Showcase of Homes will offer consumers the opportunity to view more than 30,000 property listings from all across the Commonwealth, many via on-line computer. Prospective home buyers also will be able to complete the mortgage pre-qualification process, and ask experts questions concerning environmental disclosures, the negotiation of the purchase price and closing terms, and other matters.

Those interested in appearing at the event should call Nancy Frede, MAR's director of marketing, at 617-890-3700, ext. 112 for more information.

Two Officers Raise $2800 For PAL In Marathon Run

Two Quincy Police officers raised over $2800 in donations for the Police Athletic League for running the Boston Marathon Monday.

Officers Jack Kelly, Jr. and Tim Silcox raised the money on their own after deciding to run the Marathon, according to Bob Hanna, Crime Prevention Officer for the Quincy Police Department. "They both were running in the marathon, and they decided to run for a cause. So they decided to try and raise money for the Police Athletic League," said Hanna.

Both officers are very active in the PAL, according to Hanna.

Kelly finished the 26.2-mile run in 4:32, while Silcox clocked in at 4:48.

"Most of the donations and pledges were from local businesses. Jack and Tim still have a lot of private pledges coming in from people who wanted to make sure they followed through and finished the

Presidents Postponed Four Times Practice No Substitute For The Real Thing

By CHRISTIAN POTTS

In baseball, practice may make perfect, but it doesn't necessarily make one better.

That's because no matter how many practice grounders you take or batting practice swings off a tee, there is no substitute for real-live game action.

According to Quincy High School baseball coach Bob Sylvia, that's the situation his team is in now. "We've been able to throw indoors to stay loose and hit off a tee, but what we need is game experience," said Sylvia. "We can hammer home fundamentals, but we haven't been able to use them."

The spring baseball season began last week, but Quincy has only played one game—a 6-0 loss to Taunton April 13—and postponed four others because of bad weather and soggy fields. With five weeks left in the regular season (which ends May 25), Quincy has to play 19 games to finish their 20-game schedule.

"That means there will be a couple of four-game weeks. That could be a problem because our pitching staff probably isn't deep enough where we can have enough arms for those games. The last thing any coach wants to do is wear a kid's arm out," said Sylvia.

Sylvia is concerned that the postponements will make games difficult not only for his pitchers, but his hitters as well. In their first-and-only game of the season, the Presidents managed just one hit against Falmouth, and struck out "10 or 11 times," according to their coach.

"With hitting, you don't just pick up a bat and go to it at the varsity level—it's a lot different from JV. You need to work on making contact, then making solid contact, and then you try to drive the ball and get hits. We haven't seen enough live pitching at this level for our young kids to be able to make good contact in varsity games," observed Sylvia.

So while they wait for the puddles to dry on the baseball field, Quincy will keep throwing indoors and hitting off the tee, waiting for those sunny days of spring.

"Everybody's in the same boat...When it comes to high school baseball in New England, you expect bad weather and cold days. But if the games keep piling up, you run into problems. The kids want to play, and so do I," concluded the coach.

Quincy has tentatively scheduled (weather permitting, of course) a Saturday morning game with Weymouth at home at Adams Field. In addition, the Presidents' season finale at home against North Quincy has been moved from 3:30 to 7 p.m. under the lights at Adams Field.

Home And Home With Milton This Week Raiders Edge Falmouth For First Perdios Win

After a seven-day showcase of meteorological madness recently, Dave Perdios and his Red Raider baseball squad are just a bit stir-crazy.

"The last few days we've had rain, snow, wind, everything," said Perdios. "The kids are a little frustrated because they've been waiting and waiting to play. It's beautiful today [Monday], but now it's supposed to rain later. They want to get out there."

North Quincy finally got their chance to play on April 10 against Old Colony League rival Falmouth at home. The Raiders won a 3-2 thriller over the Clippers that saw them score three runs in the bottom of the sixth inning after trailing 1-0 through five innings.

"I was glad we were able to start the season at home [NQ's original season opener on April 8 had been postponed due to snow] rather than having a long bus ride somewhere. I think it was something that, for the player's confidence, we needed to do. We were able to get a win under our belt, and that's important this early in the season," observed Perdios.

The Raiders' Joe McCarthy was the pitching star of the day, throwing five innings of one-hit baseball. "We had Joe on a pitch count of 80 pitches because we don't want to overuse him in his first start. He was up to 76 pitches by the end of the fifth, so we took him out when it was still 1-0 Falmouth," said the coach.

McCarthy's relief, Mal Higgins, pitched well to finish out the game, allowing just two hits to earn the win. "Mal pitched real well, and we got him some runs in the sixth. I was pleased with his pitching."

Perdios was happy with the result not just because of the win, but also for the way his team earned that win. "We made a few mistakes, but we were able to stay in the game and score runs late. We're a young team, and we will make some mistakes, and it was very encouraging to see that we were able to overcome those mistakes."

Because of the wild weather of the last week, North Quincy has already had several postponements, and Perdios is worried that the games will be backed up too much. "We need to play three games this week to keep from falling too far behind the schedule. It's getting tough with all the weather we've had, and we don't want to have to scramble at the end of the season to make up games," finished Perdios.

The Raiders will play a home-and-home series against Milton High School this week. They are at Milton today (Thursday) at 10 a.m., then will host Milton Saturday at 10 a.m. at McCoy-Mitchell Field.

Closing Your Doors To Burglary

• All exterior doors on houses, apartments, condominiums or mobile homes should be metal clad or solid hardwood construction. Doors of this type resist forced entry, because they are not easily battered or bored.

• Hollow core doors made of soft, thin wood, cannot stand much battering and should not be used as exterior doors. To mount a deadbolt lock on a hollow core door compromises the security provided by these locks.

• To determine if you have a solid or hollow core door, try driving a push pin into the door edge. If the pin does not go in easily, the door is solid hardwood.

SLIDING GLASS DOORS

Burglars often enter dwellings through sliding glass doors because they can be easily forced open.

To prevent this, take these precautions.

• Drill a downward angled hole at the top center of the door's overlapping frames. Then insert a steel pin or heavy nail in the hole.

• Place a length of wood in the lower track. Make sure it fits snug and cannot be popped out of the track by an intruder.

• Buy a small metal bar, Charlie bar, that attaches to the side frame and folds down across the glass, bracing itself against the opposite frame. Charlie bars are available from locksmiths.

• Have special locks installed on your sliding glass doors. Key operated locks using a deadbolt or pin mechanism offer the best security. Contact a locksmith for advice on the best lock to install.

• Try to prevent a burglar from prying a sliding glass from its track, install three, one and one-fourth inch large head sheet metal screws in the upper track of the movable door. Make sure they protrude far enough down so the sliding frame just clears.

people regardless of age, race, or gender.

Rev. Sheldon Bennett of United First Parish Church, the panel chairman, said alcohol abuse is a serious problem many communities are reluctant to address. He said testimony from residents affected by the problem at the Nov. 30 hearing was striking evidence of the magnitude of the problem.

"The testimony was powerful and compelling," he said.

Stice said 50 Alcoholics Anonymous groups meet in Quincy alone. She noted that alcohol abuse has been linked to children born with fetal alcohol syndrome and affects "our family members, friends and neighbors."

"Alcoholism is really our disease and our problem, not their disease and their problem," she said.

District Attorney William Delahunt commended Sheets for his role in the helping to create the panel on alcohol abuse.

"You are to be complimented," said Delahunt. "This final product (report) is a blueprint to further advance the City of Quincy in its fight against alcohol abuse."

He added that there are many women and children in abusive situations in which alcohol is a "catalyst."

Also on hand for the press conference was Tony Flaherty of the Massachusetts Housing Finance Agency which is also involved in the effort. Flaherty said alcohol abuse is the "biggest single problem" the MHFA faces today and reiterated the agency's pledge to donate an additional $25,000 to Quincy's efforts if the city can raise $84,495, or one dollar for every resident.

Sheets stressed that the city's alcohol abuse problem is no greater than in other Massachusetts communities. The only difference in Quincy, he noted, is that more is being done about the problem.

"I really believe that deep down, inside of the character of this city, that people here care a lot more," he said.

Health Dept. To Hold Rabies Clinic April 27

The Quincy Health Department will hold a Rabies Immunization Clinic for cats and dogs Saturday, April 27 from noon to 3 p.m. at the Quincy Animal Shelter, 56 Broad St.

The clinic will be held rain or shine. Cost is $8 for each dog and cat. Pet owners are strongly encouraged to have their animals immunized.

Rabies is a viral disease transmitted mainly to dogs and cats through bit wounds from wild animals such as raccoons, bats, skunks, foxes and stray cats. The usually fatal disease is rare in humans and had been uncommon in this part of the country until a recent outbreak of rabies in Massachusetts.

Dogs and/or cats over three months of age must be vaccinated once over three months of age and re-vaccinated within nine to 12 months of the first vaccination. Thereafter, the dog or cat may be vaccinated once every three years as long as the two vaccines at nine to 12 intervals have been administered.

Those whose dog or cat received two vaccines less than one year apart and show proof of vaccination (such as a receipt from the health department or veterinarian), a three-year vaccination will be administered.

There are a number of preventive measures against rabies all residents should practice for personal protection. Most of them require avoiding contact with wild, stray, or unfamiliar animals. For

A Thought For The Week

How satisfied are you with your personal life? Are you satisfied more often than dissatisfied? Or vice-versa? How often have you tried to determine the reasons - either way?

For example, are you sincerely trying to make the most out of what you have?...Do you appreciate and express your admirations?...Are you envious; do you covet someone else's possessions?...Are you influenced by someone else's kindness of heart or gentle manners?...Do you hate falsehood and misrepresentation and avoid it in your own attitude and expressions?...Are you saddened more often by the clouds in your own life instead of trying to scatter sunshine in the lives of others?...Do you allow worry to pull clouds over your life instead of ignoring them in the radiance of hope?...Do you keep your head free of hate?...Do you treat others as you would like them to treat you?...Do you think more often of your friends than those you dislike?...Would not an honest answer to these sort of sample questions help change an attitude toward life - if a change is longed for?

said. "I think the housing is great," he noted. "The sites are great. You're always going to have a few problems with public housing, but when you have what we have to offer, it's a nice feeling."

Comer is also proud of the fact that the QHA, the 11th largest authority in Massachusetts, is the only authority of its size that received an "exceptional" rating by the state in the last fiscal year.

He added, however, that the authority today offers a number of programs besides housing. The Manet Community Health Center is utilized by the QHA as a satellite facility for health care. Two day-care facilities are offered in conjunction with Quincy Community Action Programs and South Shore Mental Health, and emergency shelter grants are made available in collaboration with Father Bill's Place, the city's homeless shelter.

In addition, the authority offers transitional housing, drug awareness and other programs.

"That's what makes us very proud," said Comer. "And that's what a housing authority is all about today. You have to keep coming up with new ideas."

Loud, for her part, said she is proud of the fact that the QHA does more for its tenants that simply offer housing. She noted that the authority offers support services and enrichment programs to help them become more independent.

"The services are offered to enable them to move out of public housing, if that's what they want," she said.

Comer agreed, noting that the QHA is famous as an authority that offers its tenants employment opportunities. Tenants are given first priority for positions that open, and the authority also promotes from within.

In fact, he added, four former tenants—two of whom were also QHA employees—recently moved into their homes under the First-Time Homebuyers Program.

Looking toward the future, Comer said there will be more improvements made to its facilities in addition to the recent installation of new elevators and sprinklers. Currently, there is a pricetag of about $15 million in construction costs the authority must address, he noted.

Plans are also moving along for the April 26 50th anniversary celebration, which will include a social hour, dinner and dancing, and a historical display about the authority. More than 300 people, including Gov. William Weld, have been invited.

As if all that weren't enough, a groundbreaking for a new handicapped facility on Curtis Avenue in Quincy Point is scheduled for the near future.

But although the Quincy Housing Authority will continue to change in the future—as it has in the past—with new programs and facilities, its ultimate objective will always remain the same, Comer noted.

"I just want to keep and maintain the status quo to provide safe and sanitary housing," he said. "That's the primary goal."

Planning Board Recommends Marina Court Condo Proposal

pleasing aesthetic. The projected price range of these homes was to be $145,000 to $185,000.

Between November 1995 and February 1996, Thorndike Development participated in more than two dozen meetings with city officials, private individuals, and neighborhood groups to discuss Marina Court. During the gatherings, some raised concerns that the plan proposed too many homes with inadequate parking. Others said that there was not enough open space, and that size and pricing of the homes might undermine property values at Marina Bay.

The developer responded by re-evaluating its plan and offering significant improvements in a proposal presented to Marina Bay residents on March 6.

Under the new plan, the number of homes had been reduced from 330 to 268 to decrease density and create open space. Parking spaces were increased from 1.5 to 2.0 per home. The percentage of homes with attached garages were raised from 46 percent to 71 percent. Two new home styles were also introduced, each approximately 1,900 square feet with an attached garage.

With this option, the units would range from 1,200 to 1,900 square feet. In the current market, Thorndike Development projects the homes to sell from $150,000 to $225,000.

Five new open spaces were also added in the proposal, along with improvements to the pool and clubhouse facility. For one of these spaces, situated along Victory Lane, the developer offered to construct a linear park. This green belt would allow for a tree-lined pedestrian boulevard, linking the boardwalk to the natural resource area at Marina Bay. The park would also increase resident privacy, while enhancing the natural beauty of the community.

"This is an answer for long-time residents, anxious to sell their homes, who want to remain in the city. Additionally, young, financially stable individuals and couples—many of whom have grown up locally—will now be able to live in a new home in their hometown with Marina Court."

Glennon Succeeds McDuff After Latter's Resignation

New City GOP Head Calls For Party Unity

By MICHAEL WHALEN

The new chairman of the Quincy Republican City Committee thinks this can be a "big year" for the GOP, provided the party begins working to overcome its differences in order to achieve unity.

Brian Glennon II, 24, was elected chairman of the committee last week following the resignation of John McDuff. Previously, he served as vice chairman for the two years McDuff was head of the committee.

McDuff, 62, a Republican for more than 40 years, stepped down because of what he sees as an increasingly liberal Republican Party in Massachusetts. He has joined the Conservative Party as chairman of the Quincy Conservative Committee and is helping with former Quincy resident Susan Gallagher's campaign for the U.S. Senate.

"It has become apparent to me as a social conservative that social liberals are firmly in charge of our state party, and since I cannot affect change within the party that I believe is necessary, it is time to go elsewhere," McDuff said in a written statement. "I, for one, am tired of making campaign contributions, gathering signatures and holding signs, only to have my views ignored by those we helped elect."

Glennon said McDuff's resignation is unfortunate because he is "an intelligent man" who made invaluable contributions to the GOP over the years. He added that "our door is always open" to McDuff should he decide to return to the Republican Party.

Glennon also noted that McDuff's resignation comes at a time when Gov. William Weld has a good chance of unseating Sen. John Kerry in the U.S. Senate. Kansas Sen. Robert Dole may well defeat President Bill Clinton in the fall, and the GOP may increase its majority in Congress after the November election.

All of these things can happen, Glennon said, if Republicans in Massachusetts and elsewhere unite to iron out their differences and allow a "healing process" to begin. While there are so-called "liberal" and "conservative" facets in the party platform, he noted, the differences must not be allowed to divide the GOP.

BRIAN GLENNON II

JOHN MCDUFF

"I'm confident we can have a big year, but we need to make it happen by coming together," said Glennon, a full-time student at Suffolk University Law School in Boston. "It doesn't do anyone any good to be fighting with one another."

"We can realistically win these races, but the grassroots people have to step up to do what we can to make it happen."

Glennon said he currently has no formal plans for the city committee because he is concentrating on his law studies, but he added that he will do whatever he can to unite the Republicans in Quincy, a city that is 75 percent Democratic.

McDuff said last week that four other members of the Quincy Republican City Committee joined him in resigning in protest, but only two—Anne and Patrick O'Donnell—made their names available to the press.

Glennon said that other than McDuff, he did not know who had resigned from the party.

Councillors: Keep Hospital 'Public'

QUINCY HOSPITAL CEO/DIRECTOR Ralph DiPisa speaks before the City Council on a proposed affiliation between the hospital and Carney Hospital in Dorchester. More than 150 people packed City Hall to attend the public hearing Monday night.

By MICHAEL WHALEN

The City Council is seeking to ensure that Quincy Hospital will remain a public institution, even if a proposed affiliation with Carney Hospital in Dorchester takes place.

The council unanimously passed a resolution introduced by Ward 2 Councillor Daniel Raymondi stating that the hospital will continue to operate as a public institution and that any language to the contrary be purged from the home-rule petition that will make the affiliation possible.

The council passed the resolution after listening to testimony at a public hearing on the matter Monday night. Those who spoke at the hearing said that while a proposed affiliation between Quincy and Carney hospitals is desirable, the current legislation through which it would be done is not, primarily because the city would lose too much control over Quincy Hospital.

Raymondi said he introduced the resolution because the one thing that stuck out in his mind after hearing the testimony is that there was "almost unanimity" about the hospital remaining a public institution.

"I'm gratified to hear that," he said.

More than 150 people, mostly union workers and employees representing the two hospitals, attended the hearing at City Hall.

Those who spoke against the petition voiced concerns that the city's reduced role at Quincy Hospital could create problems for employees as well as lower-income patients. They argued employees' rights must be protected and that a

Diaz Back This Week To Face Murder Charge

John A. "Tony" Diaz, the accused killer of 25-year-old Dawn Brown of North Quincy, could be arraigned on a charge of first-degree murder in Norfolk Superior Court in Dedham this Friday.

Norfolk County District Attorney William Delahunt said Monday Diaz would likely be flown to Massachusetts from Florida sometime this week. Although it was believed Diaz could be returned to the Bay State yesterday (Wednesday) day) and arraigned as early as Friday, that could not be confirmed at press time.

Diaz, who had been hiding in the South American nation of Guyana, was flown back to the United States Monday after a Guyanese judge ruled last Friday that he should be deported from Guyana to face the murder charge.

On Monday, mechanical problems canceled Diaz' direct flight from Guyana to Miami, forcing State Police to take a flight through Trinidad. Diaz ran from authorities minutes after stepping off a British West Airlines flight at the Trinidad airport, but was captured after running about 50 yards.

Officials said Diaz later apologized about trying to escape.

Diaz was then brought to Miami where he was turned over to federal authorities. On Tuesday, while in Florida, he was to face a federal

Kolson Appoints Harold, McDermott To Energy Committee

City Council President Peter Kolson announced Tuesday the appointments of Councillor Paul Harold and Ward 3 Councillor Patrick McDermott to a Consumer Energy Committee which will deal with the deregulation of the electric utility industry in Massachusetts.

The state is among the first in the country to pioneer deregulation, Kolson noted.

"We must take advantage of this deregulation to give the city of Quincy the maximum potential savings for residential, commercial and industrial users," he said.

Harold introduced a resolution at the council's March 18 meeting requesting the council president to appoint two members to this committee and the mayor to appoint three citizens to the committee to examine the issue and report back to the City Council no later than Nov. 1.

Kolson said he wants to focus on potential savings for Quincy. If the city becomes an aggregator, it will have choices as to where to buy its power. It will be able to take bids for energy as it does for other services.

"It is absolutely imperative to obtain the lowest possible price for utilities and as soon as the mayor appoints three members to the Consumer Energy Committee, the city will be on its way to realizing the savings to which it is entitled," he said.

Kolson was recently appointed to the National Energy, Environment and Natural Resources Committee which meets periodically to present issues to Congress and the President of the United States.

"It is an honor for me to serve on a national policy setting committee, and I look forward to meeting the challenges that lie ahead for the City of Quincy in this regard," said Kolson.

Fireman Pledges 'Full Cooperation' In Dole Contributions Charges

SIMON FIREMAN

Quincy resident Simon C. Fireman pledges to "cooperate fully" if an investigation is made into claims he and his Avon-based sporting goods firm gave $40,000 in illegal contributions to Republican Sen. Bob Dole's Presidential campaign.

Fireman, who is out of the country, said this week in a statement issued by a publicity firm:

"I am deeply troubled by the reports of alleged improprieties in connection with a fundraiser I co-sponsored on behalf of Sen. Robert Dole. To my knowledge, there were no violations of any federal campaign finance laws."

The allegations surfaced Sunday, when the Kansas City Star reported that Fireman, employees and employees' family members wrote $1,000 checks to the Dole campaign in 1995.

One contributor allegedly told the newspaper that employees of Aqua-Leisure Industries were given stacks of $100 bills in return for the checks. Other Aqua-Leisure employees, however, denied that they were pressured into making the donations.

Federal election law prohibits individuals from giving more than $1,000 to a presidential candidate, or from giving other persons money which they then give to the candidate.

"I have been an active public servant on behalf of two Republican presidents and a fundraiser on behalf of a number of federal candidates," Fireman said in his statement. "This is the first time that anyone has ever sought to mischaracterize my involvement in political fundraising activities."

The Dole campaign has told the Federal Election Commission about the charges. Fireman said if the FEC investigates them, "I intend to cooperate fully. I am confident that my involvement in this matter will be favorably resolved in a short period of time."

Ann Carter, a vice president with the Rasky and Co., the publicity firm that issued the statement, declined to say whether Fireman—who is currently out of the country—has been in touch with the Dole campaign.

Fireman, 70, grew up in Quincy's Hospital Hill neighborhood. He now lives in a Marina Bay condominium.

Aqua-Leisure manufactures inflatable pool toys and swimming and diving masks. Fireman founded the company in 1970, and later merged Marine Hardware and Supply into the new firm.

A former Democrat, he has been an enthusiastic Republican contributor since 1980, when he supported Ronald Reagan over President Jimmy Carter, who had appointed Fireman to a Commerce Department advisory committee. During the 1992 election, he was vice chairman of the Bush-Quayle National Finance Committee.

As a Democrat, he was finance chairman for former state Attorney General Frank Bellotti of Quincy in 1976. He was also a member of the Quincy Hospital Board of Managers from 1977 to 1981.

In the 1960s, Fireman was elected president of Temple Beth El in Quincy and was appointed to the Massachusetts World's Fair Commission by Gov. Endicott Peabody.

Today, Fireman is known for his philanthropy. In January, he donated $500,000 to Quincy Hospital, another $500,000 to the Hebrew Rehabilitation Center for the Aged and $1 million to Beth Israel Hospital.

Germantown Council To Hold First Meeting

The newly-formed Germantown Neighborhood Council, which hopes to reduce the risks in their neighborhood, will hold its first meeting Monday, April 29.

Meetings will be held Mondays from 6 to 8:30 p.m. through June 10 at the Germantown Neighborhood Center. Light refreshments will be available. All Germantown residents are encouraged to attend.

The council, using the nationally-known framework for community action called Together We Can and with the support of Impact Quincy, will work to protect area children.

Steve Ward of Impact Quincy, who along with Pat Thorley of the Atlantic Neighborhood Center is serving as co-facilitator to the group, said "50 years of prevention efforts have taught us that relying on outside sources to solve inside problems hasn't worked. It doesn't work for the addict who looks to drugs and it doesn't work for the community that depends on outside funding.

"Drug abuse, violence and AIDS are not someone else's problems, they are our problems. Our number one priority as a community has to be our kids. Our kids, our future, our solutions."

Together We Can builds consensus in a community while building a plan for that community. It seeks output from every community member. It uses community resources to make the effort possible and attempts to support and endorse protective efforts on behalf of children while at the same time reducing the risk factors.

For more information, call Ward at 472-6027.

AIDS QUILT panels were recently on display in the gymnasium at Quincy High School. Thirty-nine countries contributed panels for the quilt, which bears the names of AIDS victims and in total weighs 38 tons. Quincy High students Sara Churchill, Shawn Walsh and Nicole Flaherty were among those who viewed the panels.

Hearing Held On Roche Bros. Special Permit

The City Council held a public hearing Monday night regarding the 1994 granting of a special permit for the construction of the Roche Bros. Supermarket in Quincy Point.

Ward 2 Councillor Daniel Raymond asked that the hearing be held because he wanted to see if the criteria under which the permit was grant still exists today. Roche Bros. recently asked for a liquor license--which was denied by the Quincy License Board--despite not having requested one at the time the permit was granted.

Raymond said he wants such companies to be "up front" about their intentions to sell alcohol at a given site.

Roche Bros. President Bob Roche, one of only two people to testify at the hearing, said space had been set aside for liquor sales during construction. Councillor Michael Cheney, however, agreed with Raymond that a license to sell alcohol was never requested.

Raymond said there are already too many liquor licenses in the neighborhood. When Roche suggested the possibility of the supermarket buying out an existing license in the city as a compromise, Cheney agreed that might be the proper solution.

Ward 4 Crime Watch Meeting Set For April 30

The Ward 4 Crime Watch organized by Ward 4 Councillor Michael D'Amico will hold an initial meeting Tuesday, April 30 at 7 p.m. at the Ward 4 Community Center, 100 Brooks Ave.

Joining D'Amico at the meeting will be Officer Robert Hanna and other Quincy Police Department representatives.

D'Amico said the goal of the meeting will be to establish Crime Watch Captains and other participants in each precinct of the ward with the plan of coming together regularly to address public safety concerns. He will also update residents on the increased police foot patrols which have been authorized in key areas, and Hanna will offer tips on crime prevention.

For more information, call D'Amico at 774-0289 or 376-1341.

Applications Available For Fuel Assistance

Quincy Community Action Programs (QCAP) is once again accepting applications for Fuel Assistance.

The federal government recently released additional funds for the Fuel Assistance Program. As a result, the deadline for applications has been changed to May 10.

Residents of Quincy, Weymouth, Braintree, and Milton who need help in paying their home heating bills may be eligible for the federally-funded program. Eligibility is based upon household size and total gross annual income.

In determining annual income, QCAP uses an applicant's last four weeks of information. The system works to the advantage of households that have experienced reduced income within the past few months.

Simplified, eligibility is as follows: one household member, annual income of $11,205 or below; two, $15,045 or below; three, $18,885 or below. A figure of $3,840 should be added for each additional household member.

The amount of benefit ranges up to $430, depending upon both income level and household size. Fuel Assistance Program recipients are also eligible for a 33 percent discount on Mass. Electric bills, 20 percent discount on Boston Gas bills, and/or $9.50 off on monthly NYNEX telephone bills.

Homeowners and tenants may be eligible. All types of heat, including oil, gas, electric, and others are covered with the program. Cases in which heat is included in the rent or rent is subsidized are also included.

SHOCKING HEART TREATMENT

Anyone who has fallen in love or lost a wallet knows what a racing heart feels like. A life-threatening heartbeat irregularity is something entirely different. Sudden death from such arrhythmia was once considered virtually unpreventable, but recent advances in medical technology are helping thousands of people live with the condition. The reprieve is available from a "defibrillator," a battery-powered heart implant about the size of a deck of cards. When the device detects a potentially lethal heart rhythm, an electrical shock is delivered, restoring the heart to its natural pace. Improved defibrillators require less extensive surgery than earlier versions, resulting in quicker patient recovery. P.S. A defibrillator works by slowing down a racing heart, while a pacemaker speeds up lagging heartbeats.

The advances in cardiac care are astounding, so don't suffer unnecessarily. At COMPREHENSIVE MEDICAL CARE, Dr. Lisa Antonelli and I specialize in heart disease. I am affiliated with Quincy Hospital and South Shore Hospitals. Hours by appointment. Call me or Dr. Lisa Antonelli with questions at 472-2550. I am a member of the American College of Cardiology and the American Heart Ass'n. Convenient parking. We enjoy making your life easier.

Delegation Looks Intact

It appears Quincy's Beacon Hill delegation will remain intact for at least the next two years.

Senator Michael Morrissey and Reps. Michael

Bellotti, Ron Mariano and Steve Tobin appear to have no opposition with only five days left before the April 30 deadline for filing nomination papers.

Unless 11th hour challengers step forward all three will be automatic winners in the Sept. 17 primary and again in the Nov. 5 final election.

No potential major contenders have been heard, indicating if any opposition steps forward it won't be on a heavyweight scale.

A FAMILIAR POLITICAL name is in the 10th Congressional District race.

Francis W. Sargent, Jr. of Orleans has nomination papers out for the Republican nomination for the seat Gerry Studts will be leaving this year. Sargent is the son of former Gov. Francis Sargent.

With that name, Sargent would have to be considered a major player. He is the third Republican with nomination papers in circulation. The other two are Edward Teague of Yarmouth and Keith Hemeon of Sandwich. There's speculation, however, that Hemeon might bow out.

Quincy's William Delahunt, Norfolk County district attorney, and Walter Murray of Hull are after the Democratic nomination.

QUINCY COLLEGE PRESIDENT Dr. Jeremiah

(Jerry) Ryan and his wife, Gail, are now official residents of Quincy. They have moved into their new home on Whitwell St. where they will now be able to spend the time together they had sought.

Ryan was vice president of marketing, planning and development at Hartford Community College in Bel Air, Md., before coming to Quincy College last month, while she was human resources director at a Rochester, N.Y. firm.

"It was a commuter marriage," Ryan mused. But no longer. Mrs. Ryan plans to work in the Quincy area.

And, the two have fallen in love with their new hometown of Quincy.

"There is so much here," he says. "It's perfect."

IT WILL BE a proud day--and surely an emotional one--for Bernie Reisberg May 2. Bernie, who owns Bernies's Modern Formal Shop and is Quincy's harbormaster, will be among those honored at Law Day ceremonies that day at Quincy District Court.

Bernie will be presented with the Jason Feldman Award which is named for the late Quincy Center businessman for his work with troubled youth through court programs.

The Feldmans and the Reisbergs go back a long way. In the mid 1920's Bernie's father, Samuel, started the Modern Tailor Shop (where Finian's is now) and Jason's father, Nathan, started Jason's Music and Luggage Shop just down the street.

Bernie and Jason grew up together on Grafton St. in Quincy Point and later were neighbors on Quincy Shore Drive.

Bernie's Formal Shop is an off-shoot of his father's tailor shop and Jason took over his father's music shop.

Both became active in the downtown business community and both served as president of the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association.

Jason died in 1980. The following year the area at Hancock and Cliveden Sts. was dedicated as Jason Feldman Square and Bernie was master of ceremonies.

"Receiving this award named for a long-time dear friend is so meaningful to me," says Bernie.

MARY LINNANE, who has been a landmark of her own as housekeeper-receptionist at St. John's Rectory for 34 years, is retiring in May.

A Liturgy of Thanksgiving in her honor will be celebrated at St. John's Sunday at 5:30 p.m., followed by a reception in the lower church hall.

Mary has served as housekeeper under five pastors: Msgr. Frederick Driscoll, Bishop Joseph Maguire, John Tierney, William McCarthy and current pastor, Peter Quinn.

Happy retirement, Mary. We're going to miss you and that friendly smile.

MILESTONE: Joe Hajjar, owner of Joe's Pub/

Yardrock Cafe, and wife, Lisa, are parents of a son, David Joseph, who weighed in at 7 pounds, 9 ounces at Quincy Hospital April 17. The welcoming committee includes: big brother, Joseph 25, sisters Nicole, 22 and Emily, 4, and the proud grandparents, the Quincy Housing Authority's Joseph Hajjar and Nancy; and retired city plumbing inspector Joseph Renzi and Helen.

Joe says he is a "Quarter Century Dad" with one son 25 and another 25 years younger.

Incidentally, he is putting the final touches to plans for his fourth annual City of Presidents Blues Festival scheduled for Sunday, June 30 at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

FORMER WOLLASTON RESIDENT Brian Watts was recently elected to a three-year term on the Kingston School Committee in his first run for public office.

He is the son of Lawrence and Marie Watts of Wollaston. She is the very capable secretary at the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS OLD POSTCARD postmarked in 1910 is a view of the original wooden St. Chrysostom's Episcopal church and parsonage on the corner of Linden and Hancock Streets in Wollaston. Built in 1894, both of these buildings have been replaced. The present church is of Weymouth seam-face granite and a much smaller modern house has been provided for the church's minister.

As A Conservative Democrat...

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

Many people keep asking me why I call myself a Democrat when I sound so Republican. I still don't exactly know what they mean when they say I'm "sounding Republican."

Recently, Rosemary Wahlberg, Executive Director of QCAP, Inc., criticized my position on bilingual preschool for four-year-olds.

I am equally sure that when it comes to my positions on "punitive" immigration policies, affirmative action, "dumbing down," education policies and a return of the death penalty, we are also in disagreement. However, when it comes to the need for affordable housing, jobs creation and a strong public school system, we probably agree more than not.

As a conservative Democrat, I agree with Dr. John Silber in the belief that all children should benefit from Headstart programs. I support early childhood education reforms, but I don't think it should start in the hospital maternity ward, as some liberals seem to desire. I also support raising the minimum wage because no one can raise a family on $4.25 an hour. I want to see entitlement programs reformed but without hurting children in the process. However, I would never just kiss up to any of those special interest groups out there benefiting from the status quo.

One can be a Democrat and still oppose abortion.

One can be a Democrat and support a family cap on those receiving entitlements. One can be a Democrat and oppose racist affirmative action policies. One can be a Democrat and oppose all of the above without having other folks say one is mean-spirited.

You know what, don't call me a Reagan Democrat—call me a Jack Kennedy Democrat, because that's what Ronald Reagan probably could have been labelled back in the Fifties.

My father believed in Franklin Delano Roosevelt and Jack Kennedy because they stood for the real Democratic Party. I remain a Democrat because I believe the Democratic Party can still be the real party again. You say tomato, I say toMAto; you say potato, I say poTAto. Dialogue and debate is good for the Democrats.

One final note: In 1992 I voted for the candidate who said he never inhaled. In 1996, I'll be waiting to exhale that choice. Silly me four years ago, eh?

A 'Thank You' From Union Congregational Church

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

We would like to thank the community of Quincy for helping make our centennial year the wonderful success that it was. (In particular, we would be remiss if we did not make specific mention of Bernard Reisberg of Bernie's Modern Formal Shop of Quincy whose kindness, advice and generosity contributed greatly to adding a special visional flair to our Centennial Services.)

In this day of corporate downsizing and the aloofness of many businesses, what a breath of fresh air Bernie's is! We would recommend Bernie's Modern Formal Shop to anyone for a quality product and feel Quincy is very fortunate in having such a fine institution.

Hockey Coaches Back School-Owned Rink

By PAUL HAROLD

Hockey coaches Bob Sylvia of QHS and Ron Erickson of NQHS voiced their support for a school-owned ice rink, on the eve of the City Council's consideration of the $2.05 million project.

April 25 - May 1

24 Years Ago

The coaches noted that privately-owned rinks were making it extremely difficult for high school teams to buy ice time. "Because our season is only three months and youth hockey books time from September to May, private owners favor youth hockey," Sylvia said. Erickson said the school teams (senior and junior varsities as well as junior high school teams) could use up to eight hours a day of ice time.

The complex, proposed for the area behind the Vocational-Technical School, would include besides the ice rink, an athletic complex as well as new school administration offices.

Councillor Joseph LaRaia said he would move to delete monies for the offices, estimated at $480,000.

350 ATTEND FUNERAL FOR MYRON LANE

Former District Attorney Myron Lane, age 64, of Dewson Rd., was buried following a funeral at the United Methodist Church in Wollaston. More than 350 people attended the funeral service.

Lane held a number of elected positions in the city and county including Ward 5 councillor, council president, state representative and Norfolk County District Attorney. He was first appointed assistant attorney when Plymouth and Norfolk were separated in 1951 and later elected as D.A. when the position was created in Norfolk County.

A Veteran of World War II, he served as counsel during the war crimes trials in Dachau, Germany.

EATON TO HEAD WATER DEPARTMENT

Mayor Walter Hannon officially appointed Owen Eaton of Whiton Ave. as superintendent of the water department. The appointment to the $13,000 position was subject to Civil Service approval and an exam.

Eaton succeeded Robert Barry who retired after 47 years service to the city.

The appointment of Eaton came after a number of critical remarks by the mayor concerning the operations of the water department and the need for new meters to collect hundreds of thousands of dollars in lost revenues.

QUINCY-ISMS

Sen. George McGovern defeated Sen. Edward Muskie in Quincy and across the state in the Presidential Primary, though Quincy's results were still not tabulated as late as 9:30 a.m. the following day. Paul McCloskey and John Ashbrook. ... Patrolman Ralph Bergonzi rescued Helen Melville from her fifth floor apartment in Oceanview. Both were treated for smoke inhalation. ... Mrs. Louaine Hooper of Marsh St. was elected president of the Sons of Union Veterans of the Civil War. ... Retired executive vice president of the Quincy-South Shore Chamber of Commerce, William O'Connell, was to be awarded the Quincy Jaycees' distinguished service award. Tickets were available from David Mercier at the Colonial Federal Savings and Dale Pederson at the South Shore National Bank. ... Cream Puffs Or Eclairs Although cream puffs are a French-born delicacy, it's always been a family favorite of ours.

My niece Ann recently reminded me of how delicious and crisp cream puffs can be, and brought me the recipe. In addition, chocolate eclairs (another favorite) can also be made with the same recipe.

CREAM PUFFS

1 cup water
1/2 cup butter (or margarine)
1 cup flour
4 eggs

Heat water and butter to a boiling point.

Add the flour and stir vigorously overlow heat until mixture leaves the pan and forms into a ball (about one minute). Remove from heat.

Beat in thoroughly, one egg at a time.

Beat until smooth and velvety. Drop from spoon onto ungreased baking sheet 3 inches apart. Bake in a 400 degree oven for 45 minutes until golden brown and puffed. (if you make large ones). The recipe above makes eight large puffs. If you choose to make them smaller, they take about 30 minutes. Allow to cool slowly, away from drafts.

When cooled, cut off tops with sharp knife. Scoop out any filaments of soft dough and fill with sweetened fresh whipped cream. Replace tops and dust with powdered sugar. Serve cold.

For chocolate eclairs, follow the recipe above, except put the dough through a pastry tube or shape with spatula into 12 fingers four inches long and one inch wide. With a custard filling and frost with thin chocolate icing.

Alumnus To Perform At ENC Friday Night

Eastern Nazarene College will present Lee Stetson in the one man show "Conversation with a Tramp: An Evening with John Muir" Friday at 7 p.m. at Cove Fine Arts Auditorium, on the Wendell Avenue side of the campus.

This performance highlights the story of the visionary warrior for the wilderness, John Muir, the naturalist responsible for establishing Yosemite National Park and the National Park Service. The story takes place in Muir's home where his humor and charm are in full-flower at the outcome of a 25 year battle to save the park's beautiful valley. This performance is referred to as a fine model for environmental defense.

Stetson was student body president of Quincy Junior College and an outstanding intercollegiate debater and history major at ENC. He served in the Peace Corp in Thailand after graduation in 1964 and earned a graduate degree in American Studies at the University of Hawaii. In addition, he holds a Certificate in Arts Administration from Harvard University. He is a South Shore native and this will be his first professional appearance in this area.

Stetson's theatrical career includes founding the Hawaii Performing Arts company, artistic director of Hawaii Theater Festival and Antique Festival Theater of Idaho and free-lance directing throughout the Northwest. Lee has performed in more than 50 major roles from Shakespeare to Simon, and his television credits include a dozen episodes of Hawaii Five-O. He has been an acting instructor for many years, most recently at the Film Industry Workshops in Los Angeles. "Conversation With A Tramp" was first presented on April 21, 1983 in Yosemite Valley, and in a continuing effort to create interpretive dramatic productions for National Park visitors other productions written by Stetson have been added over the past decade.

The performance will be held at Cove Auditorium and is open to the public. Tickets are $8.

Morrissey Calls Tobacco Bill 'Landmark Legislation'

The Massachusetts Senate has passed legislation to require the disclosure of additives in cigarettes.

Sen. Michael Morrissey of Quincy said he considers the bill as "landmark legislation to increase the power of the consumer to choose through awareness."

If the legislation becomes law, Massachusetts would be the first state in the nation to require tobacco companies disclose product contents to the public.

Senate Bill 2191, the Tobacco Disclosure Bill, sponsored by Sen. Warren Tolman (D-Watertown) and carried out of the Senate Committee on Ways and Means to the Senate Floor by Morrissey, requires that manufacturers of any tobacco products sold in Massachusetts provide the Massachusetts Department of Public Health (DPH) with a list of all additives in cigarettes and provide accurate nicotine yield ratings for products beginning in 1997. The DPH would be responsible for making the information available to the public.

"I am very pleased that the Senate passed this important public health measure," said Morrissey. "Despite efforts of the tobacco lobby to confuse the issue, members of the Senate realize that consumers should have the right to know what additives are in cigarettes. I believe that the Senate's decision properly reflects and confirms the widespread bipartisan support across the Commonwealth for the bill."

BRIAN McDEVITT (second from left) executive vice president of the Bank of Braintree, was among those on hand who helped The Co-operative Bank celebrate the return of its headquarters to Concord during a special April Fool's Day event. NQHS' Maya Barahona Wins Quincy Poster And Art Contest

Maya Barahona, a ninth-grader at North Quincy High School, was named the overall winner at the city of Quincy's National Community Development Week Poster Contest and Art Exhibit.

Maya's entry, captioned "Putting money in to improve your city," was selected from a total of 430 entries from throughout Quincy Public Schools. Her winning artwork will represent Quincy's community development efforts in the form of a poster to be distributed throughout the city.

The contest and exhibit, sponsored by the city of Quincy and Quincy Public Schools, mark the celebration of National Community Development Week, scheduled for April 1-7. The contest was the first held in honor of Quincy's Community Development Block Grant Program, currently in its 22nd year.

The contest theme—"Meeting Needs at Home, in the Family and in the Neighborhood"—spawned many interpretations of the contributions CDBG-funded programs make to improving the quality of life in Quincy, from the literal to the symbolic. The contest was open to elementary, middle and high school students.

The judging committee was made up of both city and school officials, with the final judging process being done by Mayor James Sheets; Planning and Community Development Director Richard Meade; Caryn Smith, president of Quincy Center Business and Professional Association; and Barbara Papile, chairperson of the Quincy Family Council. They selected the top three winners in the elementary, middle and high school categories.

Each first place winner received a $100 savings bond, with second place winners being awarded a $75 bond, and third place winning a $50 bond. The overall winner received a $200 savings bond and $50 in cash.

The winners were:
Elementary: First place—Lucy Lou, fourth grade, Squantum School

Second place—Jennifer Gordon, fourth grade, Merymount School

Third place—David Vo, fourth grade, Beechwood Knoll School

Middle: First place—Mary Ng, sixth grade, Atlantic Middle School

Second place—Jenny

Lo, sixth grade, Atlantic Middle School

Third place—Jacqueline Kilian, eighth grade, Central Middle School

High School: First place—Maya Barahona, ninth grade, North Quincy High School (overall winner)

Second place—Nikki Chin, ninth grade, North Quincy High School

Third place—Kristin Moy, ninth grade, North Quincy High School

Since 1974, the CDBG program has enabled cities and towns to address the physical, economic and social challenges of urban communities.

Tips For A Successful Summer Move

There's little doubt that Americans will be on the move this summer.

You may be one of the many first-time buyers taking advantage of the lowest interest rates in 20 years, or, perhaps, a move-up buyer looking for a home with additional living space or amenities. You might also find that you're one of the more than 500,000 employees transferred each year to another part of the country.

Whatever the reason, you'll want to plan carefully to minimize the potential headaches of moving. The South Shore Association of Realtors offers the following tips for a successful move this summer.

"Begin your planning at least one month in advance," advises Mary Dawson, president of the South Shore Association of Realtors. "Confirm closing dates with your real estate professional before scheduling your moving date. If you're renting, confirm your move-in date. Make a list of all important documents that must be transferred, such as children's school records, financial and medical records."

Whether moving near or far, decide what must go with you. This is always a good time for cleaning closets or the basement where long-forgotten items are stored. You might consider holding a garage or moving sale to offset some of your moving expenses. If you're donating items to charitable organizations, don't forget to ask for a receipt for tax purposes.

Don't forget to send change of address cards to magazine publishers and organizations with which you are affiliated. Most magazines request four to six weeks advance notice. Provide change of address notice on credit card bills and leave forwarding instructions with the post office.

If you've hired a moving company, ask for boxes and packing paper. A local grocery store is a good source for boxes for the do-it-yourself mover. Ask for boxes in advance. Smaller stores may receive shipments only once a week and will only give away boxes if you're there at a specified time to pick them up.

Save old newspapers for packing material. For fragile items, you may want to consider buying special packing boxes to ensure their safety during transit. Wardrobe boxes may be purchased at many trailer rental locations for hanging clothes.

Try creative packing with odd-sized and fragile items. Move mattresses with old sheets on them to provide protection from dirt. Your antique floor lamp may best be moved rolled up in a rug, or a crystal decanter packed in the middle of bath towels to cushion it.

Don't let your creative packing lead to confusion when unpacking. Make certain all boxes are clearly labeled as to content. Of course, all boxes with breakable items should be labeled "fragile." For those things to precious to risk damage, move by hand, if possible.

Make a list of items to pack separately including those you'll need on the road, such as maps, prescription medicines and toys for children. List those you'll need to settle in, such as cleaning supplies, light bulbs and tools as well as those you'll need within the first few days of arrival, such as food and utensils for meals. Pack a suitcase that you could live out of for a few days if necessary.

"Keep important papers, such as medical records and insurance policies, in one place where they can be retrieved quickly if needed," Dawson adds. "Also, keep careful records of all your moving expenses, as some may be tax deductible."

Two weeks before moving day, contact local utility companies to let them know when to disconnect service. Arrange for utility service in your new home. Plan carefully for the transfer of checking and savings accounts.

On the actual moving day, make sure someone meets the movers and indicates which items are to be loaded on the truck. If you're taking on the task of moving yourself, organize loading to maximize space in the truck and ensure that the heavy box of books doesn't get loaded on top of your china.

Upon arriving at your new home, take a quick survey of each room. Check the fuse box or circuit breakers to make sure the power is turned on. Is the house or apartment in the condition you were advised it would be? Now is the time to raise concerns with any unexpected condition, not three weeks after you've moved in. Call family and friends to let them know you've arrived safely.

The South Shore Association of Realtors is one of more than 1,800 local boards and associations of realtors nationwide that comprise the National Association of Realtors. As the nation's largest trade association, NAR is "The Voice for Real Estate," representing nearly 750,000 members involved in all aspects of the real estate industry.

90-Day Stay Granted On Back Taxes

The Quincy License Board Tuesday, granted a 90-day stay on a threatened foreclosure and license suspension to the owner of land who owes the city $12,575.41 in back taxes.

The stipulation is for Michael Condon, through the Marina Bay Taxi to pay $1,000 a month. Owner of the cab company Basil Tawfik will pay his rent to his attorney Kevin Burke who in turn will send it to City Treasurer Dana Childs.

Childs told the board he would foreclose if the taxes weren't paid.

Condon apologized for not being able to pay the taxes and told the board he "simply didn't have the money". He said he is in the process of trying to refinance which "is not as easy as I thought". He noted however, he had been paying his current taxes and said that a couple of business deals had not realized what was expected. He then asked the board for the 90 day extension to pay his back taxes.

Seemingly doubting Condon's intentions, Childs told the board that in June, 1995, Condon promised to pay $2,500 to start and then $1,000 a month until the taxes were paid. Childs said he received the initial payment, and then $500 after that and nothing since.

Childs said he had written a letter last August to Condon, but didn't receive a response.

The board then voted to have Marina Bay Taxi pay their monthly rent to Burke.

At first, Childs balked at the suggestion and said he was not a "rent collector", but later agreed to abide by the board's decision.

Fire Chief Thomas Gorman made a motion for Condon to return in 30 days for review.

After a number of complaints from neighbors regarding the conditions surrounding the cab stand, Tawfik was told to stop parking his cabs in the rear of 82 Sumner St., because it is zoned Residence A. He was also told to keep the number of his cabs between six and eight and not 12 or more.

Because Marina Bay Taxi also services Milton and Braintree, Tawfik was told that no Milton or Braintree cabs will be allowed to park at the Quincy site.

Chairman Joseph Shea said there is simply "no room at the site" and said originally when the board voted for a cab company to lease the property, it was for six or eight cabs and not 12 to 19.

Tawfik was represented by Kevin Burke.

Delahunt Raises Another $153,818 For Congressional Campaign

William D. Delahunt reports his campaign raised $153,818 in the first quarter of 1996, leaving him with a balance of $216,450, cash on hand.

Norfolk County District Attorney since 1975, Delahunt is seeking to succeed retiring Congressman Gerry Studds in the 10th Congressional District.

Delahunt attributes his fundraising success to the support he has received from families, working men and women, and labor unions. To date, over 1,000 individuals have contributed to Delahunt's campaign.

Supporters in the 10th District have been collecting nomination signatures for Delahunt, and local elected officials are supporting him.

Delahunt also received $20,050 from political action committees representing organized labor. Contributions were received from the International Association of Firefighters, IBEW, Bricklayers & Allied Craftsmen, Ironworkers, Utility Workers, and the Food & Commercial Workers, the International Longshoreman's Assn. and the Seafarers Union, among others.

Delahunt raised a total of $299,450 since last year in a race that most observers expect will cost at least $1 million.

Informational Brunch About Marina Court Proposal Draws Good Turnout

Approximately 150 people attended a free brunch and open house at Marina Bay Sunday to learn more about the Marina Court condominium proposal.

The event was sponsored by Thorndike Development that is interested in building the community. Visitors were given details about the Marina Court plan, ranging from home costs to the roughly $700,000 in annual property tax revenues the City stands to gain through the project.

"We want to make sure that everyone with an interest in this proposal has the opportunity to learn the facts about Marina Court", said the managing partner of Thorndike Development Lloyd Geisinger. "The Open House again showed up that as the details of this project have become clearer, support has grown significantly. People also appreciate that we've made dramatic changes to this plan to accommodate the concerns of some Marina Bay residents. We will continue talking with the public and local officials in order to communicate the benefits that Marina Court holds for all of Quincy."

The brunch, which is also scheduled for April 28, is one of the meetings Thorndike Development has been involved in recently. Between November, 1995 and last February '96 alone, the company participated in more than two dozen community meetings. During these, some Marina Bay residents raised concerns about parking, open spaces, and size pricing of the homes undermining existing property values. The developer responded by re-evaluating the plan and offering major improvements in a proposal presented to Marina Bay residents in March.

Under that plan, the number of homes was reduced from 330 to 268 to decrease density and create more open space. Parking spaces were increased from 1.5 to 2.0 per home. The percentage of homes with attached garages were raised from 46 percent to 71 percent. Two new home styles were also introduced each approximately 1,900 square feet with an attached garage, and unit size ranging from 1,200 to 1,900 square feet. Thorndike Development projected the homes would sell from $150,000 to $225,000.

Five new open spaces were also added in the proposal, along with improvements to the pool and clubhouse facility. For one of these spaces, situated along Victory Lane, the developer offered to construct a Linear Park. This green belt would allow for a free lined pedestrian boulevard, linking the boardwalk to the natural resource area at Marina Bay. The Linear Park would also increase resident privacy, while enhancing the natural beauty of the community.

Though the revised proposal met many Marina Bay resident concerns, Thorndike Development said it is again making adjustments in an attempt to work cooperatively with the community. Geisinger has announced that under a soon-to-be-released plan, the number of buildings will be further reduced by including four mid-rise condominiums, accompanied by underground parking. Measures to enhance the finishes within the units would be undertaken, raising the price range of the homes from $175,000 to $325,000. The new design will also add a three-quarter acre park to the property, significantly increasing the overall amount of open space at the site.

"We are confident that the new proposal will answer those few remaining concerns," continued Geisinger. "This project would complete the Marina Bay community as it was envisioned years ago. It would support the restaurants and shops along the boardwalk, too. Fees paid by the condominium association would also fund maintenance and repair work on areas that both residents and visitors enjoy."

"Then there are the benefits for the entire city," added Geisinger. "Marina Court will contribute property tax revenues of approximately $700,000 each year. It will also provide crucial new housing for the city."

"This is an answer for longtime residents, anxious to sell their homes but hoping to remain in Quincy. And young individuals and couples will also be able to live in their hometown."

Hosts New Bedford, Weymouth Raiders Look To Rebound After Silver Lake Loss

North Quincy had another chance to get back on the winning track with a home game Wednesday against New Bedford.

The Raiders, 1-1 in the Old Colony League and 1-4 overall heading in yesterday's contest, dropped a 9-4 decision to Silver Lake at Adams Field Monday.

The Lakers staked a 5-1 lead after three innings, scoring three runs in the first, one in the second, and another in the third. The Raiders scored two runs in the home half of the fourth and added another in the seventh but never solved Laker right-hander Eric Beltramini who went the distance for Silver Lake.

After Silver Lake scored three runs in the first, the Raiders got on the board on a Tim Zaniboni sacrifice fly. But then North gave the run right back. John Fiumara was walked with the bases loaded, forcing in Beltramini.

North surrendered another run in the third, and then watched as four Laker runs reached home in the fourth, to make it 9-1.

The Raiders responded with two runs in the bottom of the fourth. Zaniboni singled and scored on Jeremy Nielson's RBI triple to right-center. Nielson scored when Brian Beaton reached on an error to make it 9-3.

North tried to rally in the seventh but fell short. John Conlon led with a double to left and scored on a Zaniboni RBI single. Beltramini settled down to retire the Raiders and record their first OCL victory.

Coach Dave Perdios was hoping his Raiders could muster up a better effort as the baseball season swings into high gear.

After Wednesday's game, North will host Weymouth at Adams Field Monday. First pitch 4 p.m.

Quincy Bests Brookline But Bows To New Bedford

Quincy High School baseball team didn't savor last Friday's 11-2 win over Brookline too long.

The Presidents were blanked by non-league opponent New Bedford on Monday, falling to 1-4.

Quincy turned in its best effort of the young season against Brookline as senior pitcher Jeff Russell hurled a two-hitter. The win was the team's first this spring.

Russell fanned eight. Brookline's two runs were both unearned.

Offensively, Steve Wiltshire had two triples and four RBI to lead the Presidents at the plate. Mike Russo contributed two hits and two RBI for Quincy.

The Presidents traveled to Plymouth South Wednesday and will host Falmouth today (Thursday) at 4 p.m. at Adams Field. The Presidents will also be home against Weymouth next Monday and again next Wednesday versus Silver Lake. Both games will begin at 4 p.m. at Adams Field.

Dominique, Laing Top Finishers Richardson Road Race Raises $6,000 For Library Expansion

The inaugural Richardson 5K Road Race Sunday attracted some 350 runners and walkers of all ages and raised approximately $6,000 for the Thomas Crane Public Library's expansion project.

Bob Dominique of Quincy and Gayle Laing of Braintree were the top finishers in the race which drew runners from throughout the region and as far as Providence, R.I.

The race was a fundraiser for the library's expansion project estimated at $10.7 million. Library officials hope to gain the lion's share of the cost through grants. They also want to raise $1 million through private donations and fundraisers like Sunday's race.

Dominique, the overall winner, ran the 3.1-mile route in 18:00. Rounding the other top male runners were Christopher Sarno of Medford, who was second with a time of 18:18; and Robert Bowles of Hanover was third, 18:22.

Laing's time of 20:20 was first in the female division. Two Quincy residents captured the next fastest times: Anne Marie McDonnell, second, 22:30; and Kathleen Dunn, third, 22:32.

Kiwanis Bicycle Rodeo, Safety Day May 11

The Kiwanis Club of Quincy will sponsor its third annual Bicycle Rodeo and Pedestrian Safety Day on Saturday, May 11 from 9:30 to 1 p.m. at Lincoln-Hancock School.

The safety course will be set up in the school parking area on Water St., across from Kincaide Field.

Each year, approximately 400 children age 14 and younger are killed in bicycle crashes. Thousands more are treated in emergency rooms for bicycle-related injuries.

While bicycle helmets have been shown to reduce the risk of head injury by 85 percent, only 5 percent of all children cyclists nationwide use bicycle helmets, statistics show. Many children and their parents are unaware of these statistics and the basic techniques for staying safe while riding a bicycle.

The Quincy Kiwanis Club is committed to preventing accidental injury in children and will be offering approved bicycle helmets at the rodeo. There will also be several bicycle stations where riders, and pedestrians, can learn safety skills and practice them in a safe setting.

All children and their parents are invited to participate in the event and help reduce the number of childhood bicycle related injuries.

Girls' Track

Quincy Girls' Dominate Taunton For First Victory

The Quincy High School girls' track team is off to a strong start.

The girls dominated Taunton, 97-39, in their first meet by taking first in all 16 events. Led by Erin Barry, winner in the shot put, high jump and 800 meter, three other team members were dual winners. Liz Sawan (mile, 400 meter), Suzanne Civitarese (100 meter hurdles, triple jump) and Karey McNaught (100 meter, long jump), all had great meets.

Other winners were Kristen Priscella (javelin), Katie Sullivan (discus), Kara McSweeney (300 meter hurdles), Julianne Jones (200 meter) and Kathryn Lencki (2 mile).

Other scorers were Erin Flaherty (long jump, mile), Pam Gray (300 meter hurdles), Leanne Martin (800 meter), Lisa Barrett (400 meter) and Maryanne Ashworth (2 mile).

Both relay teams were very successful in their debut. The 4 x 100 team of Amao, McNaught, Jones and Sullivan excelled as did the 4 x 400 team of Barrett, Gray, Martin and Flaherty.

In their second meet the Lady Presidents lost a close meet to powerful New Bedford, 77-54. Again, Barry, Priscella, Sullivan, McSweeney, Sawan and McNaught placed first. Other scorers were Mary Chenette, Suzanne Civitarese, Lisa Barrett, Julianne Jones, and Maryanne Ashworth.

Coach John Franceschini and coach Ray Papile are ecstatic over the performances and hard work being displayed by all the girls. The Lady Presidents are at Bridgewater-Raynham on today (Thursday).

North Quincy Girls' Fourth At NDA Frosh-Soph Meet

The warm weather finally arrived making the Notre Dame Freshmen-Sophomore meet in Hingham seem more appropriate like springtime in New England rather than spring in Alaska. The athletes responded appropriately.

With 68 points, one meet record and numerous personal bests, North Quincy's girls took fourth behind Burlington, Boston Latin and Foxboro. The Raiders finished ahead of host Notre Dame, Fontbonne, St. Claire's, Notre Dame-Tyngsboro and Weymouth.

Nicole Bertone was North's lone winner setting a new meet record of 89-foot, one-inch in the javelin. The old record was held by North Quincy's Christy Deputala. Seven other North Quincy athletes surpassed last year's meet attesting to the competitiveness of the meet.

The other results: 100 meter hurdles: Kelly Lockhead, 19.0 (3rd), Angela Scott, 20.4 (5th).

200 meters: Kellie Johnson, 27.8 (4th).

400 meters: Sharon Lee, 67.3 (3rd).

4 x 100 relay: Kim Huerth, Marianne Weiler, Nicole Weiler, Kellie Johnson, 56.5 (4th).

Long jump: Kellie Johnston, 13'3 3/4" (4th).

High jump: Angela Scott 4'8" (2nd); Marianne Weiler, 4'0" (6th).

Triple jump: Kim Huerth 28'5" (2nd).

Shot put: Lizz Ceurvels, 27'5" (2nd); Melissa Griffin fin 18'8" (6th).

Discus: Claire Quilty, 78'7" (3rd).

Coach Geoff Hennessy said the meet gave the athletes a solid experience from which to grow. "This provided a special opportunity for our young athletes to learn and develop for the future. We're very happy with how we did," he said.

The meet had a Quincy flavor as Fontbonne Head Coach Michelle Drury and Notre Dame assistant Mike Yee came from the "City of Presidents." Two-mile winner Jennifer Morton of Fontbonne, 400 meter runner-up Courtney Paquette and 300 hurdle runner-up Sarah O'Connor, both of Notre Dame Academy, are from Quincy.

Baseball

North Quincy Freshmen Fall To Silver Lake, 13-12

North Quincy's freshmen baseball team dropped a marathon game to Silver Lake coming up on the short end of a 13-12 score in North's opening game.

North had established a 12-2 lead going into the fifth inning before walks and errors let the Lakers back into the game.

Behind 2-0 early, North's bats came alive in

Kenny Mah's booming triple gave the Raiders the lead with Chad Fitzpatrick's single delivering Mah.

Ryan Barrett's double in the fourth drove in Jamie Grossi and Matt O'Mahoney. Eugene DeLisle then singled in Barrett to give North an 11-2 edge. Paul Markariu's double drove in Steve Ryan who had singled for North's final tally.

However, the Raiders committed nine miscues in the final three innings to hand the Lakers the victory.

Also playing well for North were Kevin Walsh, Brian Radell and Paul Hussey. North plays at New Bedford on Wednesday and hosts Taunton Friday.

Councillors: Keep Hospital 'Public'

public institution should treat all patients equally, regardless of economic status.

The council took no action on the petition. The matter will be taken up at the council's next meeting May 6.

In the meantime, Councilor Paul Harold, chairman of the council's Public Health and Hospital Committee, will moderate sessions between the two sides differing on the wording of the legislation.

The petition, which was drawn up by the legal representatives of the two hospitals, must be passed by the council and the state Legislature before Mayor James Sheets can sign an affiliation agreement with the Daughters of Charity, an order of Catholic nuns that owns the hospital. An affiliation would also have to be approved by Bernard Cardinal Law, head of the Archdiocese of Boston.

The public hearing was preceded by an hour-long presentation by six hospital officials touting the strengths of the plan. Among those speaking were four Quincy Hospital representatives—including CEO/Director Ralph DiPisa—as well as former CEO/Director Ellen Zane and Sister DeChantal LaRow, chairman of the board at Carney Hospital.

Sister LaRow said the affiliation will allow the two hospitals to "provide a stronger focus on community health" while at the same time creating a "dominant market position" for them by bolstering their economic strength. She noted that the current health care industry requires hospitals to operate at a level that is often unattainable for a single institution which chooses not to affiliate.

"The reality of today's healthcare environment demands each institution becomes more efficient and more effective," she said.

Quincy Hospital officials, including DiPisa, agreed.

"It's a very complicated process," he said.

Following the presentation, however, only Dr. Donald Tracy, chief of radiology at Quincy Hospital, spoke in favor of the current petition. He said the affiliation is necessary if the hospital is to continue into the future.

"We see the issue in very simple terms, and that is survival," said Tracy.

Fourteen people, mostly union representatives and hospital employees, spoke against the legislation. All, including Michael Fadel of Local 285—one of the seven unions that represents Quincy Hospital—agreed that an affiliation is necessary but that the legislation must be substantially amended before it will receive union support.

Fadel and others said a primary concern is Section 14 of the petition, which essentially would allow Blue Hills Health System Corp.—the non-profit parent company that would be created by the legislation—the right to privatize, merge, or sell the hospital without any input from the city.

"We feel that's a significant mistake," said Fadel.

Peter Hodas of District 925/SEIU, another Quincy Hospital union, agreed. He said a "specified, written mission statement" should be included in the petition to guarantee will remain a public institution that protects the rights of patients and employees alike.

"To guarantee a public hospital in Quincy is only fair," he said. "This is a flawed petition, but it can be repaired."

Hodas added that an affiliation would make the two hospitals financially stronger, making a reduction in workforce unnecessary. He urged the council to not to pass a petition that would allow that to happen "through involuntary layoff."

Julie Pinkham, director of labor relations for the Massachusetts Nurses Association—the one union representing both hospitals—said she was concerned about the "broad scope" of the current legislation.

"We are not opposed to affiliation," she said. "It [the petition as written] just hasn't quite gone far enough yet."

Council President Peter Kolson noted that the council has been given a list of eight amendments to the petition from the unions. He said the council will keep the best interests of all parties in mind when it takes a final vote on the matter.

Although there is no timetable for a council vote, the petition must be sent to the state Legislature before its current session ends in July if it is to be passed this year. Some officials, including Sheets, have argued that next year may be too late, since Carney may choose to affiliate with another hospital before then.

The home-rule petition is necessary because Quincy

Hospital is a city-owned institution.

DiPisa and union officials said after the hearing they were pleased with the way all involved seemed eager to work together to resolve the matter. Sheets voiced similar sentiments Tuesday.

"I think those differences aired at the hearing will be resolved in the next week or two," said the mayor.

Sheets also acknowledged that there will be amendments made to the home-rule petition and said the controversial Section 14 "will be substantially different. The mayor and the City Council have to have a role at any major change in the hospital."

Under the proposed legislation, the parent company would oversee certain operations of the hospitals and make major decisions affecting both institutions.

The proposed affiliation, in contrast to a merger, calls for each facility to maintain separate assets. Each would also keep a board of directors and president, who would manage day-to-day operations and make decisions on matters involving only their hospital.

The mayor of Quincy and the Daughters of Charity would each appoint an equal number of members of the parent company's board of directors, and the company's board would appoint Quincy Hospital's board of managers. Currently, the mayor appoints all management board members.

The home-rule petition also calls for Quincy Hospital to be restructured into a new, non-profit entity called the Quincy Hospital Corp. It would, however, remain a public employer and would recognize all of the existing unions. Employees would remain part of Quincy's retirement system and would retain all of their benefits and seniority rights in their transfer to the new corporation.

Under the partnership, the parent company would make certain decisions for the hospitals, such as whether to pursue specific managed care contracts or expand certain services offered to patients.

Officials have said the theory is that the partnership would make the hospitals more attractive to insurance companies. Insurers and HMOs and increasingly paying hospital and physician networks to treat large groups of patients, and the networks with the most to offer generally win the contracts.

Salem, Old Ironsides To Salute WWII Ships

He said Old Ironsides is coming out of drydock where it has been since the Tall Ships visit five years ago.

It will also be a traditional turnaround day for the Constitution but this time she will be undersail—the first time in 150 years, according to MacMullen.

The Constitution will fire her cannons in a salute and the Salem will return the salute, firing a 40-millimeter gun from the original Salem built in Quincy in 1907.

During the ceremonies, the Constitution will lower its long boat and row to the Salem. The Salem will then lower its motor whale boat and the two will make their way to the Cassin Young and the John Brown. They will carry mementos to the ships.

MacMullen said the public will be invited to board the Salem to see the ceremonies and to tour the heavy cruiser while she is underway. The main deck, super structure and gun turrets will be open for inspection.

"This will be a donations fundraiser for the museum," MacMullen said. "Space aboard the Salem will be limited to 1,000 people. Reservations will be required."

Anyone seeking more information or to indicate their interest in making the trip can call 617-479-7900 or 617-536-1725.

White sailor hats will be distributed to those aboard the Salem that day. The hats will be waved as part of the ceremonies.

The event is being held in conjunction with the U.S.

Navy and the National Park Service. The Boston-based Cassin Young is under the National Park Service.

This will be the first trip for the Salem since it arrived here Oct. 30, 1994 from Philadelphia where it had been in mothballs.

Coincidentally, July 4th will mark the 51st anniversary of the laying of the keel of the Salem July 4, 1945 at the Fore River Shipyard.

The 718-foot, 21,000 ton heavy cruiser—bigger than some battleships of World War II—was launched March 27, 1947 and commissioned May 14, 1949. She was decommissioned in 1959 after serving as the flag ship of the U.S. Sixth Fleet.

Because of her size, the Salem, in a 1950s movie, depicted the German battleship Graf Spee.

charge of using a fraudulent passport.

Officials have said Diaz, who has been indicted for the July 10, 1993 shooting death of Brown, has been living in Guyana for more than two years under the assumed name Gregory Grayson. His attorney argued that officials could not prove that Grayson is Diaz when they initially tried to have him deported back to the United States.

However, Magistrate Rabindra Roopall, the judge in the case, ruled last Friday there was enough evidence to prove Grayson is Diaz and that he was living and working in Guyana illegally. Authorities have said he used a passport with the fake name to evade authorities.

Diaz subsequently found full-time employment in Guyana and married a woman who did not know his true identity, according to officials.

Diaz was arrested last month after the Brown murder case was shown on the television program "Unsolved Mysteries." A man who recognized Diaz' face on the show contacted Guyanese officials and the arrest soon followed.

Brown, a 1985 graduate of North Quincy High School and a nursing student, was murdered in an apparent case of mistaken identity. Authorities believe Diaz mistook Brown for her younger sister, Kimberlee—his ex-girlfriend—and shot her on the dark July night.

Diaz apparently never recovered from the fact the Kimberlee had ended their relationship, and he was upset about her engagement to another man, officials said.

SCOTT DEWARE

A Thought For The Week

Ever feel like not trying any more? Who hasn't. People say they've had it; they work and struggle and just get nowhere. So they become discouraged... It is only human to feel discouraged at times but you should never think about giving up... in many cases the low moment is the beginning of new things.

Abraham Lincoln once said that people are about as happy in this world as they make up their minds to be. Plant that seed in your mind and give it every opportunity to grow and thrive.

All of us at some time or another have some cavities in our minds into which we slip at the first opportunity. Self-pity is one such cavity, and the disposition to believe that the world is against us is another.

Above all, remember that most of our troubles lie within our hearts. We may want to blame the circumstances and people which surround us every day. Out of the heart proceed the issues of life. Get right on the inside, and the outside will take care of itself...

Pedestrian Safety, Traffic Concourse Committee Topics

Pedestrian safety and traffic control plans for the $5.6 million Quincy Center Concourse will be discussed at the next meeting of the Citizens Advisory Committee (CAC) of the project.

The meeting will be held Thursday, April 25 at 3:15 p.m. in the second floor Conference Room at City Hall Annex, 1305 Hancock St., Quincy Center.

Jack Gillon, Quincy traffic engineer, will be guest speaker. The public is invited.

At a recent CAC meeting, city officials and representatives of the engineering firm designing the concourse unveiled a miniature scale model of the 1,600-foot roadway.

Officials said the concourse will improve traffic control in the downtown area and make stores in the district more accessible. There will be less gridlock at peak hours, officials predicted.

David Erickson, CAC chairman, said some committee members and Quincy residents have concerns, particularly with the east side phase of the project. He urges all interested merchants, home and property owners adjacent to the proposed pathway of the concourse to present their views, recommendations and concerns to the CAC.

The CAC will hold further public meetings and hearings on the preliminary design of the concourse. There will also be additional reports and studies submitted to the CAC for a final report and recommendations to Mayor James Sheets.

The CAC is composed of nine members appointed by Sheets in 1994. Members represent home and property owners, downtown business merchants, and a senior advocate for the senior citizens who reside in housing facilities adjacent to the area.

The mayor's charge to the CAC is to ascertain a public consensus regarding pedestrian and traffic safety, design features, traffic control, signalization, accessibility, lighting, parking, and possible landtaking involving the concourse or roadway construction.

There is a 1997 deadline for the CAC to make its final report and recommendation to Mayor Sheets and the Quincy Center Concourse Project Task Force.

Durkin Crime Watch Meeting

Ward 5 City Councillor Stephen Durkin will hold a neighborhood crime watch-meeting for Ward 5 residents Thursday, May 2 at 7 p.m. in the Police Academy Room at the Quincy Police Headquarters, 1 Sea St.

Durkin has scheduled the meeting in response to a series of incidents involving home burglaries, vandalism and violent crime in his ward. He said the incidents are "alarming to me, both as a resident and as the councillor for Ward 5."

He noted that his own home was recently burglarized in broad daylight, and many valuable and/or irreplaceable items were stolen. Durkin said he wants to take "whatever steps are necessary to prevent that sort of thing from happening to other residents."

"People have a right to feel secure in their homes," he said. "I urge neighbors to look out for each other and to report any suspicious activity without hesitation."

Durkin added that he hopes to work with residents to establish neighborhood watches throughout Ward 5.

JOHN ANTHONY DIAZ, center, accused killer of Dawn Brown of Quincy, is led into Norfolk Superior Court in Dedham on Friday for his arraignment. Diaz, who authorities say fled the country after the slaying, is being held without bail at Norfolk County Correctional Center until a pre-trial conference on May 21.

Prosecution: Diaz Planned Brown Murder Months In Advance

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

Angered by rejection, John "Anthony" Diaz had planned to murder his former girlfriend, Kimberlee Brown, nearly one year before he shot her look-alike sister, Dawn Brown, a prosecutor said at his arraignment last Friday at Norfolk Superior Court in Dedham.

Diaz, standing handcuffed and leg shackled in the second floor hearing room, leaned forward and said "not guilty" when asked to plead to a first-degree murder charge. He was ordered held without bail at the Norfolk County Correctional Center and will return to Norfolk Superior Court May 21 for a pre-trial conference.

Dawn Brown's mother, Virginia, trembled with emotion; her father, Donald, who arrived from Florida, sobbed and shook as the prosecutor, Norfolk County Assistant District Attorney Gerald Pudolsky, recalled the July 10, 1993 slaying. The family, which wore badges with Dawn's picture on their lapels, did not make a statement after leaving the courthouse.

Pudolsky said Diaz began planning to murder Kimberlee Brown in September, 1992, after their relationship "tapered off." Kimberlee had moved out of state to take a new job.

"The defendant did not take this very well," Pudolsky said. "He could not stand being rejected by

$625,000 For Other Projects Also In Bond Package

Sheets To Seek $10 Million For New QP School

By MICHAEL WHALEN

Mayor James Sheets is hoping to send a bond package to the City Council next week that will include $10 million for a new elementary school in Quincy Point.

The package will also include at least another $500,000 for new windows for several existing elementary schools and $125,000 for nearly-completed architectural work for a planned addition and other renovations to the Thomas Crane Public Library in Quincy Center. Additional money may be included for new water mains and water meters, seawall improvements, and other projects, Sheets said.

Sheets added that he hopes the package can be finalized this week so that it can be sent to the City Council at its May 6 meeting. If not, he said, it would likely be placed on the agenda of the following council meeting May 20.

The mayor said he is happy to support the plan to build the new school--which would help relieve overcrowding at the Sterling Middle School--because smaller classes mean greater education.

"It's a fundamental commitment to keeping class size down," he said. "Also, interest rates are down, so now is a good time to bond."

Sheets noted that the city owed $6.2 million in bond money in Fiscal Year 1996, which ends June 30. That figure will drop to between $5.7 million and $5.9 million in FY97, he said.

The FY97 figure will represent about 3.9 percent of the city's municipal budget which should be completed and ready to be sent to the City Council for consideration by next week, according to Sheets. He also noted that, at the advice of City Auditor Robert Foy, he always tries to keep the figure below 5 percent of the budget total.

The mayor added that the state has agreed to reimburse the city for 63 percent of the construction costs for the new school. Sheets said he is hopeful that the council will approve the plan by the end of this fiscal year so the state money will be guaranteed.

The proposal by Ward 2 City Councillor Daniel Raymondi and School Committee Vice Chairman Ronald Mariano calls for the new school to be built at Victory Park near the site of the former Pollard School.

The new elementary school has been proposed to relieve overcrowding at Sterling in South Quincy. Under the plan, the new school would accept pupils who now attend Point-Webster Elementary School, while Point-

'Pressure Tactics', Harassment Charged At Marina Bay

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO

The owner of Yacht Stop at Marina Bay opposing Ed Kane's request to open The Company Store with coffee and sandwiches told the Quincy License board at Tuesday's meeting that she is a "small business owner in a struggling business community".

The store is part of Kane's project, Eating Up The Coast.

Mary Gaquin told the board since Kane filed his request, there was an attempt to harass her and "put her out of business". She pleaded with the board to hold their decision on Kane's request until she could formulate adequate legal action against George O'Malley (part owner of Marina Bay) and Kane.

Gaquin said that in her 10 years in business at Marina Bay, a complaint by the health department was filed for the first time.

She told the board to "read between the lines".

Gaquin had several others speak on her behalf including Beverly Spagnola, owner of a cafe at Marina Bay who said "there are antics going on at Marina Bay—it seems like we're accommodating Mr. Kane in so many ways."

Attorney Robert Fleming representing Kane said the area wanted for the Company Store is vacant at the present time and that Kane would sell bakery items from the Fire King Bakery in Hingham and that no baking would be done on the premises.

Spagnola listed many shops and cafes already on the boardwalk and said if Kane received an affirmative vote, it would have a "great effect on myself and Marina Bay—a small community serving a small group of residents."

Frank Barrett, who operates Amelia's Restaurant at Marina Bay told the board that "pressure tactics" have been going on and that Gaquin was told they were "going to get rid of her one way or another."

Christie Hendriksen, owner of Siro's told the board to "let Mary finish up her lease" before you take a vote.

Fleming said they were "not part of a conspiracy" and that we live in a "free enterprise where we should welcome competition."

Fire Chief Thomas Gorman said that businesses in Marina Bay "survive like a family" and that others looking to open businesses there should "look at this a little bit different."

A motion was made by the board to review the request in two weeks in order for all concerned to "get a better handle on things."

Under New Legislation Sheets Looking Into Bigger Role For QCBPA

By MICHAEL WHALEN

The city may enact state legislation which would allow the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association (QCBPA) to have a much broader role in downtown development.

Mayor James Sheets said Tuesday he and Planning Director Richard Meade are looking into the possibility of participating in Downtown Investment Districts (D.I.D.) legislation which was passed last year by the state. Essentially, the legislation allows a city or town to organize an economic group that oversees that community's downtown area.

By taking a small percentage of the city's tax money—which can be used only for safety, cleanliness and other downtown concerns—the economic group establishes a budget and concentrates on what it feels are needed area improvements.

Sheets stressed that he has heard there may be "flaws" in the legislation—which has been enacted in communities in Pennsylvania and other states—and that he and Meade will examine a copy of the legislation as soon as the city receives one. The city will not enact it if he deems it detrimental to the downtown, he said.

Still, Sheets added that he supports the D.I.D. concept.

"I would support it if it makes sense when I read it," he said. "My understanding is that it places a greater responsibility into the hands of the downtown organization, and they know what's best for themselves. We'd be putting the money where it belongs."

QCBPA President

Parker PTO Meeting May 8

The Parker School PTO will meet Wednesday, May 8 at 7 p.m. in the Media Center at the Daniel Flynn of Daniel J. Flynn & Co. Inc. said he was very pleased to hear the mayor might support the legislation.

"I am absolutely ecstatic if, in fact, we can get this money," said Flynn. "This may be the vehicle we need. I want to applaud the mayor for taking a look at this legislation."

The mayor said there is no definitive timetable for when a decision will be made on establishing a Downtown Investment District in Quincy.

In an unrelated matter, Sheets said he has agreed to meet with QCBPA members every two months.

The mayor said the bi-monthly meetings will allow for dialogue on the association's top downtown concerns.

Quincy Delegation Gets Free Ride To Re-election

Quincy's delegation got a free re-election ride up Beacon Hill Tuesday when no one filed nomination papers to oppose them in this fall's election.

Sen. Michael Morrissey and Reps. Michael Belotti, Ronald Mariano and Steve Tobin were the only candidates to file papers for those offices at Tuesday's deadline.

The only local contest in the Sept. 17 primary election apparently will be for Norfolk County treasurer.

Three Democrats, City Councillor Tim Cahill, Braintree Town Treasurer Michael Joyce and Gary Jones of Brookline filed for that post. Republican incumbent Robert Hall, Jr. of Needham also filed.

Democrat incumbents John Gillis of Quincy and William O'Donnell of Norwood were the only candidates to file in Quincy for Norfolk County commissioner. At least one Republican opponent was expected to file elsewhere in the county.

Register of Probate Thomas Hughes, Quincy Democrat, was the only one to file for that office in Quincy.

Governor's Councillor Christopher Iannella, Boston Democrat, has two South Shore opponents, both Democrats. Joseph McEtrick of Milton and Roger Kineavy of Braintree both filed papers Tuesday.

City To Celebrate Tourism Week

Quincy Tourism Director Jo-An Thomas announces the city will observe National Tourism Week May 5-11.

Thomas said the event will be celebrated to recognize travel and tourism as an important part of the city's fabric.

"National Tourism Week helps focus our community and the surrounding area on the importance of travel and tourism to the economic, social and cultural well-being of the greater Quincy area," she said.

Thomas said in 1993, the most recent year-end statistics available, travelers in Massachusetts spent more than $8.7 billion with an economic impact of $13.4 billion, according to the Massachusetts Office on Travel in Tourism.

"They supported 111,500 jobs (with a $2.24 billion payroll)," she said. "During their visits, they contributed $445 million in state and local taxes. Each dollar spent by a traveler is recirculated through our community, benefiting other related industries such as the telephone, construction, steel, textile, agriculture, food processing and service industries who rely on tourism for their survival and growth."

"Travel and tourism dollars mean jobs for our friends and neighbors, additional sales for local businesses, and greater tax revenues to support our community. Considering these figures, it's easy to see why the industry's slogan is 'Tourism Works For America.'"

The city will kick off its weeklong tourism appreciation celebrations with a special offer to visitors. Guests staying at the Adams Inn in North Quincy, Susse Chalet in Neponset, Sheraton Tara in Braintree and the Randolph Holiday Inn during National Tourism Week will receive a red Quincy "Guest" button. Employees at participating restaurants, retail shops, museums and sites will wear a blue Quincy "Host" button, indicating that those with "Guest" buttons

CALLING FOR THYROID SURGERY

The thyroid gland is one of those parts of the body that most people are barely aware of — until something goes wrong.

Located at the front of the neck, the thyroid releases the hormone thyroxine, which helps regulate the physical growth of children and the metabolic rate of adults. When the thyroid gland is hyperactive, it's as though someone has stepped on the body's accelerator. Nervousness, increased appetite, fatigue and rapid heartbeat are among the possible results. Radioactive iodine and antithyroid drugs may be prescribed. If these are not effective, surgical removal of 90 to 95 percent of the thyroid gland (thyroidectomy) may be recommended. Thyroidectomy may also be called for to treat tumors and large, soft thyroid glands. In cases of thyroid cancer, the entire gland may be removed, along with parts of the surrounding neck and collar bones.

P.S. Left untreated, an over-active thyroid (hyperthyroidism) can have serious consequences, including death from heart failure.

In all instances, accurate diagnosis must precede any treatment plan, so be sure to be thorough when discussing your symptoms with your doctor. At COMPREHENSIVE MEDICAL CARE, located at 700 Congress St., in Quincy, we specialize in treating heart problems, hypertension and cholesterol. Whatever your medical needs, we treat you with professionalism and respect, offering you the latest in medical expertise. I am also board certified in cardiology and internal medicine. Don't Rush For Jake's Job

If you're job hunting, don't rush your application in for the Quincy Housing Authority executive director post.

John (Jake) Comer, who has held the job 14 years, is thinking about retiring next April when he reaches 65. But he doesn't have to retire then. He can stay on indefinitely.

"We'll see what the situation is then," he says. "Right now I'm not sure what I will do."

Comer has been executive director since 1982 and under his leadership the Quincy Housing Authority has become one of the tops in the state.

It's really a little early to think about his successor. But one name that will surely be given consideration—if she is interested—is Jackie Loud who has also been with the QHA since 1982 and has been Comer's right arm as assistant director.

SOME PEOPLE are wondering if Senator Michael

MORRISSEY

BULGER

Morrissey and Billy Bulger have patched up their feud and are smoking the peace pipe these days.

What got them wondering was one of the recent photos in The Sun showing Quincy residents attending the college Final Four games in New Jersey.

There, in one of the photos were Morrissey, Bulger and Quincy Atty. George Burke.

All three of course have a strong UMass connection. Bulger is now university president. Burke was one of the all-time basketball greats at UMass sharing those honors with Julius Erving. And, Morrissey is a UMass graduate.

But at the State House, Bulger and Morrissey weren't exactly buddy buddies. Morrissey was one of the rebels who tried to oust Bulger from his Senate presidency before he landed the UMass job.

They seldom were near one another. So, to see them together smiling in a photo started some wondering.

Have they buried the hatchet and is everything now hunky dory between them?

"Well," says Morrissey, "put it this way. He now talks to me. But then he has to. I vote on his (UMass) budget."

SPEAKING OF Burke, he presented his George "Trigger" Burke Most Valuable Player Award to Marcus Camby at the University of Massachusetts awards banquet at Amherst the other night.

Last year's winner was Lou Roe who is now with the Detroit Pistons. And Camby is now on his way to the pros.

The award was won twice by Julius Erving in 1970 and 1971 and, of course, he made the pros in a big way, with the Philadelphia 76ers.

At the recent Beechwood Center fundraiser dinner at the Neighborhood Club, a basketball autographed by Burke was auctioned off for $475. The top bid was that of Joe Lombardi, the Northeast vice president of American Medical Response.

And the value of the ball went up thanks to Burke. He brought it to the awards dinner and had the entire UMass team autograph it and presented it to Lombardi.

BURKE

MARY LINNANE, who is retiring this month after 34 years service as housekeeper-receptionist at St. John's Rectory, had a couple of confessions Sunday at a Mass of Thanksgiving in her honor.

Both concerned Fr. William McCarthy, former pastor for whom Mary served 17 of the 34 years and who was homilist at Sunday's Mass.

"He didn't tell you," she said, "that I used to hide the ash trays so he wouldn't smoke."

During Fr. McCarthy's 17 years as pastor, the word spread that St. John's rectory was the place to go for anyone in need of food, clothing, housing, money, etc.

But Mary would try to screen them because now and then questionables would show up at the door. But her screening didn't always work.

"Sometimes when I closed the front door," she said, "he (Fr. McCarthy) would meet them around at the back door."

Mary's link to St. John's, incidentally, goes back much further than 34 years. Her mother and father, James and Brigett Linnane, were married there by Msgr. Michael Owens Sept. 14, 1930, Fr. McCarthy notes.

In 1962 when she became the housekeeper, Msgr. Frederick Driscoll, who was then the pastor at St. John's, said to her: "I hope you are planning on staying awhile."

She said she was.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS 1929 POSTCARD was one of a series of six cards published by the Granite Trust Company to mark the opening of their new 10 story art-deco bank building in Quincy Square. This view is of the Directors room at the top of the building with a picture of the bank's president Theophilus King. King's personal fortune pretty much built this building as well as the present Bethany Congregational Church whose original building was on the site of the new bank. Along with his son, Deleware, King was one of Quincy's most generous philanthropists. Supports Marina Bay Condo Development

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

As a Squantum resident, I have been very interested in the proposed Marina Court condominium development at Marina Bay. My first reaction was the same as it was in the past when developers were trying to build there. I was concerned about the possible impact on the environment, the schools and the traffic. These are important issues to the city, but particularly to us in Squantum.

From what I have learned, I think this will be a wonderful residential development for the city. I am surprised that some of the Marina Bay residents are so critical of what the Thorndike people want to build. They say the Marina Court prices are too low. That seems odd, since many of the existing units at Marina Bay have been selling for lots less than the prices announced for Marina Court.

Now that I am in my early 60s, many of my friends are thinking about a condominium. They don't need a big house and all the work that goes with it. But there doesn't seem to be any place in Quincy in the price range they want. I am seeing people move out of the city who have been longtime residents. In my estimation, the city needs Marina Court. It's the best proposal to come along in a long, long time and it deserves to become a reality.

Thanks Mayor For Support Of Red Cross Month

[The following letter, dated April 5, was submitted for publication.]
Dear Mayor Sheets:

As a resident of Quincy and an active disaster volunteer for the American Red Cross of Massachusetts Bay, I would like to take this opportunity to personally thank you for proclaiming March as Red Cross Month in the City of Quincy and following the steps of President Franklin D. Roosevelt, whom first proclaimed March as Red Cross Month in 1943.

It was a pleasure to drive by City Hall during the month of March and see the American Red Cross flag flying at City Hall. It means so much to the volunteers who give an endless amount of time helping and training others. As you may know, many people are unaware of all the work that the American Red Cross does to help people in their time of need.

I am so glad that the City of Quincy is so supportive of the many services that the American Red Cross provides to the community.

'Dust Devil' Stirs Up Wollaston

By PAUL HAROLD

A "dust devil" (something like a mini-tornado) stirred up the folks along Fayette and other streets in Wollaston this week.

Flinging rocks, smashing windows, shaking buildings and throwing people about, the "dust devil" started at Wilson Ave. at 2:55 p.m., spun its way down Holbrook Rd. and, in less than five minutes, headed into the marsh and disappeared.

Mrs. Barbara Dillon of Farrington St. noticed a "weird feeling" in the air so she went out to bring in the laundry, only to have it whipped out of her hands. She was then blown back against the building.

The weather bureau said that a "dust devil" was a hurling current of air caused when there is a strong heating of the earth's surface and cool upper air.

COUNCILLORS WANT DUMP EXTERMINATION

Councillors George McDonald and John Koepler called for a stepped-up extermination program in the area of the city's dumps on Quarry St. to combat the growing rodent problem. McDonald further urged a daily sweep of dead rats on Quarry St.

Noting the displacement of rats following the recent fire at Hardwick Quarry, McDonald said, "The firemen felt like the Pied Piper up there."

SWIMMING POOL ORDINANCE URGED

The City Council's Ordinance Committee was studying Building Inspector Alrick Weidman's proposal to regulate above-ground swimming pools. Weidman said he had received a number of requests for permits for such pools, but noted that the city had no regulations on their construction.

"For two years, swimming pools have been the bugaboo with the building department," he said.

Two New Hearings Set On Thorndike Development

Ward 6 City Councillor Bruce Ayers announces that the council has rescheduled a public hearing on Thorndike Development's proposal to build at Marina Bay from Monday, May 6 to Wednesday, June 5.

Ayers said the council has rescheduled the meeting because City Solicitor Stephen McGrath ruled Monday that Thorndike officials must again appear for the Planning Board. Although the board approved the project—which calls for 268 condominiums at the site—in March, McGrath said planned changes to the proposal made to appease neighborhood opposition are substantial enough to require another board vote.

The board will hold a public hearing Thursday, May 23 on the matter. If the board again approves the project, the City Council will have the final say on the matter.

"Because of the changes in this plan, it is important that area residents mark the dates for these very important meetings," said Ayers.

On 3-2 Vote

Board Pulls Plug On Restaurant Swimming Pool

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO

Ed Kane's dream of having a swimming pool at Marina Bay were dashed Tuesday when after much discussion the Quincy License Board voted 3 to 2 against the project.

Fire Chief Thomas Gorman made a motion in favor of the pool seconded by Health Commissioner Jane Gallahue. Casting votes against the pool were Building Inspector Matt Mulvey, Police Chief Frank Mullen and Chairman Joseph Shea.

Although the board already had voted against the pool on April 9, Kane asked the board to reconsider his request on the grounds that the water feature was meant to be the decorative centerpiece of the WaterWorks, and not intended to be a swimming pool in the traditional sense, but rather a resort-style wading and shallow seating pool.

Mullen said he would rather review the proposal to see "how the summer goes."

Chairman Joseph Shea said he and the board which are "based on fairness" have been bending over backwards and are either called "too easy," too slow" and said he had never been "so taxed as I have been on this issue."

Gallahue noted there was 20 pages of regulations pertaining to swimming pools. She said it would require life guards and other security measures.

Operator of Amelia's restaurant, Frank Barrett said the parking situation and the MDC parking lots should be clarified and asked "is it all going to be Kane's?"

Noting that there was a "lot of talk" about not serving as many alcoholic drinks around the pool said "if he doesn't serve a ton of liquor in his project, he's not going to make it."

Shea said they were hoping "Marina Bay can survive without the MDC parking lot."

The board voted 4 to 1 for the square footage of the area to be occupied by the WaterWorks not exceed 61,600 square feet based on a misconception by some members at the April 9 meeting. It was though then that the amount of space was 25,000 square feet. Matt Mulvey voted against the amount stating that if parking spaces increase, more people would be able to be allowed inside.

"The board placed the same limitations on the playing of music that they did at the April 9 meeting. That all music whether live or taped be stopped by 11 p.m."

Before the board took any action on the above, Mulvey made a motion not to allow the applicant to have a hearing. Mulvey said "adequate time" had already been spent on the requests.

The motion was seconded by Chief Mullen who said he "thought the board acted fairly". Mullen said they spent "many hours and listened to a lot of people" at the April 9 meeting.

Also speaking in opposition was attorney John McGlone who said it was "unprecedented" for the board to allow such action.

Habitat For Humanity Volunteers 10 North Quincy High Students Spend Vacation Helping Less Fortunate

It's the April school vacation and many students are off to some warm place, or are relaxing at home. Not so for 10 ninth grade students from North Quincy High School.

Josh Ballard, Ashley Crawford, Brendan Griffin, Al King, Alexis Miranda, Sarah Proto, Eric Rackauskas, Steve Ryan, Mike Spencer and Shirley Wu gave up their vacation week to serve as volunteers in the Habitat for Humanity program in the inner city of Bridgeport, Conn.

Habitat for Humanity is an international non-profit program that seeks to eliminate poverty housing and homelessness from the world. Habitat is not a giveaway program. In addition to a down payment and the monthly mortgage payments, each homeowner family invests hundreds of hours of their own labor-sweat equity--into the building of their house and the houses of others.

The city of Bridgeport has been in decline for about 10 years now due to wide spread unemployment caused by the collapse of the steel industry and the closing of the Remington Arms factory. Drugs became a huge problem adding to the city's decline. However, a new chief of police and programs like Habitat have the city on the rebound.

The 10 North Quincy High School student volunteers stayed at a local church where they slept in sleeping bags for the week. They worked on several homes and also build storage shelves for donated plumbing and electrical supplies.

Eric, Steve and Al were heavy hitters with the sledge hammer, breaking up old concrete walks. Shirley, Sarah and Brendan built a porch railing out of pressure treated stock. Miranda was our skill saw specialist, while Ashley contributed in a variety of roles. Mike and Josh built the porch railing supports.

Each student collected pledges for hours worked to enable us to donate more than Bon Lundquist, the Habitat on-site coordinator, said, "These kids are amazing, they work so hard!

All 10 students are classmates in Ron Erikson's grade nine advanced geometry class. Ron and his wife, Gloria, were the chaperons for the week.

"It was a great week," Ron said. "No one got hurt, everyone worked hard, and the kids made a wonderful gesture by helping people less fortunate than themselves.

"Josh, Ashley, Brendan, Al, Alexis, Sarah, Eric, Steve, Mike and Shirley will be among our leaders at North Quincy High School. It will be very interesting to see the impact this experience will have on them," he added.

Sheriff Marshall McIntyre Award Recipient

Law Day Ceremonies At Quincy District Court

Norfolk County Sheriff Clifford Marshall will receive the James R. McIntyre Award at the Quincy District Court Law Day ceremonies today (Thursday).

The McIntyre Award is among the presentations which will be made for outstanding service to the law enforcement profession. Charles McIntyre, an assistant Norfolk County district attorney and son of the late mayor-senator, will present the award which recognizes outstanding service in law and government.

Marshall, a former Quincy city councillor and state representative, has served as Norfolk County sheriff for 21 years. A long-time friend of the McIntyre family, said he was humbled by the selection.

"As a city councillor who served in Mayor McIntyre's administration and as a fellow legislator, I am deeply humbled by this award, as Jim McIntyre

CLIFFORD MARSHALL was a guiding light in my career. This award is also particularly meaningful to me, because of the wonderful friendship that the Marshall and McIntyre families have shared through the years," the sheriff said.

Marshall is credited with a number of correctional innovations and improvements. A leading force behind the new Norfolk County Correctional Facility in Dedham, he received the Sheriff Hennesbury Award for outstanding service as a Massachusetts service last September.

A host of other awards will be bestowed at Thursday's ceremonies.

The Quincy Court Outstanding Program Award will be presented to the Quincy Police Department's Special Operations Unit. Chief Francis E. Mullen will accept the award in behalf of the department from Judge Charles E. Black.

Six area law enforcement officials will receive The Robert P. Dana Distinguished Service Award. They are Sgt. Steven R. Butler and Officers Charles P. Graziano and Kenneth M. Pekham of the Braintree Police Department; Officer David Clark and Det. Sgt. Arthur Sullivan of the Randolph Police Department; and Milton Police Officer Lawrence J. Lundrigan.

The Dana Awards will be presented by Norfolk County District Attorney William Delahunt.

The Mark S. Charbonnier Award will be presented to Paul J. L'Italien. The award is named in memory of the state trooper slain in Kingston, 1994.

Rocco V. DiFazio will be the recipient of the Alfred P. Maloney Award as the Quincy Bar Association's outstanding attorney and man of the year. It will be presented by QBA President Peter McElroy.

Nathaniel M. Sherman will receive a special recognition award.

Michael H. Kozol and Bernard Reisberg will receive the Quincy Court Jason Feldman Outstanding Citizen Award from Judge Charles Black. The award honors outstanding citizenship.

Other awards include the Dennis F. Ryan student essay contest recipients and employee achievement awards.

Black, the presiding justice, will offer remarks and introduce the Law keynote speaker, Rep. Paul Haley of Weymouth.

Mayor James Sheets will bring greetings from the city.

The invocation will be offered by Fr. William McCarthy, former pastor of St. John's Church. The benediction will be said by Rabbi Jacob Mann, Beth Israel Synagogue.

Sheriff Marshall was also honored at the Norfolk County Law Day ceremonies in Dedham on Wednesday. He received the Amicus Curiae "Friend of the Court" Award.

He said he was honored to accept the award.

"I am committed, as is my corrections staff, to fostering an environment that emphasizes pride, integrity and accountability. We work hard to preserve this motto and I am proud that this effort is recognized.

"I welcome the opportunity to recognize the legal community for the role they have played in our success," Marshall said.

Spring HOME IMPROVEMENT

State Offers Tips For Hiring Lawn Care Professionals

Springtime is back again!

The coming season of warmth and growth means that insects, pests and weeds may invade your yard. While you can deal with many of these pests without professional help, some problems may best be handled by professionally-trained applicators.

The Massachusetts Department of Food and Agriculture offers the following tips for hiring lawn care professionals:

Use only licensed applicators. Many landscape or lawn care companies apply pesticides during the course of their work and must be licensed by the Commonwealth. Anyone who holds a commercial applicator's license has demonstrated a basic knowledge and an understanding of the principles of pesticide use.

The licensed applicator is trained to follow the label directions of the pesticide for an effective and safe application and is required to post the lawn with a warning flag to notify others that pesticides have been applied.

In additional licensed applicators must carry insurance for financial liability. This insurance covers bodily injury, property damage, chemical drift and pollution damages. Unlicensed applicators are unlikely to have this financial protection for the consumer and the general public.

Be sure you ask for and see a license. All commercial applicators are required to carry their current license with them while commercially using any pesticide.

If you have any doubts as to whether someone is licensed, contact the Sale At

Abp. Williams

Archbishop Williams High School will hold a Yard and Plant Sale Saturday, May 11 from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. in the school parking lot, 80 Independence Ave., Braintree.

In the event of rain, the sale will be moved into the school gym. Household items, small appliances, sporting goods, books, baby items, and flowers will be for sale.

Refreshments will be available.

Massachusetts Pesticide Bureau at 617-727-3020, ext. 134. The Pesticide Bureau regulates pesticide manufacture, sale and use; licenses applicators and investigates complaints of misuse.

Shop around. How can you find a qualified company? Ask friends, neighbors, or business associates for names of firms with whom they've had good experience. Seek estimates from several companies and select by value, not by price. Be wary of special deals; the least expensive may not be the best offer. Look for value and competence, not price alone. Cutting corners on your safety is no bargain.

Look for comprehensive programs and approaches to your problems. Seek out companies which offer a complete service. Competent operators will outline a program that identifies that pests to be controlled, the extent of the problem, pesticides which they will use and what you can do in the future to minimize pest problems. The initial inspection may even indicate that pesticides are not necessary. Avoid "new" or "secret" treatments, rush jobs or special discounts for doing a job immediately.

Ask the company to discuss Integrated Pest Management (IPM) and any steps you should take to avoid or reduce a pest problem. The fewer pesticides you need to use, the better.

At The Wholesale Authority

Leveling The Field For Car Buyers

By CHRISTIAN POTTS

So you want a new car. You've been driving the same one for a few years now and it's time to get a new set of wheels.

Only problem is, you're afraid of going to a dealership because you don't want to get suckered in by a smooth-talking salesperson. And those consumer reports at the library are from last year; things may have changed. Money's tight, and you need a good deal, but it seems like there's no one who can help you.

Enter Greg Apostol. Greg is the owner and president of Wholesale Authority, an auto-buying service that, in his words, "streamlines the car-buying process." Simply put, Greg is the person to call when you want the best deal.

"What I do is basically put you, the customer, at the very bottom line," said Greg. "I work with about 60 car dealers throughout New England to offer my customers the real story on how much a car, truck, van or sport utility vehicle will cost."

The way it works is this: An interested buyer will contact Greg and tell him they are interested in a certain make or model of car. For a $25 fee, Greg can access the dealership's price listings as well as the latest consumer reports to provide customers with all the important information on whatever car they are interested in.

In addition, The Wholesale Authority also will provide the buyer with a contact at the dealership. Armed with all their consumer, pricing and safety reports, as well as rebate and incentive updates, the customer can be sure that they will get a fair deal.

"Buying a car can be a very intimidating process, especially when the market can change so fast. Coupled with the underlying stress and anxiety consumers often feel about car-buying in general, this puts people at a distinct disadvantage. What I try to do is level the playing field," said Apostol.

A Weymouth resident, Greg has been in the wholesale auto-buying business for eight years. "I had worked for a corporation that did this for its employees for seven years, and I had also worked at an auto dealership after college, so I know the business."

"I've been on both sides

THE WHOLESALE AUTHORITY, located at 17 Franklin St. in Quincy, offers a unique service to customers looking to buy or lease a new or used car from a dealership. Owner and president Greg Apostol can provide prospective car buyers with the absolute lowest price—as well as the latest consumer reports and incentive packages—on any car at more than 60 dealerships in New England.

of the desk, working for dealers and for customers. So I know how people want to get a good deal. That is the service I try to provide—getting them the best deal," he said.

Because he has experience in wholesale buying, Apostol was able to establish relationships with dealerships that some one new to the business would never have been able to. "If someone wanted to start up a business like this without any experience or connection, they would be kicked out of the dealerships. Even when I started, some of the dealers were apprehensive, but I showed them that I can help deliver customers."

Wholesale Authority is hardly alone in this field, however. B.J.'s Wholesale Club, Costco and AAA all offer similar services to their customers and members. But according to Apostol, he offers something different: a personal touch.

"I'm not like a large corporation where if you have a problem, you have to go through different channels and dial different phone numbers to reach someone who can help you. When you call my number, you get me. And I know exactly who you are and what you are looking for," said Apostol.

There have been a number of times where Greg has actually physically gone down to a dealership and helped a customer. "I've had people call me from the dealerships and ask for help. And I don't mind meeting people at the place to help make sure everything goes smoothly."

Wholesale Authority's services are not limited to just new cars, either. "I also provide a locator service for used car buyers as well. I can search out dealers to find a used car match just like finding a new car," said Greg.

Apostol's office is based out of his home, where he has an extensive data base (some of the software is custom-made for his business) of car prices, consumer reports and dealership contacts. "I can search dealerships, print out information and fax it or E-Mail to customers right from here, which means people can have it in their hands in a short amount of time," he said.

Apostol estimates he gets about 40-50 customers per month, which translates into approximately 30-35 cars. Being a small, relatively new business, he relies on testimonial and referrals by his customers and some advertising. "What will happen is that I will help one customer, and they'll tell their friends, and then a few days later I'll get a couple of calls from those friends."

"I also work with a couple of different companies who offer my services as part of a benefits package. An employee can contact me through the company if he or she is interested in a new car," continued Greg.

His services are not limited to just automobiles, though. Greg also provides his services for furniture, travel, mortgages, auto alarms/stereos/phones, and insurance.

Primarily, however, The Wholesale Authority deals with cars. "It's what I know best, and the car-buying process is probably the hardest thing for people to go through."

"The dealerships hold all the cards; sometimes, even if you get a good deal, you might be unsure. With the service I provide, customers can be sure that they all the information they need to make sure that they can get the best deal," finished Greg.

So when it's time for a new car, don't fret. Just call Greg Apostol and The Wholesale Authority, and take the anxiety-and mystery—out of car-buying.

You can reach Greg Apostol at the Wholesale Authority's at 1-800-573-1100, or by fax at (617) 340-4453.

REAL ESTATE MARKET

Environmental Concerns To Consider When Buying Commercial Real Estate

By DANIEL J. FLYNN III
Purchasing commercial real estate can be exciting, interesting and profitable.

However, if you are not aware of the many environmental amendments that are attached to it, what you are purchasing can be more costly than just the purchase of the real estate. The Massachusetts Oil and Hazardous Material Release Prevention and Response Act, better known as Chapter 21E, is one such amendment.

As stated in Chapter 11 of the Massachusetts Environmental Law Handbook, Chapter 21E "imposes liability for releases and threats of releases of oil and hazardous material ("OHM"), and it authorizes the Massachusetts Department of Environmental Protection ("DEP") to undertake investigation and cleanup of releases and threats of releases and to require other parties to take such response actions...Chapter 21E also provides that DEP can impose liens on the property of liable parties in order to recover its costs of investigation and cleanup."

In other words, an owner of commercial land is responsible for not only the cleanup of any hazardous materials released on his property, he must also take care of any properties around the land that may have been affected. Because OHM cleanup can sometimes cost into the hundreds of thousands of dollars, it would certainly behoove potential commercial property owners to understand how they can avoid Chapter 21E.

Avoiding Chapter 21E is really quite simple. The bank now requires a Phase I Environmental Site Assessment as a part of due diligence before any purchasing transaction can transpire. This assessment is to protect a potential buyer from incurring any cleanup costs for which the current owner is responsible. If contamination is discovered, it is required that the responsible parties notify the DEP of the contaminants or potential contaminant and "impose requirements on DEP and responsible parties concerning the identification, investigation, and cleanup of contaminated property." (M.E.L.H., Ch. 11.)

Some argue that the banks' requirements are unnecessary; however, investors who have purchased contaminated property will quickly rebut that they would gladly incur the initial cost of due diligence to avoid the high cost of cleanup. It must also be noted that not only will OHM be initially costly, the market value of the building could go down, costing you money in the future.

There are many more amendments of which a commercial real estate investor should be made aware. Chapter 21E and a Phase I Environmental Site Assessment are two which set out to protect not only the land and air, but the investor as well. For more information on this amendment, see the Massachusetts Environmental Law Handbook, Chapter 11, starting on Page 181.

Single Family Home Sales

By ART FOLEY
The following are monthly sales of single family homes in Quincy. They are further broken down by the number of sales with respect to bedrooms.

Because they are only for a month, the number of sales is low and therefore not totally reliable. What they will show is trends and subtle changes in the marketplace.

Quincy Residential Sales (Single Family Homes)

	Feb. 1-29, 1996	March 1-31, 1996
#Properties Sold	16	13
Avg. Selling Price	$110,516	$114,069
Houses Sold with
2 Bdrms	7	6
3 Bdrms	6	6
4 Bdrms	3	1
Range	$20,000-$252,000	$54,000-$230,000

Keep in mind this is one snapshot with a low number of sales and therefore not totally reliable. In coming months we will report complete sales for each category. They are helpful in identifying trends.

Do Your Homework Before Putting Up A Fence

Q. I'd like to put up a wood fence around my backyard. Can I place it right on the property line or should it be about six or eight inches inside the property line?

A. Before you dig one post hole, be sure you have all the facts about fences in your area. For example, most city or town halls can provide basic information about the requirements your fencing needs to meet.

However, in many communities, each homeowners association may have more specific rules about the placement, materials used and maximum height of fences. Be sure you thoroughly understand all the specifications about fencing in your neighborhood before you proceed with your project.

QUINCY HIGH hurler John Duffy kicks and fires against Falmouth last week. The Presidents fell behind early and could not come back against the Clipper as they dropped an 11-5 Old Colony League decision. "We gave away some early runs in the beginning and we were playing catch up," said coach Bob Sylvia. "We just found ourselves behind the eight ball. Our kids were game. They gave it a good shot." Quincy, 2-6 overall, will battle North Quincy today (Thursday) at Adams Field.

North Quincy Girls' Top South Shore Finisher At Relays

North Quincy scored in six different events to rack up 22 points and an eighth place finish, the best of any South Shore team at the Class B relays held at Whitman-Hanson.

Aja Jackson and Jennifer Pineo again provided the bulk of the firepower. Jackson led off the 4 x 100 relay long with Kellie Johnston, Sharon Lee and Jasmine Gonzalez to a third place in 4:22.6. She then cleared the 4'10" in the high jump to help teammates Angela Scott (4'8") and Kim Huerth (4'0") pick up a sixth place. That trio then went to the triple jump with Jackson (33'2"), Scott (32'0") and Huerth (28'11/4") all turned in personal bests powering that team to a fifth.

The Raiders were without the services of Sarah Beston (sprained ankle) who is one of the Old Colony League's top jumpers.

Pineo led teammates Lizz Ceurvels and Claire Quilty to thirds in both the shotput and discus relays. North's other ribbons were with a sixth in the 4 x 200 relay. The quartet of Casey Ngo, Jasmine Gonzalez, Sharon Lee and Pineo ran 1:55.1.

"We're progressing nically now that the weather's cooperating and the kids are getting in shape," said coach Geoff Hennessy. "Our throwers have always been our strength but now the sprinter-jumpers are being heard from, too."

SCOTT DEWARE

protest or understanding.

But anger can be tricky. It can easily get out of hand... When it becomes a burning rage, it becomes a distinct liability and can become troublesome and dangerous. One cannot imagine life on this planet without fire. Yet fire, when it gets out of hand, is ravaging beyond description. Anger, like fire, can get out of hand and be ravaging too.

A person who lets anger get out of control needs to call upon as many "fire departments" he can to help him get the burning rage under control.

Anger properly controlled can be good, but anger, like fire, can destroy. Anger may be a necessary factor of life, but it performs only under strict control. Remember, anger is often more harmful than the injury that caused it!

Sheets To Seek

$10M For New QP School

Webster, currently Quincy Point's only public school, would become a middle school.

Students who now move from Point-Webster to Sterling for sixth grade would stay in Quincy Point for middle school, reducing by about half Sterling's growing population of more than 450 students.

Under the present districting, half of Sterling's students originate from Point-Webster with the other half coming from Lincoln-Hancock Community School in South Quincy.

Officials are hoping the project, which has been approved by the School Committee, can be completed by the fall of 1997. The City Council is the final hurdle the new school faces.

Raymond said he was "extremely excited" to learn about the mayor's plan for the bond package.

"It's great news," he said. "We need to move forward with the financial project for the school."

Also included in the mayor's bond package will be $500,000 to replace lexon windows in five Quincy elementary schools: Atherton Hough, Merrymount, Montclair, Squantum and Wollaston. The windows, installed in the 1970s, are beginning to become cloudy, Sheets noted.

"It's getting so the sun is shining but it doesn't look like the sun is shining," said Sheets.

He added that while the $125,000 for the library work will definitely be part of the bond package, he has not made a final decision on the other improvements.

phone down. The Commonwealth's case will show and evidence will prove that Mr. Diaz at this particularly point premeditatedly started to plan the homicide of Kimberlee Brown, the sister of the victim, Dawn Brown," Pudolsky said.

Over the ensuing months, Diaz carefully planned the murder and his escape from the country, the prosecution said. According to Pudolsky, Diaz secured phony identification cards, a passport and a gun permit after obtaining a birth certificate in the name Gregory Scott Grayson in February, 1993. Grayson was two and a half years old when he was struck and killed by a car in Hyannis in 1974. Had Grayson lived, he would have been one year older than Diaz.

Diaz used the Grayson birth certificate to get a State of Maine identification card with his photo on it on March 30, 1993. About a week later, he applied for and received a US passport at the Falmouth Post Office in Grayson's name.

It was about this time that Diaz conversed with a friend, a former Sandwich police officer who was licensed to carry firearms in Massachusetts and knowledgeable in ammunition.

Next, Diaz applied and received a license from Rhode Island "with his name, his date of birth, his Social Security number but a bogus address. In the state of Rhode Island, to buy a handgun all you have to show is proof of residency," Pudolsky said.

In early May 1993, Diaz bought a handgun in Warwick, R.I. The next month, Diaz "maxed out" his credit cards "to at least $10,000," showing the "roll of cash to a friend," Pudolsky said.

"Now he had the passport, the gun and the money," the prosecutor added.

On July 9, Kimberlee Brown, her fiancée, David Goldstein, her sister, Dawn, and Dawn's boyfriend, Mitch Goldstein (David's brother) arrived in Quincy. The next night, a bridal shower was held at the Brown house celebrating the engagement of Kimberlee and David.

Kim and David left the house to go dancing at the Tent in Squantum. At 10:30 p.m. Dawn, Mitch and Dawn's 13-year-old nephew left the Brown house to go to Friendly's in Wollaston.

At 11 p.m., Dawn, Mitch and the nephew returned to the Brown house. They got out of the car and proceeded down the walkway to the house.

"The party was still going on, the lights were on in the house and there was noise and commotion coming from inside the house," Pudolsky said. "As they started down the walkway, Mitch Goldstein saw a black man step out from behind a tree. He watched as this man walked about 15 feet to where they were.

"As this man approached, Mitch Goldstein made eye contact . . . and this man passed Mitch and yelled out, 'Kim' and as Dawn Brown turned, he raised a black handgun and shot her once directly between the eyes.

"The evidence from the autopsy will show that gun was no more than 18 inches from the forehead of Dawn Brown," Pudolsky said. Dawn was pronounced dead four hours later at Boston City Hospital.

According to authorities, Diaz fled the scene in a black Cherokee automobile. The auto was found at JFK airport and a search warrant obtained. Inside the car was a map. "Circled on the map were towns were Kim Brown had lived," Pudolsky said.

State Police went to Diaz's home and spoke to his mother, Leona, who gave authorities a photo of her son. "She said something was going to happen. I just want my son to be alive," Pudolsky said.

Three days after the killing, a friend of Diaz's reported to State Police that he just received a phone call from the suspect. "The first words out of Mr. Diaz's mouth: did I kill Kim?"

"The friend answered, 'No, I think you shot Dawn,' Mr. Diaz said, 'Check. Get a newspaper. Check. See who I killed.'

"The friend went and got a newspaper," Pudolsky continued, "and read the story on the front page of the paper that Dawn E. Brown had been murdered on July 10. That's when Diaz said, 'That's the stupidest thing I ever did. You'll never see me again.'"

The phone call was traced to a hotel in Malaysia. "He was later positively identified as staying at that hotel and making that phone call by not only the room clerk but also four or five hotel employees," Pudolsky said.

Diaz then departed Asia and landed at London's Heathrow Airport. From that point, he managed to elude authorities for nearly three years until a segment on the Brown murder and Diaz search aired on the TV show, "Unsolved Mysteries."

After a bootlegged copy of the show was shown in Georgetown, Guyana last month, State Police received a phone call from a man living in Georgetown who said he knew Diaz and worked out in a gym with him.

"We asked if he had more information," Pudolsky said, "and he said 'no, but I'll be back tomorrow.'"

"The next day, he called back and said, 'I found out the name of that guy. The name of that guy is Grayson.'"

State Police were dispatched to Guyana and Diaz was taken into custody by Georgetown police. He had remarried and begun a new life.

Diaz had fought deportation and tried to escape authorities at an airport in Trinidad before returning to Massachusetts to face the murder charge.

THIS BURNED OUT home at 245 West Squantum St., North Quincy, was the scene of tragedy Tuesday as a three-alarm blaze swept it, taking the life of 89-year-old Frances Collins, who was legally blind and deaf and was trapped inside. The fire was blamed on a kitchen curtain getting caught in a toaster. Damage was set at more than $100,000.

89-Year-Old Woman Victim Toaster Caused Fatal Three-Alarm Fire

By MICHAEL WHALEN

A three-alarm fire that claimed the life of a legally blind and deaf woman Tuesday started when some kitchen curtains caught in a toaster, according to Fire Chief Thomas Gorman.

Frances Collins, 89, died during the fire that raged through her home at 245 West Squantum St., North Quincy. She was found dead in the kitchen, although at press time it was undetermined if the official cause of death was the burns she sustained or smoke inhalation.

Gorman, who estimated the damage at more than $100,000, said Collins was unable to escape the flames that engulfed the single-family home after she apparently tried to put out the fire herself. The state fire marshal reached the same conclusion about the cause of the blaze, he added.

"It's a real tragedy," said Gorman. "She was a resident there her whole life."

The woman's nephew, John Collins, said she was legally blind and had been deaf since she was 12 years old.

The fire started around 8:30 a.m. and burned for "about an hour" before firefighters were able to bring it under control, the chief said.

"It was a tough fire to knock down," he said. "The whole place is pretty much a loss."

$10 Million For New Point School Sheets Asks Council For $12.9 Million Bond Package

By MICHAEL WHALEN

Mayor James Sheets has submitted a bond package totaling nearly $13 million--including $10 million for a new elementary School in Quincy Point--to the City Council.

The council placed the package into committee Monday night and will take up the matter at a future meeting.

The bond package, which totals $12,960,000, includes the following:

- $10 million for construction of the new school, which will be built to help relieve overcrowding at Sterling Middle School in South Quincy.

- $860,000 for various repairs at Central Middle School and six elementary schools.

- $650,000 to replace water mains at Dixwell Avenue, Silver Street and Baxter Avenue, Shelton Road, and Broady Avenue.

- $525,000 for seawall repairs.

- $510,000 for new equipment including two special needs vans for the schools, two "madvacs" and a sidewalk scrubber for the Department of Public Works, E911 phone equipment, new voting machines and water meters.

construction of the new Quincy Point school, said he was happy to see the bond before the council.

"I'm extremely pleased and proud the mayor has brought this before us," he said.

Sheets said 63 percent of the $10.9 million in the bond for school projects will be reimbursed by the state. The state reimbursement total is $6,867,000, he added, meaning the city will only have to pay back $4,033,000 for the school projects and $6,093,000 for the entire package.

The mayor said last week the city's Fiscal Year debt service (bond indebtedness) was $6.2 million, and that figure is expected to drop to between $5.7 million and $5.9 million when FY97 begins July 1.

See Allocation Chart Below

- $240,000 for refurbishment of Faxon Park.

- $125,000 to pay an architect for work done on plans for a proposed addition and other renovations at the Thomas Crane Public Library.

- $50,000 for restoration of the City Council Chambers at City Hall.

Council To Begin Sessions May 13 On Sheets' $143M Budget

The City Council has set its meeting dates for discussion of Mayor James Sheets' proposed $143.2 million Fiscal Year 1997 municipal budget.

The council's Finance Committee will discuss the budgets of various city departments on Monday, May 13; Wednesday, May 15 and Tuesday, May 21. All meetings will be held at 6:30 p.m. in the Council Chambers at City Hall.

If an additional meeting is required, it will be held on the morning of Saturday, May 18. The council, which has the authority to cut the budget but not add to it, must approve it within 45 days or it automatically passes.

Councillor Michael Cheney, chairman of the Finance Committee, said Monday night that Sheets has submitted a reasonably tight budget to the council.

"There's very little room for cutting," he said.

Council President Peter Kolson agreed.

"It's a good, solid budget," said Kolson.

Sheets' proposed budget is more than $4 million higher than the $139 million FY96 budget, a 3 percent increase. The mayor said it will likely result in a small increase in taxes, although how much of one will not be determined until the state budget is set in July and the city learns how much state funding it will receive.

For two consecutive years, the city has held the line on property taxes, although some tax bills still rose because of escalating home values. Last year, speculation that a tax increase was unavoidable caused the council to slash nearly $900,000 from Sheets' proposed budget.

The school department is receiving the biggest increase in the proposed FY97 budget. The school budget of about $46.9 million is 5 percent higher than the department's FY96 budget.

The budgets of other city departments increased by an average of less than 1 percent, Sheets said. Spending for city departments will increase only about $634,000, he noted.

The mayor noted that the two biggest reasons for the hefty school department increase were employee raises and the skyrocketing cost of educating special needs students.

Sheets said that while pay raises for most city employees are pushing up costs in the rest of the budget, those are being offset partly by an estimated $450,000 reduction in the cost of trash collection and a $230,000 reduction in employee health insurance costs. The amount paid by the city in interest on loans also has fallen, he noted.

Among the other reasons for the $4 million budget increase include $1,018,709 earmarked for the Massachusetts Water Resources Authority and $173,723 for retirement.

GIANT MURAL was recently created by Quincy High School students in the school's Bradford Library. The focus of the mural was technology because the mural is located in the library's technology center. Carrier Alert Program A Safety Watch On Seniors, Homebound

The United States Postal Service, National Association of Letter Carriers, Branch 34: Quincy Council on Aging: Quincy Postal Customer Advisory Council and other local organizations will be hosting a kick-off to launch a new safety watch program for Quincy seniors and other homebound individuals.

The kick-off will be held Tuesday May 14 at 11:30 a.m. at the Quincy Sons of Italy Social Center, 120 Quary St.

The program, called Carrier Alert, utilizes local Postal Letter Carriers to help keep watch on individuals who have signed up for the program in their delivery areas. The Carrier Alert Program offers the comfort of knowing that someone who visits your home regularly can call for help of you need it. This service has been developed especially for older adults and the homebound people who may have difficulty reaching vital services because of an accident or sudden illness.

"Letter Carriers have a long tradition of watching out for their elderly or homebound customers," said Joe Morris, National Association of Letter Carriers, Branch 34 President. "The Carrier Alert Program gives us the opportunity to offer an extra level of assistance to these individuals."

"Carrier Alert is an outstanding example of the caring spirit and generosity of all postal employees," said James Lundrigin, Manager of the Quincy Post Office. "We do much more than deliver the mail—we are good citizens and good neighbors in the communities where we work and live."

This service is offered at no charge to all postal customers in the Quincy delivery area. A brochure explaining the program will be mailed to postal customers in Quincy in the next several weeks. Individuals can also find out more information about Carrier Alert by calling (617) 376-1242.

The Meanest Mother

It was a quarter century ago that we ran across an article entitled "The Meanest Mother."

We printed it as a Mother's Day tribute that 1971 and for many readers it nostalgically hit home. It brought back fond memories of their own mother.

The author has remained anonymous as far as we know. And from time to time we have requests to reprint it.

Once in a while we have a reader take issue with one part or another in the article.

But overall, we think it is still quite appropriate today and a fitting tribute to all the "mean" mothers everywhere.

It follows:

I had the meanest mother in the whole world.

While other kids ate candy for breakfast, I had to have cereal, eggs or toast. When others had cokes and candy for lunch, I had to eat a sandwich. As you guessed, my supper was different from the other kids, too.

But at least I wasn't alone in my suffering. My sister and two brothers had the same mean Mother as I did.

My Mother insisted upon knowing where we were at all times. You'd think we were on the chain gang. She had to know who our friends were and what we were doing. She insisted that if we said we'd be gone one hour that we be gone one hour or less—not one hour and one minute.

I am nearly ashamed to admit it, but she actually struck us. Not once but each time we did as we pleased. Can you imagine someone actually hitting a child because he disobeyed. Now you can begin to see how mean she really was.

The worst is yet to come. We had to be in bed by nine each night and up early the next morning. We couldn't sleep until noon like our friends. So, while they slept, my Mother actually had the nerve to break the child labor law. She made us work.

We had to wash dishes, make beds, learn to cook and all sorts of cruel things. I believe she laid awake nights thinking up mean things to do to us.

She always insisted upon our telling the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth, even if it killed us. It really did.

By the time we were teenagers, she was much wiser and our life became even more unbearable. None of this tooting the horn of a car for us to come running. She embarrassed us to no end by making our dates and friends come to the door to get us.

I forgot to mention, while my friends were dating at the mature age of 12 and 13, my old fashioned Mother refused to let me date until the age of 15 and 18. Fifteen, that is, if you dated only to go to a school function, and that was only once or twice a year.

My mother was a complete failure as a mother. None of us has ever been arrested, divorced or beaten by his mate. Each of my brothers served his time in the service of this country.

And, whom do we have to blame for this terrible way we turned out? You're right, Our mean Mother.

Look at all the things that we missed. We never got to march in a protest parade, nor to take part in a riot, burn draft cards, and a million and one things that our friends did. She forced us to grow into God-fearing, educated, honest adults.

Using this as a background, I am trying to raise my three children. I stand a little taller and I am filled with pride when my children call me mean.

Because, you see, I thank God. He gave me the meanest Mother in the whole world.

Flag Day Celebration To Be Held June 14

The Quincy Flag Day committee announces that the 45th annual Quincy Flag Day celebration will be held Friday, June 14.

The event will include a parade, ceremony at Adams Field, and a 20-minute fireworks display at Pageant Field. The parade will begin at 7 p.m. and the fireworks will commence shortly after 9 p.m.

The family-oriented celebration will include floats, marching bands, color guards, youth groups, and community organizations. A new feature of this year's event will be the first annual presentation of the Richard J. Koch Youth Service Award. The award will be given to an individual who has had a positive influence on the youth community in Quincy. The award is named for the founder of the Flag Day Parade, who was also a longtime public servant.

Last year's parade featured more than 40 different organizations, and was highlighted by close to 3,000 flag-waving youths. This year's Flag Day celebration will feature the same pomp and circumstance of years past, including the raising of the Mt. Rushmore Flag, a version of the Stars and Stripes, and the finest Flag Day fireworks display in the area.

The Flag Day Committee will continue to honor the nation's veterans through the Veteran's Memorial Flag Display. Each year the parade route is lined with veteran's memorial flags, accompanied by a banner indicating that veteran's name. All flags are returned shortly after the event.

Anyone interested in having a family member's flag displayed should contact Committee Chairman Ed Keohane at 773-3551 by May 30.

"I encourage everyone in the whole family to come join us in celebrating our pride in our country and the flag that symbolizes it. This event offers something for everyone. From the parade, to the ceremony and fireworks, our celebration can be enjoyed by the whole family," said Keohane.

LOOKING AT ALTERNATIVES

Not so long ago, people who used alternative medical approaches such as acupuncture or herbal remedies would hardly admit it to close friends, let alone to their doctors. Today, many in the medical establishment are studying the benefits of some of these approaches and helping make them available to mainstream health care. One such crossover success is meditation.

Once viewed mostly as a cult phenomenon, meditation is now widely accepted as a treatment for conditions like stress, insomnia and pain. Other "alternatives" gaining support are chiropractic, hypnotherapy, homeopathy and massage. The key to this new-found respect is solid research and careful professional review of performance claims.

P.S. If you are interested in an alternative therapy, talk to your doctor. Get the facts!

If you suffer from chronic pain, be sure to ask your medical professional, what treatments might alleviate your suffering. For more information, visit COMPREHENSIVE MEDICAL CARE, located at 700 Congress St., in Quincy or call me or Dr. Lisa Antonelli at 472-2550. Office hours by appointment. I am affiliated with Quincy Hospital and South Shore Hospitals. We enjoy serving your needs. Presented as a public service for the benefit of all by the offices of COMPREHENSIVE MEDICAL CARE.

Marina Bay Project Needs To Be Finished

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

I am writing about the condo development at Marina Bay that is being proposed by Thorndike Development. I have lived in the area for 28 years and I have watched Marina Bay go from an old airport to a real addition to Quincy.

The problem as I see it is that it needs to be finished. When Marina Bay was getting started, there were loud complaints from those living in the surrounding area. Now the opposition to the proposed condos is from some people inside Marina Bay. They should not forget that several years ago the City Council approved a plan for 400 units on that same site, while the current developer wants only 268 on a total of over 19 acres.

Someone has now suggested there there be a moratorium on all building at Marina Bay. I don't understand why. Maybe what the opponents really want is no building at all. But that is not the answer. What needs to happen is to finish Marina Bay once and for all. It appears to me that these lovely condos will help make Marina Bay even better.

“ It's a real big small car, ”
if you know what I mean.

What Mark means is that his Saturn has a lot more room than you'd think. And the 1996 Saturn sedans and wagons are even roomier. They have more headroom. More cargo space. More passenger space. And we even improved our coefficient of drag on the sedans. (Something that takes a little more than a tape measure to gauge, but you will appreciate it nonetheless.) To find out more about our big small cars, stop by. We're really nice car salespeople, if you know what we mean. Hope to see you soon.

USED CARS from SATURN

Every used car we sell is backed by a limited warranty, not to mention the fact that it undergoes a thorough, 150-point plus inspection and reconditioning process. Each one is also cleaned and given an oil and filter change. To top it off, a 3-day moneyback guarantee and a 30-day/1,500-mile trade-in policy are included, as well. Only at participating Saturn facilities.

QCWPA Asks MDC To Preserve Wetlands

The Quincy Citizens and Wollaston Park Associations (QCWPA) have asked MDC Commissioner David Balfour to protect and preserve the Billings Creek Estuary and adjacent wetlands and the wildlife habitat on Lot 23 at Marina Bay.

The QCWPA recently recommended to Balfour that the area be immediately acquired using funds provided in the Open Space Bond Bill signed in February by Gov. William Weld in connection with the protection of the Neponset River Estuary.

The Billings Creek taking would include adjacent wetlands extending from the Neponset River shore at Marina Bay to East Squantum Street and the marsh along both sides of Victory Rd. and the Bird and Wildlife Habitat on Lot 23. Seaport Drive and Victory Rd.

The citywide civic group stressed it feels that the area taking is important for flood control, storm damage prevention, alleviation of pollution, protection of shellfish and wildlife habitat.

QCWPA officials said with three extensive projects underway at Marina Bay, the wetlands and wildlife habitat will be destroyed unless immediate action is taken by the MDC and the Massachusetts Environmental Affairs Department for their preservation.

House Delegation Supports New Sex Offender Registry

The Massachusetts House of Representatives has adopted a sex offender registry and community notification bill in the interest of public safety.

Under the provisions of the bill, anyone who currently resides or moves to the state and has been convicted of a sex offense within 15 years of the effective date of the new law would have to register with the local police. The registry would be a matter of public record that could be accessed by anyone who presented proper identification.

The city's three representatives voted in support of the measure.

"The action was in the best interest of Quincy's children and other residents," said Rep. Steve Tobin.

"Providing for the public safety of our local families remains paramount to me and is certainly a major tenet of government. The bill accomplishes this goal in a thoughtful and responsible manner," Rep. Ron Mariano said.

Offenders who fail to comply with the parameters established by the bill would be subject to fine and imprisonment.

Other sections of the bill prohibit imprisoned offenders from participating in work-release programs and establish penalties for individuals who misuse the registry and engage in discriminatory and harassing acts against the persons listed.

"By compiling these registries, residents and law enforcement officials will be armed with the information needed to better protect the community," said Rep. Michael Bellotti.

'Topping Off' Ceremony Held At Hancock Park

City officials heralded Hancock Park, a full-service healthcare and senior residential community being developed by Welch Healthcare & Retirement Group, as an asset to Quincy at a recent "topping off" ceremony.

Officials from Welch Healthcare & Retirement Group, Suffolk Construction, general contractor for the project and Richard Heym Associates, project architects joined Mayor James Sheets and Ward 3 City Councillor Patrick McDermott for the event.

"We are very excited about this facility, which has been a tremendous co-operative effort between Welch Healthcare & Retirement Group and the City of Quincy," said Michael McFarland, executive secretary to Sheets. "Hancock Park will be a valuable asset to our city's elderly population, and we look forward to its opening."

The 142-bed rehabilitation and nursing center will offer a full range of healthcare services including post-acute short-term rehabilitation and complex medical care, long-term skilled nursing care, specialized care of patients with Alzheimer's disease, respite care and care of the terminally ill. In addition to resident dining rooms and lounges, amenities and support service areas will include recreational rooms and state-of-the-art areas for rehabilitation services including physical and occupational therapy.

The Adult Day Health Center will provide services to clients during day-time hours, including medical, nutritional, and social supervision to individuals living at home with a spouse or family member. They will include therapy services, counseling, medical monitoring, meals and social stimulation.

The Assisted Living Residences will offer seniors who need some form of assistance but wish to maintain as much independence as possible.

"We are anxious to become an integral part of the Quincy community," said Paul Casale, vice president of Welch Healthcare.

The company reported first quarter 1996 earnings of ~~$206,000~~ or ~~$0.06~~ a share as compared to a loss ($243,000) or ($0.08) for the first quarter of 1995. Weighted average shares outstanding increased 11 percent for the quarter to $3,441,000 in 1996 from $3,088,000 in 1995.

Council Approves Home-Rule Petition

College To Raise Funds Through New Foundation

By MICHAEL WHALEN

A home-rule petition authorizing Quincy College to establish a foundation to receive and administer funds was approved Monday night by the City Council.

Mayor James Sheets said Tuesday that as soon as he receives the petition, he will sign it and send it to the state Legislature for final approval.

Quincy College President Jeremiah Ryan told the council the non-profit foundation established by the petition would aid the college by raising money for scholarships, capital equipment, and other expenditures. Its setup would be similar to that of College Courses Inc. which raises funds through the operation of the college bookstore, he said.

Ryan said he thinks now would be a good opportunity to take such action, since 1996 is the 40th anniversary of the college.

The council voted 8-0 to support the petition. Ward 2 Councilor Daniel Raymondi, who serves as chairman of the college's

Board of Governors, abstained from the vote.

Aug. 1 Target Date Set For Faneuil Hall-Type Marketplace

The first phase of a proposed Faneuil Hall-type pedestrian marketplace in Quincy Center could be completed by Aug. 1. The project, which would be located along Ross Way behind the stores on the west side of Hancock Street, would be designed to help stimulate business in the downtown. It is planned as a "festive area" that would increase foot traffic in the shopping district.

Department of Public Works Commissioner David Colton said Tuesday that officials have set Aug. 1 as a target date for the first phase of the project which would include improvements to area lighting, the facade of the Ross Parking Garage, the nearby alley next to the old Hancock Bank and the street itself.

Colton has said the first phase may also include awnings and other materials needed to house the Quincy Farmers Market near the Ross Garage. Officials have suggested that the Farmers Market be a part of the new marketplace, although nothing is definite at this time.

The work will be funded by $150,000 that was included in a bond package passed by the City Council a couple of years ago.

"I think it can happen by Aug. 1," said Colton, who planned to discuss the matter with fellow members of Mayor James Sheets' task force, including the mayor himself, yesterday (Wednesday). He added that he hopes to

Spring HOME IMPROVEMENT

Quick And Easy Fix Ups For Damaged Concrete

NAPS—There are four kinds of weather conditions that can wreak havoc on concrete porches, steps, walls, foundations and driveways: hot, cold, damp and dry. If your property has been exposed to any of those, chances are there are places that could use some repairs.

To tackle these problems, there are many sealers and fillers formulated with adhesives designed to bond to the damaged area and fill in those cracks.

"They can make the job quick and easy," says Kerry Lane, technical manager for Red Devil, Inc., a leading manufacturer of home improvement products. He offers these suggestions for sealing cracks and shoring up walls.

• Structural damage needs professional care.

• A patch of new cement applied to an old cement structure will not adhere unless an adhesion promoter such as latex or acrylic polymer is brushed on first.

• Basic concrete mortar can be used for chipped steps, foundations and walkways, and vertical cracks 1/8 inch or smaller.

If you caulk a damaged walkway now, you may have less need to make major repairs later.

• Small cracks may also be repaired with a black-top/driveway repair, solvent-based clear caulk or polyurethane sealant available in cartridge form.

• Widen small cracks into a "V" shape to allow more complete surface contact.

• For cracks 1/4 inch or larger, apply the appropriate sealant after a closed cell polyethylene backer rod has been forced into the crack, up to about 1/2 inch below the surface.

• For vertical surfaces and horizontal areas where water does not collect, premixed acrylic patch repair made for stucco and cement is quick and easy to apply in one step with a putty knife.

• Remember, filler can seal a crack but it cannot stop settling, which may cause future cracks.

• A basic concrete mortar repair compound may be used for chips and between bricks and cinder blocks.

• An acrylic-based lightweight concrete repair product may be used on vertical and horizontal surfaces if water is not a problem.

• Fill small driveway cracks up to 1/8 of an inch with a butyl rubber/asphalt formula black top repair product available in cartridges. Use a flexible putty knife to smooth.

• Driveway cracks of 3/16 of an inch or larger should be repaired with a solvent-based clear caulk or polyurethane and plastic backer rod.

Concrete and mortar repairs are easier than ever with the right tools and sealants. If you repair damage now, your property will look great all year and you'll be prepared for the next bout of weather, whatever it may be.

Home Improvement Grants, Loans Available

Most homeowners are unaware that regardless of their income, there are federal, state and local programs that will help them repair and remodel their homes.

Government at all levels recognizes that neighborhoods are the basis of life in this country. When a neighborhood deteriorates, many things happen both physically and socially. When the homes look shabby, a neighborhood seems more attractive to crime and criminals.

An area in decline is like a spreading cancer. As homes become shabby looking and in need of maintenance, the residents lose their desire to keep up the neighborhood. Streets become receptacles for trash, schools lower their standards and very quickly the selling price of homes in the area drops sharply. This accelerates the cycle of degeneration.

In order to keep and maintain the nation's housing and neighborhoods, government at all levels have programs to give homeowners money (that does not have to be repaid) for repairs or to lend them money at below market levels or at no interest. In many areas utility companies will either do energy conservation work free or at low cost and in other places will lend homeowners money at no interest to pay the contractor of their choice for the necessary work. In addition, there are tax incentives to promote efficient energy use.

The programs are not restricted to low-income people, slum areas or urban neighborhoods. Owners of single or multi-family dwellings are eligible. While the grants do not have to be repaid, most of the loans offer low or no-interest, long terms and low payments.

Some of the other home improvements covered under the programs are: attic and wall insulation, new windows, outwall siding, security doors and locks, window guards, masonry work, bathrooms and kitchens, electrical and plumbing, new roofs, gutters, and downspouts. Consumer Education Research Center, a national non-profit consumer group formed in 1969, has just published the 192 large-page, 1996 edition of Consumers Guide to Home

Repair Grants and Subsidized Loans ($17.95 plus $3 postage and handling from CERC Grants, 1980 Springfield Ave., Maplewood, NJ 07040 or 800-872-0121) which lists over 6,000 sources of loan and grants programs offered by federal, state and local government, utility companies and others; typical programs offered and the how to qualify. Form letters for inquiries to such loan and grant sources are included as well as detailed instructions on determining one's debt-to-income ratio for eligibility.

Robert L. Berko, executive director of CERC who was awarded a $5,000 grant and a $4,000 interest-free loan says, "Some programs have no income ceiling and others allow income of as much as $50,000 per year or more. There are even programs for which tenants are eligible and many allow loans to poor credit risks. In many areas, people with disabilities can receive grants to pay for needed repairs such as access ramps and widening of doorways."

Since it is important that the work be done properly, the book includes a section describing the rough cost of many jobs as well as advice on picking a contractor, negotiating a contract, and insuring that the work is done properly and for a fair price. The book also includes a dictionary of terms used by contractors, lawyers and lenders.

Home Inspectors' 'Top Ten' List Of House Problems

In the most recent survey of its members, the American Society of Home Inspectors (ASHI) compiled the following list of the most frequently found problems in the homes they inspected.

1. Improper Surface Grading/Drainage

This was by far the most frequently found problem, reported by 35.8% of the survey respondents. It is responsible for the most common of household maladies: water penetration of the basement or crawlspace.

2. Improper Electrical Wiring

A significant number (19.9%) chose this item as the most common home defect, which includes such situations as insufficient electrical service to the house, inadequate overload protection, and amateur, often dangerous, wiring connections.

3. Roof Damage

Although reported by only 8.5% of the respondents as the most common problem, roof leakage, caused by old or damaged shingles or improper flashing, was considered by ASHI members to be a frequent problem.

4. Heating Systems

Problems in this category include broken or malfunctioning operation controls, blocked chimneys, and unsafe exhaust disposal.

5. Poor Overall Maintenance

Even the novice home buyer is usually aware of this situation, demonstrated by such signs as cracked, peeling, or dirty painted surfaces, crumbling masonry, makeshift wiring or plumbing, and broken fixtures or appliances.

6. Structurally Related Problems

Many houses, as a result of problems in one or more of the other categories, sustain damage to such structural components as foundation walls, floor joists, rafters, and window and door headers.

7. Plumbing

Though never ranked by the respondents as a Number One problem, plumbing defects still rank high among the house problems encountered, and include the existence of old or incompatible piping materials, as well as faulty fixtures and waste lines.

8. Exteriors

Flaws in a home's exterior, including windows, doors, and wall surfaces, are responsible for the discomfort of water and air penetration, but rarely have structural significance. Inadequate caulking and/or weather-stripping are the most common culprits.

9. Poor Ventilation

Perhaps due to overly ambitious efforts to save energy, many homeowners have "over-sealed" their homes, resulting in excessive interior moisture. This can cause rotting and premature failure of both structural and non-structural elements.

10. Miscellaneous

This category includes primarily interior components, often cosmetic in nature, which were not found frequently enough to rank individually in our survey.

It is significant that within this list of ten problem categories, at least four are directly related to the damaging effects of water. Apparently, after a home is built, keeping water out is the home owner's most important - and continually challenging - objective.

Home owners should also understand that regional climates, building codes, and the age of a home might place these findings in a different sequence. The statistics relating to electrical and plumbing problems, and roofing in particular, might vary from one location to another, and therefore rank differently than the averages in this survey. In addition, in older houses, problems such as heating system failure, inadequate electrical service, and worn plumbing can be found with much greater frequency than reflected in this nationwide survey.

Regardless of their order in the survey, these problems consistently appear in home inspection reports around the country, and represent areas to which home owners need to pay more attention. For a list of home inspectors who belong to ASHI in your area, call 800 743 ASHI (2744).

How To Lock Out Burglars

This week we will discuss locks and security hardware that can protect against home burglaries. Hardware meeting the minimum technical requirements listed here could also protect your family from burglary related injuries.

- The key-in-knob, or spring latch lock is used most often in dwellings. Its spring activated strike has a bevelled edged and can be easily defeated when a credit card or screwdriver is wedged between it and the strike plate. This lock offers little security.

The dead latch is similar to the spring latch but has as a bar on the strike that cannot be easily defeated. However, it offers poor security because the bar is very short and weak.

- The deadbolt has a bolt that must be activated by a key or thumb turn. It offers good security because it is not spring activated and cannot be opened by a credit card. For this reason it is best to install deadbolt locks on solid hardwood exterior doors. Either of these two types of deadbolt locks should be installed.

The single cylinder deadbolt is activated with a key on the exterior side of the door and a thumb turn piece on the other side. Install this lock where there is no breakable glass within 40 inches of the thumb turn piece. Otherwise a burglar can break the glass, reach inside and turn the thumb piece. If you do have a door with a lock that is close to breakable glass, install a piece of Lexan glass on the inside of that glass to prevent the burglar from breaking the glass and turning the thumb turn piece. The Lexan should be screwed to the inside of the door every six inches.

The double cylinder deadbolt is key activated on both sides of the door. Because of the danger of this type of lock, we do not recommend its use. (You could be trapped in a burning home if you did not have a key handy.)

Both single and double cylinder deadbolt locks should meet these criteria to be a good security device.

- The bolt must extend a minimum of one inch and be made of case hardened steel or contain a hardened insert.
- The cylinder guard must be tapered, round and free spinning to make it difficult to grip with pliers or a wrench. It must be solid metal - not hollow casting or stamped metal.
- There should be at least a five-pin tumbler system or equivalent locking device.
- The connecting screws that hold the lock together must be on the inside and made of case hardened steel. No exposed screw heads should be on the outside.
- The connecting screws must be at least one-fourth diameter in go into solid metal stock, not screw posts.

A heavy duty strike plate, the metal piece that mounts on the door frame and receives the deadbolt in the locking position, uses four to six, three-inch wood screws, not two, three-fourth inch screws, as used on regular plates. These longer screws go through the frame into the jamb making it harder for someone to split the frame when kicking the door. A heavy duty strike plate will strengthen the door jamb and reinforce the lock.

To be sure you get a good quality locking device, always purchase your locking devices from a reputable locksmith.

Council Meeting May 18 On Hospital Affiliation

The City Council Ordinance Committee will meet Saturday, May 18 at 1:30 p.m. in the Council Chambers at City Hall to discuss a proposed affiliation between Quincy Hospital and Carney Hospital in Dorchester.

Council President Peter Kolson said "all interested parties" will be invited to attend the meeting, although the public will not be allowed to speak. The council recently recessed a public hearing on the matter which will be reconvened at a date following the May 18 meeting.

The council does not plan to vote on the proposal until the public hearing is concluded. Many hospital employees and union representatives said at the recent hearing that they support the concept of the affiliation but want amendments made to the current home-rule petition that would make it possible.

The petition is necessary because Quincy Hospital is a city-owned institution.

Under the proposed legislation, a parent company called Blue Hills Health System Corp. would oversee certain operations of the hospitals and make major decisions affecting both institutions.

The proposed affiliation, in contrast to a merger, calls for each facility to maintain separate assets. Each would also keep a board of directors and president, who would manage day-to-day operations and make decisions on matters involving only their hospital.

The mayor of Quincy and the Daughters of Charity, an order of Catholic nuns that owns Carney, would each appoint an equal number of members of the parent company's board of directors, and the company's board would appoint Quincy Hospital's board of managers. Currently, the mayor appoints all management board members.

The home-rule petition also calls for Quincy Hospital to be restructured into a new, non-profit entity called the Quincy Hospital Corp. It would, however, remain a public employer and would recognize all of the existing unions. Employees would remain part of Quincy's retirement system and would retain all of their benefits and seniority rights in their transfer to the new corporation.

Under the partnership, the parent company would make certain decisions for the hospitals, such as whether to pursue specific managed care contracts or expand certain services offered to patients.

Officials have said the theory is that the partnership would make the hospitals more attractive to insurance companies. Insurers and HMOs and increasingly paying hospital and physician networks to treat large groups of patients, and the networks with the most to offer generally win the contracts.

Board Approves Storage Tank Licenses

The Quincy License Board voted to grant Twin Rivers Technologies, Inc. 740 Washington St. permission to transfer existing licenses to Sprague Energy of eight storage tank structures with fuel and vegetable oils not to exceed 60,000 barrels.

It also includes the storage of petroleum and petroleum products and miscellaneous class IIIB liquids. Above ground 572,000 barrels, story and sale of class II, class IIIA and Class IIIB petroleum and petroleum products.

Representing the companies at the meeting were Ken Thode from Twin Rivers Technology and Peter Taylor from Sprague Industries.

Chairman Joseph Shea read a letter from Councillor-at-Large Michael Cheney who last year had concerns about the future of the Town River Yacht Club, said he is in favor of the request.

In the letter he explained that Sprague Energy had offered technical support to the members of the Town River Yacht Club. They will receive all of their permits and will not be losing any of their floats, Cheney Said.

Also speaking in favor of the storage was Ward 2 Councillor Dan Raymond and Building Inspector Matt Mulvey who called the operation a "state of the art facility."

ings. "If tomorrow they say 'go,' we'll go."

Smith said she hopes to make a second presentation on the project to members of the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association in the weeks to come. She also plans to continue working with Quincy 2000, which is supporting the plan through its building facades upgrading program.

Smith added that she has contacted a Cambridge artist and the director of the South Shore Art Center about providing lighting and sculptors respectively for the marketplace.

Other planned highlights of the project include new pavement and trees, two new park areas, and possibly an outdoor restaurant and/or a summertime "bandstand" for local performers.

Former Quincy Track Star Dan Durrante Defies Age

Don't let age fool you. Dan Durrante, Quincy High School Class of 1962, proved that point nicely when he challenged members of this year's Presidents boys' track team to a 100 meter and 400 meter sprint.

Durrante, a systems manager at Martin-Marietta in California was home visiting relatives in the South Shore area. He was the captain of Quincy High's 1962 undefeated track team and has continued his passion for track, particularly the sprint events.

Durrante also wanted to help support Quincy High School track by pledging $100 for every place he finished. In the 100 meter race Durrante got out quick and never looked back to run an outstanding 11.9 seconds to win the event. An outstanding time even by high school standards since 11.7 is the qualifying time for the All-State

After a brief rest Durrante took on the task of running the 400 meter distance against senior Peter Kolson and freshman Mike Lencki. In a close race the barefooted Kolson nipped Durrante to take first with Lencki finishing third.

Durrante then graciously presented head coach Bob Noble with a check for $300 for the track program and inspiration to everyone that age is truly a state of mind.

Baseball

Walsh Leads North Frosh Past Plymouth South, 3-1

North Quincy's freshman baseball team, behind the solid pitching performance of Kevin Walsh, defeated Plymouth South 3-1 for their first win of the year.

Walsh gave up only four hits in a complete game effort and was in command throughout the contest. North's defense was solid, playing error-free ball. Eugene Delisle made the defensive play of the game fielding a high chopper over the mound and nipping the runner at first.

North took a 3-0 lead in the fourth as Kenny Mah blasted his second triple of the year. Mah scored when Delisle lined a double to right center. After stealing third, Delisle scored on a wild pitch. Sean McCusker had the other North hit.

North then dropped a 13-8 affair to Bridgewater-Raynham. The Raiders led 7-2 after one inning, capitalizing on the wildness of the B-R pitcher. Steve Ryan, Chad Fitzpatrick, Paul Markarian and Mah all reached base via walks. Jamie Grossi singled in a run. Delisle followed with a two-run single and Paul Hussey drove in two more with a single to left.

Two costly errors in the second led to nine unearned runs for the visitors. North put their final run on the board as Delisle tripled and was driven in by Hussey's third hit of the game.

Brian Radell pitched three strong innings for the Raiders while Eric Rackauskas finished up, retiring the only two batters he faced.

Strong pitching performances were turned in by John Fidalgo (three innings, seven strikeouts) and Brian O'Hanley. Matt Hassan played well behind the plate.

The team recorded its second win, a 12-7 decision over Burgin Platter.

The offense was led by Steve Williams (3 hits), Miah Hassan and Brian O'Hanley (2 hits apiece).

Chris Ham smacked a triple and single, rookie Mark Tobin cracked two line drive singles and Pat O'Brien also had two hits. Brendan Sleeth and catcher Tom Buckley backboned the defense and had one hit each. Kyle Carmody and Jeff Butts played well for the Jaehnig Club.

Jackie Liuzzo, Justin Swirk and Mike Ryan had hits for Rotary while David Benn and Jordan Virtue were outstanding defensively.

Earlier in the week, the Jaehnig Club lost a tough 6-3 victory to defending champion Burke Club in a well played game. The Jaehnig Club held a 2-0 lead after 3 1/2 innings. Mark Maher tripled and scored on a wild pitch and Bryan Thornton belted a line drive homerun to centerfield.

The Burke bats came to live in the fourth inning. Pat Bregoli (2 hits) cracked a hustle double, Peter Turowski and Justin Hall singled sharply and Joe Sudak slugged a triple. Ten-year-old Dan Cosgrove thrilled the crowd when he belted a long triple to right and scored on a wild throw. John Dondoro also hit a triple for Burke Club. Turowski picked up the win going the distance and striking out 11 and allowing just three hits.

Chris Ham pitched a fine ball game for Jaehnig Club, striking out seven with no walks. David Buttomier made an excellent relay throw from right field and Steven Kelley played well defensively.

Bregoli pitched a three-inning no-hitter versus the Elks in a rain-shortened contest. Bregoli also had 2 hits while Justin Hall hit a homerun. Joe Sudak and Danny Duggan had outbats while Bill Cosgrove also shone at the plate.

Cosgrove looked good in his first outing in relief.

Mike Conley hit safely for the Elks while Phil McGillicuddy looked good on the hill.

Babe Ruth

Two-time defending champion Elks opened the 1996 campaign with a hard fought 7-4 win over Houghs Neck.

The winners took an early 3-0 lead after Chad Fitzpatrick walked, Mike Keddy singled and Chris Bregoli walked. Will Tracy's infield single was the key hit. Bregoli led off the third with a double to left-center, stole third and scored on a wild pitch. Fitzpatrick's RBI single in the fourth accounted for the seventh Elks' run.

Houghs Neck battled back as Kevin Walsh doubled in a run in the fourth and singled in two runs in the fifth. T.J. Bell and Dan Dorsey also had hits for Houghs Neck while Dan O'Toole doubled and pitched well in relief.

Brenda Hayduk Wins Bucknell Athletic Award

Bucknell volleyball player Brenda Hayduk of Quincy, who helped guide the Bison volleyball program to an era of unprecedented success, received a special award at the University's annual Senior Athletic Awards Banquet.

Hayduk, who starred at North Quincy High School, won the Edward W. Pangburn Award. The award, named for a former University trustee and ardent supporter of athletics, recognizes "sportsmanship, fellowship and contribution to the university."

As a co-captain this past year and a four-year starter, Hayduk played a major role in the remarkable transformation of the Bison volleyball program over the past four years.

In Hayduk's freshman season in 1992, the Bison struggled to a 4-24 record, but the following year, Bucknell was cited by Volleyball Monthly as the most improved team in the nation after finishing 17-15. Bucknell then went 20-13 in 1994, and enjoyed the finest season in school history this past fall, as the Bison posted a 26-7 record and won the Patriot League regular season title, the first such crown in school history. En route, Bucknell won eight straight matches at one point, and broke the school record for wins in a season.

A setter early in her career, Hayduk played primarily as a back-row defensive specialist this past season. She appeared in '06 of the Bison's 123 games, and tallied 19 service aces and a career-high 179 digs.

Hayduk had been the Bison's top setter her first three years at Bucknell, and in 1993 she established career highs with 884 assists and 8.34 assists per game, which ranked fourth in the league that year. She finished her career with 1,753 assists, 70 service aces and 377 digs.

A Thought For The Week

Once a year, a day is set aside for the special purpose of honoring mothers. It is a day dedicated to honor all mothers for their devotion, guidance, sacrifice and love.

Great philosophers, churchmen, writers and sociologists through the ages have long agreed that the role of a mother is as demanding and exemplary as any human endeavor. A mother's influence is unexcelled.

Many of today's modern mothers have a two-fold job. To "make ends meet" financially, many modern mothers have to work outside the home. In many other cases, modern mothers choose to continue business careers.

And so, on this special day let us take the time to think hard upon how much Mother means to all of us. Let us renew our determination to express our feelings throughout the year, and not just on this single day. Let us find a way to let her know how we feel... how important she is every day of the year...

39 Seat Expansion At Siro's Approved

The Quincy License Board voted Tuesday to extend the seating at Siro's at 307 Victory Rd. Marina Bay by 200 square feet or 39 extra seats.

Owner Kristie Henriksen, who has owned Siro's for almost three years, displayed a plan showing board members the site that once was housed by a small Yacht Sales shop. The extra seating brings her total to more than 200 seats.

Chairman Joseph Shea read letters of support from Ward 6 Councillor Bruce Ayers and Councillor-at-large Tim Cahill. Also in support was George O'Malley of Coastal Partners at Marina Bay. He said the extension at Siro's would be "good for her business and good for ours".

Shea said he had a "number of letters" in support of the plan and he had "high expectations" as far as increased parking is concerned because of the new applicant Ed Kane with Eating up the Coast and the Tavern and a "captivated audience." He said it is projected that there will be a total of 1,601 parking spaces.

PRAYER TO THE BLESSED VIRGIN
(Never Known to Fail)
Oh most beautiful flower of Mt. Carmel, Fruitful vine, splendor of Heaven, Blessed Mother of the Son of God, Immaculate Virgin, Assist me in my necessity. Oh Star of the Sea, help me and show me herein you are my mother. Oh, Holy Mary, Mother of God, Queen of Heaven and Earth! I humbly beseech you from the bottom of my heart to succor me in this necessity. There are none that can withstand your power. Oh, show me herein you are my mother. Oh Mary conceived without sin, pray for us who have recourse to thee (3x) Holy Mother, I place this cause in your hands (3x) Holy Spirit, you who solve all problems, light roads so that I can attain my goal. You who gave me divine gift to forgive and forget all evil against me and that in all instances in my life you are with me. I want in this short prayer to thank you for all things as you confirm once again that I never want to be separated from you in eternal glory. Thank you for your mercy toward me and mine. City To Help Fund Fr. Bill's Expansion

By MICHAEL WHALEN

Mayor James Sheets is planning to use city money to aid the expansion of Father Bill's Place, the city's homeless shelter located at 38 Broad St.

Sheets said Tuesday he will use monies from Quincy's federally-funded Community Development Block Grant (CDBG) account "to do design work" for the expansion. He will then sit down with Father Bill's representatives at a later date to discuss a more detailed plan for additional funding.

No timetable has been set for the project. Still, Sheets said he has spoken about the plan with Joseph Finn, executive director of the Quincy Interfaith Sheltering Coalition (QISC) which operates the shelter and Fr. William McCarthy, former pastor of St. John's Church in Quincy Center, for whom Father Bill's is named.

"It's certainly my intention to work with them on their plans to expand," said Sheets. "They do an excellent job and we have a model shelter. It just outgrew itself."

"I'd like to see something done as soon as possible. The need is now."

Sheets noted that the Broad Street building--which formerly served as the headquarters for the Quincy Registry of Motor Vehicles--is owned by the city, which in his view allows his administration to take whatever action he deems necessary.

"We'd certainly be justified in expanding our own building," said the mayor.

Finn, who noted that the reason for the expansion would be to consolidate the services the shelter has to offer, said he is pleased with the mayor's enthusiasm.

"He's been more than supportive," he said. "I think he sees the benefit of the consolidation."

One result of the plan would be the moving of the QISC administrative offices from the JFK Health Center in Quincy Center back to the shelter.

The additional space at the shelter would make the move a possibility, Finn said.

While other services would also be consolidated, Finn--who plans to meet with Sheets to discuss design work for the project within the next two weeks--said there likely would be no increase in the number of beds the shelter has to offer the homeless.

Father Bill's can offer up to 50 beds at the shelter and an additional 30 at its satellite spot in the basement of the former St. John's School, he added.

Finn said while he, too, would like the plan to move as quickly as possible, he could not offer a target date on when it may begin or be completed.

"It's really too hard for me to say right now," he said. "Hopefully, we'll have a plan in place within a year."

7-Year-Old Sarah Dodd Names New Mascot 'Dazzle The Dolphin' Makes Big Splash At YMCA Debut

And the winner is... "Dazzle the Dolphin!"

"Dazzle," a name submitted by seven-year-old Sarah Dodd of Quincy, was the winning entry in the "Name the Dolphin" contest co-sponsored by the South Shore YMCA and The Quincy Sun.

Nearly 50 names were submitted by local youngsters ages 6-12 who were interested in choosing a name for the Y's dolphin mascot.

"Dazzle the Dolphin," as the official YMCA mascot, will make special appearances around the South Shore as part of the Y's capital campaign to raise funds for improvements to the facility at 79 Coddington St., Quincy Center, including the addition of a new pool.

For submitting the winning entry, Sarah won a pool party for 12 of her friends at the YMCA complete with food and games. She also received a South Shore YMCA t-shirt and water bottle.

A committee of seven community leaders selected "Dazzle" from among the 48 contest entries. Helping with the selection were Laura Barte of The Target Group, June Blair, development director for the South Shore YMCA; Robert Bosworth, editor, The Quincy Sun; Kerry Driscoll, secretary to Mayor James Sheets; Rick DeCristofaro, assistant superintendent of Quincy Public Schools; Dianne Houston of the Quincy Health Department; and Ralph Yohe, president, South Shore YMCA.

Eighth Graders Amanda Loos, Amy Papile To Testify Before Congressional Hearing Rep. Kennedy Praises Broad Meadows Students For Child Rights Crusade

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

U.S. Rep. Joseph Kennedy visited the Broad Meadows School Monday and met with students who have worked diligently on a campaign to stop the practice of forced child servitude.

Two of the students, eighth graders Amanda Loos and Amy Papile, will travel to Washington, D.C. on May 22 to testify before a Congressional Human Rights Caucus hearing called by Rep. Kennedy to investigate child slavery in South Asia and other nations.

Students from the Broad Meadows School, a nationally recognized middle school for excellence, began their campaign after meeting in December, 1994 with Iqbal Masih of Pakistan, who won the Reebok International Foundation Human Rights Award for his work to end child slavery.

Mounted Police Seen Here By July

By MICHAEL WHALEN

Mounted police could return to the streets of Quincy for the first time in 50 years by July.

Mayor James Sheets said Tuesday plans are moving along to purchase two horses for the purpose of using them as tools in the city's war against crime and could see fruition as early as this summer.

While officials have discussed the possibility of bringing back mounted police in recent months, Sheets said it has taken awhile to solidify certain components of the plan, including the identification of revenue sources and costs of equipment. The mayor noted that money leftover from the city's current (Fiscal Year 1996) municipal budget and the FY97 budget that will take effect July 1 should be enough to cover the expenditures.

"I don't foresee the need for any special appropriations," he said. "We should be ready to have them (horses) by sometime in July."

Police Chief Francis Mullen would not guarantee that the horses will be on city streets by July, but added that he is going to use that month as a target date if that's what the mayor wants.

"We're going to try our best," said the chief. "I'm going to work with the mayor. We've been talking about this for a long time."

Mullen said horses used for police work can cost $300 or more apiece, although both Sheets and Mullen noted that they hope the two animals can be donated to the city. The chief said his department is looking at two or three different sources from which the horses could be acquired, including the State Police.

Latex paints will not be accepted.

Fundraiser Launched To Overcome Christmas Losses

The Salvation Army Needs Your Help

The Salvation Army, which has helped people in Quincy for more than 100 years, is now in need of help itself.

The Quincy Temple Corps this week is launching a campaign effort to raise $60,000 to offset revenue losses suffered over the last two Christmas seasons.

The money is needed for summer programs which include day camp for youngsters 5 to 14 years of age as well as ongoing adult day care programs and emergency assistance services.

"We are in a crisis," said Capt. Scott A. Kelly, commanding officer of the Quincy Temple Corps.

The crisis, he said, is the result of a combination of the Christmas season losses and the fact that the corps is entering into "the time of year when our income is at its lowest--while our expenses remain relatively constant."

In a letter going out to Quincy residents, Kelly said:

"We rely heavily on the fund-raising efforts we do during our annual Christmas campaigns. Unfortunately, over the last two Christmas seasons, our fund-raising efforts were not terribly successful due in large part to circumstances beyond our control including the loss of some key Christmas kettle locations."

For a crucial part of the Christmas season, the traditional kettles were not allowed in shopping malls and at other strategic locations.

Kelly noted that locally, 90 cents of every dollar donated to the Salvation Army goes to direct service to individuals.

Anthony L. Agnitti, chairman of the Quincy Temple Corps Advisory Board said unless the lost revenue is made up, some programs could be threatened.

"Income and expense obviously are directly related," he said. "If we cannot overcome the Christmas season shortfall, programs directly servicing Quincy families in need would be threatened."

"Ninety cents of every dollar received goes directly to those in need.

This is a very efficient use of every dollar donated--the way it should be and is."

"We do not want the quality of our programs and assistance to be diminished, nor do we wish to cut back on any of the services we provide," Kelly said in his letter. "That's why we need your help."

Under its Comprehensive Assistance Programs, the Quincy Temple Corps provides a variety of services ranging from emergency food and utility assistance for families to pre-school and adult day care.

In these programs last year, the Quincy Corps assisted 6,377 individuals, providing 14,060 days of care to adults and children and served 4,575 meals.

Also in 1995, 16,745 people participated in the Social Adjustment Development Programs such as: scouting programs for boys and girls, women's fellowship group, after-school program, and music programs for young people and adults.

The Quincy Corps also

Anthony Agnitti said

the building, owned by his family, will undergo major renovations inside with a new look for the exterior.

The restaurant will be called Mando Bistro, he said, and will specialize in Italian dishes. A full liquor license will be sought, but the accent he said, would be on wines.

"We are going to doll it up," he said of the building. "We are going to completely renovate it". Agnitti said he hoped to have the 90-seat restaurant open in three months. His brother Larry, will be the manager, he said.

Oversight Committee Meeting May 20 Harold Questions New System Of Purchasing City Truck, Auto Parts

By MICHAEL WHALEN
City Councillor Paul Harold is seeking to ensure that the new system for purchasing city truck and auto parts is in Quincy's best interests.

The council's Oversight Committee will discuss the issue Monday, May 20 at 6:45 p.m. in the City Council Chambers at City Hall. Harold has invited State Purchasing Agent Philmore Anderson III, City Purchasing Agent Alfred Grazioso, and others to either attend or send a representative to the meeting.

The new system, which took effect this year, allows the city to use the state purchasing agent's low bidder, Lappen's Auto Parts, for the purchase of the parts. Harold said that while the change does result in a financial benefit for the city, the state's standard for parts may be lower than that traditionally set by the city, something that may defeat the purpose of any initial savings.

"There's an advantage costwise, but is it the same quality?," he said. "That's the question I want answered. If they can show me that it's the same quality at a lower cost, than they've proved their point. I'm interested in what's best for the city."

Harold said the city recently made the decision to "piggyback" the state bid because the state gets a better rate as a result of the volume of parts it purchases. He added, however, that if the parts wear out faster because of lesser quality, than the savings is not as beneficial as it might seem.

Harold also noted that because the new system mandates that the city can only use Lappen's Auto Parts, others have been left out of the bidding process.

"People who were supplying parts to the city for years were basically shut out," said Harold.

Last week, the City Council unanimously passed Harold's resolution that the Oversight Committee look into the matter.

MOCK DRUNKEN DRIVING accident was staged outside Quincy High School recently to teach residents the dangers of drinking and driving. The Quincy Police Department coordinated the event in conjunction with the Quincy Fire Department, Quincy School Department, QAT Towing and AMR Ambulance.

McDermott Meeting On Stop & Shop Tonight

Ward 3 City Councillor Patrick McDermott will hold an organizational meeting of the Super Stop & Shop Monitoring Committee tonight (Thursday) at 7 p.m. at the Adams Inn conference room.

The Stop & Shop Company is currently constructing a new store on Newport Ave., and is anticipating a grand opening sometime this fall. Shortly after taking office in January, McDermott organized the Monitoring Committee pursuant to the conditions set forth in the special permit granted by the City Council.

The purpose of tonight's meeting is to set goals for the committee, review Stop & Shop's special permit, and to answer any questions from the general committee or the general public. Representatives from Stop & Shop and Kay Construction, the developer of the project will be on hand.

All are welcome to attend. For more information, call McDermott at 471-3366.

Point Pub Appeal June 12

An appeal by the Point Pub, 536 Washington St., Quincy Point regarding penalties imposed by the Quincy License Board in February stemming from alleged drug-related and other violations has been rescheduled to next month.

Ward 2 City Councillor Daniel Raymond said this week that the appeal, which originally was scheduled to be heard by the state Alcohol Beverage Control Commission yesterday (Wednesday), will instead take place Wednesday, June 12 at 11:30 a.m. in Room 2203 of the Saltonstall Building, 100 Cambridge St., Boston.

The owners of the pub decided to appeal after the License Board voted to close the establishment for 21 days and put it on probation for two years.

Raymond said the action taken by the License Board was proper.

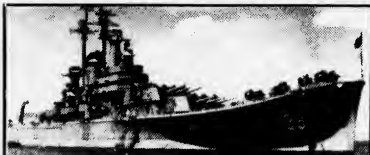

"I applaud the vote of the board," he said. "I'm pleased they took the best interests of the neighborhood into consideration."

Raymond said undercover work by the Quincy Police Department unveiled drug activity being conducted at the pub and other violations of the establishment's license.

He added that the June 12 appeal is open to Quincy residents—although it is unlikely the public will be allowed to speak—and encouraged neighbors to attend.

"I'm going to be there," he said. "And I will speak on behalf of the neighborhood if I'm allowed to."

Quincy Partnership Seeks Memorial Flags For Parade

The Quincy Partnership Inc. is asking the families of deceased veterans to loan their Veterans Memorial Flags to the Partnership for use during this Flag Day Parade.

A Memorial Flag is given to the family of a veteran by the Veterans Administration to be displayed on the casket during the funeral. The flags will be prominently displayed along the parade route. Each flag will have a banner attached that will bear the name of that veteran.

"We feel this is a special way to honor our flag as well as the veteran who fought to protect and preserve it," said Ed Keohane of the partnership. "We want Quincy to lead the way in showing how much we appreciate the courage and sacrifices which have been made by all our veterans through the years."

The Flag Day Parade will be held on Flag Day, Friday, June 14, and will begin at 7 p.m. on Coddington St. near the South Shore YMCA, and move up Washington St., turning North onto Hancock St. ending up at Adams Field.

Ceremonies at the field will include the raising of the giant Mount Rushmore Flag, followed by a band concert and firework display.

Those wishing to loan their flag for display may deliver it to the Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St., Wollaston, 773-3551. All flags will be properly marked with the veteran's name and will be folded and ready to be picked up by the donors within 10 days of the parade.

Flags must be delivered to the funeral home before May 30.

Surrey With The Fringe On Top

You know about the surrey with the fringe on top out in Oklahoma.

Well, City Council President Peter Kolson would like to see one or two here in Quincy.

"I think it would help the tourism business," he says. "It would be a great added attraction."

He visualizes tourists taking a leisurely horse-drawn carriage ride to Quincy's historic sites.

Kolson says a Boston surrey firm is interested in providing the service in Quincy.

Application would have to be made to the City License Board and the matter would also go before the City Council.

"I would support it in the City Council," Kolson says.

He recalled he was talking up trolley tours three years ago and they are now here. He said he also suggested mounted police and they will soon be here.

A surrey, he says, should be next.

"It would add a Colonial flavor during the tourism season," he says. "A nice historical touch."

But he wouldn't limit a ride in the surrey to tourists.

"I'm sure a lot of residents would like to take a little spin around town in it," he says.

QUINCY'S TOM HUGHES may be on his way to making history as Norfolk County Register of Probate.

HUGHES

Hughes is unopposed for a sixth term this year which would be completed in the year 2002. This means Hughes would have the distinction of serving as Register in two different centuries—maybe the first ever to do so.

Hughes' late father, Joseph Hughes, was a career police officer who worked his way up the ladder from patrolman to chief.

Atlantic Students Ask Dog Owners To Clean Up Their (Pets') Act

Sixth graders at Atlantic Middle School in North Quincy are appealing to dog owners to prevent their pets from running loose and defecating on Cavanagh Field and the school's property.

The students, members of the Cavanagh Beautification Committee, have written the foundation for a letter addressed to The Quincy Sun:

"Learning by participating in community service projects is a part of what we do at our school. As our community service project for half of this year, 19 of us have formed a committee to improve the appearance of our neighborhood. We applied for a W.K. Kellogg Foundation Grant and we were funded to improve the appearance of the Cavanagh Field Memorial site on Birch Street.

"We are working with Mr. Koch, the director of the Park and Forestry Department. While working on the area we have noticed that many dog owners allow their pets to run loose on Cavanagh Field and on Atlantic Middle School's property.

"The dogs are defecating on these open fields and the dog owners are not cleaning up after their pets. We know that there is a leash law and a pooper scooper law in our city. We know that it is impossible for the dog officer to enforce these laws. We are asking the

(who was also known as its Ambassador of Good Will) is now Business Development Officer with the Bank of Braintree.

The two close friends are glad to be together again and back in Quincy. And their many friends in Quincy will be happy to see them back.

THERE'S ANOTHER HONOR coming up for Quincy's George Burke at the University of Massachusetts.

Burke, one of UMass' all-time basketball stars and one of the school's all-time favorite alumni, will receive an honorary degree at this year's commencement May 26 at McGuirk Alumni Stadium.

Burke, former city councillor, state representative and district attorney, will receive an honorary doctor of laws degree.

Burke is affectionately known on the Amherst campus as "Trigger," a nickname he won for the high scoring he racked up as a point guard for UMass during the early 1950s.

Burke wore No. 32 when he played. Later Julius Erving wore the same number. UMass honored both, hanging two No. 32s with their names in the Mullins Center. He was elected to the UMass Hall of Fame in 1981.

A graduate of the Class of 1956, Burke was only the second UMass graduate to serve in the state Legislature. He is remembered as an outspoken advocate for UMass during its 1968-75 expansion years and has been a generous supporter of athletic and academic programs at the school.

THE CITY VOLLEYBALL team went down to another crushing defeat again at the hands of the Senior team in the Senior Olympics.

"We got skunked," says City Council President Peter Kolson. The "we" included himself, Mayor James Sheets, Councillors Tim Cahill, Mike Cheney, Paul Harold and Pat McDermott; City Clerk Joseph Shea and Mike McFarland, the mayor's executive secretary who had a dual role as coach-cheerleader.

"They just buzzed us," says Kolson. "You know, I think they had some ringers in there. I think some of those guys on the Senior team were really a lot younger than they looked. I think they dyed their hair gray. They had to be young guys. They sure played like real young guys."

SOMETIMES BUMPER STICKERS make you wonder about some people. Like the guy with the pickup truck and this one: "My kid beat up your honor student."

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS OLD POSTCARD view of the Quincy Yacht Club in Houghs Neck was postmarked 1907. The club was organized in 1874 and built this building for $1800 in 1888; the year Quincy became a city. Today you probably couldn't build the railing for that amount of money. In 1910 this clubhouse was moved out over the water onto pilings on the right, and a new two-story addition was built on this site. Shore dinners in the new dining room were served by a staircase to Norteman's Pavilion which was just next door. This portion of the club was badly damaged in the Blizzard of '78 but was rebuilt that same year.

It's Time For All Of Us To Help 'Pull The Whale'

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

Recently on a sunny Saturday morning, a group of people of various ages, vocations and backgrounds came together at Quincy High School to consider ways to make our community a better place. Although the quantity of participants could have/should have been greater, the quantity of sincere commitment could not have been exceeded.

Many, perhaps all, who were there, had other things to do that morning, but something caused us to supplant those other more personal needs. Perhaps it was that long ago spoken invocation.

During the opening session of the conference, Mitch Finnegan, Impact Quincy's executive director, related a story of how those who live in Nome, Alaska and surrounding villages--a very stark, cold and distant place from here--struggle with many difficult issues, including high rates of alcohol and substance abuse. He told of how there is often jealousy, great bitter rivalries and infighting among many of those people.

How remarkably they are able to overcome all of that and put it aside during the whaling season and help each other in a communal spirit--every man, woman and child--pulling to shore the whales that have been caught, so that they may sustain themselves and survive. The whales they depend upon to maintain their existence become a focused cause, a galvanizing force.

It is an apt metaphor for all of us, in any community, regardless of which serious issues of survival we choose to tackle, whether it be children or families in need, or any of a host of other concerns. We need to join hands, to form partnerships, to set aside differences, to be supportive, not only in financial terms, but in humanistic terms as well.

Quincy's Alcohol Action Group had made a proposal seeking $1 from every resident of Quincy, partly as a symbol of community support, to address the issue of alcohol abuse in our city. It is an important endeavor. A far greater testament, however, would be if every able resident would donate ever an hour or two of their time each month to any of the many worthwhile volunteer efforts in our community.

There are indeed many who do this and to whom the community's debt grows, but many more are needed. It is time for each and every one of us to grab a hold of that line and help "pull the whale."

Citywide Health Fair 'A Very Successful Event'

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

The first annual citywide health fair, "Shaping A Healthier Quincy...Together," was a very successful school-community health education event.

Organized by the Quincy Public Schools Department of Physical Education and Health, over 1,500 students and hundreds of Quincy citizens availed themselves of health screenings and health information from over 30 exhibitors. Special production programs such as Fit Kids, Line Dancing and the Safe at Home Program, which emphasized healthy life choices were enthusiastically received.

Special thanks must go to Harvard Community Health Plan Assistant Administrator John McGillivray and his staff for their outstanding contributions to the overall success of the fair. Andrew Ravech, property manager of Presidents Place representing the Peter Elliot & Co., and his staff must also be commended for all their support in hosting this event. The Quincy Police Athletic League was responsible for much of the set-up work to the fair. Joe Kintigos and his high school staff did a great job all week.

I was very proud of all the hard work displayed by my staff, especially Barbara Fenby (Broad Meadows Middle School), Wendy McKenna (Atlantic Middle School), and most of all, Fran Maloney (elementary health coordinator). A sincere "thank you" must go out to Mayor James Sheets, Supt. Eugene Creedon, and School Committee member Linda Stice for their participation in the Health Fair's opening ceremonies.

$400,000 Voted For NQHS Annex

By PAUL HAROLD

The City Council voted to fund a $400,000 temporary annex on landfilled Teale Pond to alleviate overcrowding at North Quincy High School.

The parent-originated and School Committee-endorsed proposal was the favored option voted on at a special Saturday meeting of the council. Another plan called for using the space available at the Granite Co-op Bank at 440 Hancock St.

The annex plan was considered when it became clear that the proposed new NQHS was dead for the year.

QUARRY SEARCH UNSUCCESSFUL

Dist. Atty. George Burke and member of the Quincy underwater recovery team worked with tow trucks for three hours at Fuller's Quarry, in an attempt to locate the bodies of accused revolutionary bank robbers Susan Saxe and Katherine Powers. A recently discovered 1966 maroon car in the quarry was believed to contain the bodies in the trunk, but when recovered, the car's trunk was empty.

Saxe and Powers were connected with the highly-publicized robbery of the State Street Bank in Brighton where Boston Patrolman Walter Schroeder was killed.

DEMONSTRATORS FAIL TO DISRUPT COMMISSIONING CEREMONIES

Bank Of Braintree Celebrates Quincy Branch Expansion

The Bank of Braintree recently hosted an Open House to celebrate its expansion into the Quincy area.

The event was held at the bank's 85 Quincy Ave. branch, which is gained from The Co-operative Bank of Concord after the two banks became affiliated last April under Walden Bancorp., the holding company.

Mayor James Sheets, on hand to congratulate the bank on its new location, said, "In an era of big bank mergers, it is gratifying to welcome a strong community bank. Our city benefits greatly."

The partnership between Bank of Braintree and The Co-operative Bank of Concord was developed in April 1995 when the two banks agreed to merge forces under Walden Bancorp., a newly-developed holding company for the two subsidiaries. Both banks have remained autonomous, with Bank of Braintree acquiring the seven South Shore branch locations, including four in Quincy, and The Co-operative Bank focusing on the Metro West region, operating as two independent banks.

The affiliation has enhanced Bank of Braintree's ability as one of the premier community commercial banks in the area. The bank can now offer larger lines of credit to commercial customers, as well as increase its lending opportunities.

It also increased Bank of Braintree's physical presence with the additional branch office locations on the South Shore, including the 85 Quincy Ave. branch office. The additional banking outlets assist Bank of Braintree's mission to fill the void, especially in the area of commercial lending, created by recent bank consolidations.

The Open House provided the bank an opportunity to introduce itself, and its commercial lending team, to business owners in the Quincy area.

Don Olson, Bank of Braintree president and CEO, said, "This evening was a great opportunity to get to know Quincy business owners and public officials. Quincy's health business environment is a very important market to The Bank of Braintree, and this evening has provided a perfect time to introduce the bank's commercial lending team to local business owners."

Bank of Braintree's commitment to commercial lending, and to the success of its lending clients, is epitomized in the bank's advertising campaign. The ads highlight key bank officials with their commercial lending success stories, and the successes of their business banking clients.

The bank operates nine branch offices in Quincy, Braintree, Norwell, Haver and Randolph.

WIN SARGENT, chairman of the Bank of Braintree Board, tells those at the open house that he is happy to be back in Quincy where he started his banking career.

Community College Worth A Second Look

By SEAN BARRY

The scenario is familiar; after months of waiting, the college admissions deadlines have arrived. Each day you make your way to the mailbox hoping for "thick envelopes" filled with acceptance letters and supporting information and not the "thin envelopes" containing wait-list or rejection letters from a child's first choice for college.

Paying for college is even more intimidating. As Federal Aid undergoes sweeping change with the new Congress, tuition and fees at nearly every college in America will increase to meet budget needs. On average, public two-year colleges offer significant savings for students.

At the most affordable end of the spectrum is the municipally-managed Quincy College, with campuses in Quincy and Plymouth. Somewhat more expensive is the state community college system. The main difference between the state system and Quincy, both reputable and good values, is that the state schools receive significant support from the taxpayers of the Commonwealth.

State community college students' lower tuitions often mean that taxpayers underwrite the cuts. Regardless, everyone wins with a larger, better-trained workforce earning as much as $3,000 more each year, when compared with those lacking in associates' degree. Private two-year colleges sometimes offer dormitories and more specialized training...at a higher cost.

But two-year colleges don't exist at the exclusion of four-year colleges and universities; they can be partners. Education is a lifelong journey and an increasingly diversified pool of prospective students has forced colleges and universities to rethink their admissions strategy. Recognizing this distinct niche, community colleges have identified institutions appealing to their own graduates. The result are poorly named "articulation agreements" which are covenants between a community college and a four year college or university.

These agreements guarantee transfer of all credit earned in similar programs, and guaranteed admission as juniors, for qualified graduates of the two-years institution. Quincy College presently has agreements with Curry, Anna Maria, Framingham State, and Emmanuel College.

Academic officers at wisely-managed colleges seek out agreements with as many institutions as possible. This is an important factor to consider when reviewing admissions materials. Agreements are signed monthly...and your son or daughter's ideal institution may already have put ink to paper.

Ultimately, community colleges are worth investigating. Low tuition and fees may free up money for other expenses or continued investment while working toward the associate's. Time spent in a community college may afford students the opportunity to build a stronger grade point average, or perhaps entitle them to merit scholarships.

Community colleges may not be for everyone. Remember, students graduating from a four-year college, whether they transferred or not, still receive a diploma.

(Sean Barry is Director of Public Affairs at Quincy College.)

Budget Amendment Nets $200,000 For Quincy Schools

Quincy's State House delegation, Reps. Stephen Tobin, Ronald Mariano and Michael Bellotti, recently passed a budget amendment adding funding to the Local Aid Resolution passed by the House earlier this year.

The funding will mean an additional $200,000 for the Quincy Public Schools.

"We are altering the current formula so that communities, like Quincy, which contribute more than the statewide average per pupil will now receive overburden aid," said Mariano.

Overburden aid is designed to assist communities in meeting the rigorous demands of the Education Reform Act of 1993.

"The increase in local funding will ease the burden that Quincy has been feeling due to the Education Reform Act of 1993, which has a substantial impact on the amount of local aid our school districts receive," said Bellotti.

The amendment sponsored by the Quincy delegation will also assist Quincy each year as the Education Reform Act continues to alter the manner in which public education in the Commonwealth is funded.

REAL ESTATE MARKET

Grants Available For Those Seeking Real Estate Degrees

The Massachusetts Association of Realtors' (MAR) Charitable and Educational Foundation has announced the availability of a new series of educational grants for individuals pursuing a professional designation or degree program in real estate or another industry-related field.

This year, four $500 educational scholarships are available through the MAR Charitable & Educational Foundation's 1996 Scholarship Fund. To be eligible to receive a scholarship, students must be a resident of Massachusetts pursuing a college-level educational degree program or professional designation (such as GRI, CRS, CRB, CCIM, CPM, CREA, SIOR, ALC or LTG) in real estate or another industry-related field of study.

Qualified applicants must complete a one-page application form and submit it to the MAR Charitable and Educational Foundation by Aug. 1. Selected applicants also will be required to appear before the foundation's Scholarship Committee to complete a personal interview.

Real estate licensees and others interested in learning more about the MAR Charitable and Educational Foundation's 1996 Scholarship Fund may contact their Board of Realtors or the MAR Customer Service Department at 1-800-725-6272 to obtain a brochure and application form.

In addition, a brochure and application can be faxed to interested persons by dialing the MAR Fax On Demand system at 1-800-892-6271 and request document #4016.

Dawson Takes Part In Capitol Hill Rally

Mary Dawson of the South Shore Association of Realtors in Quincy joined an estimated 1,200 Realtors from around the country recently for a National Association of Realtors' Capitol Hill Rally.

The purpose of the rally was to spotlight Realtor concerns to members of Congress.

"Real estate is one of the few issues that crosses every path of every American in every state in the union," Dawson said. "That's why we're here. We need Congress to know that regardless of race, sex, age and economic status, one way or another, real estate touches all of our lives."

Realtors like Dawson led the fight in the past year to put down efforts to enact a flat tax. The flat tax, like the one proposed by Texas Rep. Dick Army last year, seeks to overhaul the current tax system and replace it with one uniform tax for all taxpayers. Host flat tax proposals in Congress do away with taxpayer deductions, including the mortgage interest deduction.

"What we need in this country is tax reform," said Dawson. "But studies have shown that embracing the flat tax with no deductions would devastate the national housing market."

A 1995 study conducted by DR/McGraw-Hill found that eliminating the mortgage interest and property tax deductions would cost the nation's homeowners $1.7 trillion. The loss would come as a result of home values plummeting an average of 15 percent within two years. The flat tax would also cause existing home sales to drop 19 percent.

Dawson said NAR is committed to preserving every person's right to reach the American Dream of owning a home.

"That's why we support the Federal Housing Administration's mortgage insurance program to help families with lower incomes get the chance to own their own home," she said.

Dawson added, "For many people, buying a house is the biggest investment they will ever make. This is especially true of low-income families. Home ownership benefits everybody."

The National Association of Realtors, "The Voice of Real Estate," is the nation's largest professional association, representing nearly 750,000 members involved in all aspects of the real estate industry.

Marina Bay 'Tavern' Gets Board Approval With 13 Conditions

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO

In spite of protests from residents of Marina Bay about the on going parking situation, the Quincy License Board after a couple of hours discussion voted unanimously to amend the license to operate The "Tavern," formerly known as the Ocean Terrace for the summer season.

Comments ranged from wanting the parking plan "written in blood" from an irate resident to Chairman Joseph Shea commenting there was almost "no way out" to Police Chief Francis Mullen finally advising the board to take "one thing at a time" and vote for the amendment.

The amendment was because of a request from City Solicitor Steve McGrath who explained that because of the delay in the construction of additional buildings and a lease problem, the actual project wouldn't begin until next year. The vote of the board makes it possible for owner Ed Kane to operate the Tavern for the summer season.

On a motion made by Fire Chief Thomas Gorman and seconded by Health Commissioner Jane Gallahue, the board told Atty. Robert Fleming and John Wilson representing Eating Up The Coast, owner of the Tavern, that all present conditions be adhered to before an occupancy permit is granted. If not, the licence will be revoked.

Kathy Nugent, representing building inspector

Matt Mulvey said "No occupancy permit be granted until parking lot is constructed and licensed by the board."

Atty. Douglas Randall, a resident of Marina Bay calling the amendment "inappropriate to the license" referred to statements made last year by the license board stating that this would be the "last summer that any business would be allowed to go forward without new parking."

Fleming said construction is already "underway" and said a trolley would be in service for functions as well.

In trying to appease the protestors about the noise from the music, Chairman Joseph Shea said he had discussed the problem with Ward 6 Councillor Bruce Ayers. He said a noise monitoring committee has been formed, consisting of Ayers, Shea and Mulvey plus two Marina Bay residents. Shea said they have purchased a machine that monitors noise at all kinds of functions. A meeting about the noise and the hours will be held May 28.

Richard Barrett, operator of Amelia's Restaurant at Marina Bay and former owner of the Ocean Terrace said he hears "conflicting reports" about the replacement of the boats and "validated parking" which he said would affect other business owners.

Frank Coyne, who lives in the area wanted a promise to have a uniformed detail placed at Victory Rd. and East Quantum St. to check cars leaving Marina Bay who had been drinking. He said this would be an "added safety precaution and more protection for people living in the neighborhood".

Shea read the following Tavern conditions to a sizeable group attending the meeting.

•Prior to occupancy all property permits must be issued.

•Paving, lighting and marking of lot 40 and in front of the tent must be in compliance with zoning ordinances.

•Repaint fire lanes.

•No parking in designated fire lanes.

•No live or taped music after 11 p.m. (Persons attending the meeting wanted the hour changed to 10 p.m.) Shea announced the May 28 meeting will address the issue.

•A permit application for the Tavern restaurant must be filed with plans meeting the requirements of the State Building code prior to July 1, 1997. Once the building permit is issued, applicant must commence construction work forthwith or Waterworks (the other proposal by Ed Kane) all alcohol license will be revoked.

•Approved means of egress from the site must be installed.

Clean Chimneys Provide Safety

The Chimney Safety Institute of America (CSIA) offers the following chimney safety tips as ways to prevent home heating hazards and save hard-earned dollars:

- Have your chimney checked every year (no matter how you heat your home) to make sure the chimney can do its job to properly vent hot, toxic gases and carbon monoxide from the heating system to the outdoors.

- To help reduce creosote build-up in your wood-burning chimney system, burn only well-seasoned hardwoods. If you don't know how to build a hot, safe fire, ask your CSIA Certified Chimney Sweep for tips on proper woodburning techniques.

- If you own or are planning to install a high efficiency gas furnace, ask your CSIA Certified Chimney Sweep to check that the furnace is vented in accordance with the National Fuel Gas Code.

- Have a high quality, long-lasting chimney cap installed to keep out debris and prevent birds, animals and insects from nesting in your chimney.

- Following a violent storm, earthquake, flood or lightning strike, have your chimney inspected for damage—inside and out. This includes checking for cracks and fallen bricks. For safety's sake, do not use your chimney until it is checked by by CSIA

Certified Chimney Sweep.

- Install a carbon monoxide detector to warn of harmful gases that may be entering your home because of a blocked or damaged chimney.

- Have your chimney waterproofed to prevent long-term corrosion and masonry damage.

- Have your chimney flashing (the seal between the chimney and the roof) inspected and maintained. Flashing prevents rain water and snow melt from entering your home and causing costly damage to your walls and ceilings.

- Save energy dollars and eliminate unpleasant off-season odors. Have a sealing damper installed in your wood-burning chimney system.

- Have your chimney sweep ensure that your chimney has an appropriate liner. Chimney liners are required in new construction to separate hot heating system emissions from the structure of your home.

For more information on chimney and venting safety, call the CSIA at 1-800-536-0118.

A Child's Backyard Birding Adventure

By CHRISTINE DONOVAN

I have the great pleasure of being invited to give wildbird presentations to young school children. It is the reflection of their interest in nature that prompts me to write this particular article.

If we begin teaching the very young about the joys found in nature, perhaps we may recapture the simple pleasures reminiscent of our own youth.

Common household items may be the tools for your adventure. A grapefruit cut in half, the pulp removed, becomes a mini-feeder. To make the hanger, just puncture three holes evenly around the rim, and use cord, fish line, or thin wire to tie up this tempting bird dish. You may fill it with bits of stale bread, bird seed, raisins or chunks of apple.

In the springtime, begin a lint-saver program in your home. Let your child managed the repository of clothes dryer lint, hair from hair brushes, bits of shredded newspaper, scraps of yarn or string. Pick a designated place in your yard where the youngster may place their collection for the birds to use as nesting material.

CHRISTINE DONOVAN

Find a patch of sand for your child to fill a flat tray with to offer the birds. This "grit" will aid in the birds' digestion.

We do have nectar-feeding birds in our area. To attract orioles, place orange halves beside a dish of...grape jelly! They love it! Maybe you could make a peanut butter and jelly sandwich for you and your child to share while you're in the yard "bird-watching." Begin keeping a birdwatcher's journal, making notes of the sights and sounds you hear.

Another nectar-feeding bird is the hummingbird. A wonderful feeder for children to manage is the "Lil' Beginner" by Perky Pet. You may tie in your love of gardening by discussing plants that are an attractant for hummingbirds and even butterflies. An adventure project that may aid in attracting the little hummingbird is to hang a ripe banana in an onion bag or suet sack close to your nectar feeder. The banana will attract fruit flies, and hummingbirds love insects.

One of the best general bird attractants is water. Even if you don't have a feeder in your yard, fresh water will draw many feathered friends. It is often a task that is easy for children to manage on their own. The sight of a bird's bathing antics will delight the hearts of young or old.

A water project that is sure to bring results would be to take a plastic jug with a handle, remove the cap, fill it with water, and place it in a secure position above a backyard birdbath. You may use picture-hanging wire to secure it out of sight in tree limbs. Once it is in place, puncture a small hole in the base of the jug. The sound of dripping water will draw many, many birds to your yard. A gallon jug will last quite a long time...remember, only a pin hole in the base.

Birdfeeder and birdhouse kits make wonderful family projects. You may use non-toxic paints to personalize this home-crafted item. The gift of time that you share with your children on a wildlife project will remain a heartfelt treasure throughout their lives. It will put them in touch with a sensitivity to nature.

There are excellent books available on birding for children. For pre-school or kindergarten youngsters, "A Nest Full of Eggs" by Priscilla Belz Jenkins (Harper Collins Publishers) is the perfect vehicle for a spring adventure with your child.

Sharing a backyard birding adventure with your children may open up a whole new world of "natural" possibilities. Once you see the wonder in their eyes, hear the enthusiasm in their voices, you'll be inspired, too!

Energy-Efficient Products Save Money, Environment

America enjoys the world's highest standard of living, due in large part to the continual innovations in products powered by electricity.

In the home, these technological advances give people more comfort, convenience, and satisfaction. They can lower electric bills, too.

Though often overlooked, the energy-efficient electric products also help the environment. They reduce the quantity of power plant emissions as a consequence of using electricity more efficiently. And, using energy efficiently helps to preserve our country's natural resources by delaying the need for additional power plants.

Induction Cooktop

Underneath a smooth ceramic surface, cooking elements induce heat directly into cookware made of iron or steel. Because this cooktop energy to heat only after has been transferred to the cookware, several energy-saving benefits occur:

- Uses up to 60 percent less electricity compared with other cooktops.

- The temperature setting and the diameter of the cookware's base determine how much energy is converted to heat. All the cooking energy goes into the cookware, resulting in a cooler kitchen.

- The cooktop now has warm-up or cool-down periods; it's either at a precise setting instantly, or it's off.

Microwave Dryer

Imagine a standard size dryer that dries clothes as fast as you wash them. A prototype dryer has been created, with full production planned in the near future. This dryer has two key benefits:

- Uses up to 20 percent less electricity than conventional dryers.

- Much faster drying times; reduces fabric wear, no shrinkage; no static cling; no lint.

Privacy Glass

At the flick of a switch, a window turns from clear to opaque, to block the sun's heat during the day, and for privacy at night. That means no need for shades, blinds, or awnings. And it's highly suitable for any home, not just passive-solar designs.

Greater use of the following electric products, now readily available, will return significant energy savings:

Compact Fluorescent Bulbs: These use up to 75 percent less electricity than incandescent bulbs. They also can last up to 13 times as long.

Microwave Ovens: They can cook dinner using 90 percent less energy than a standard oven.

Electric Heat Pumps: A new generation of heat pumps offers energy savings of 30 to 40 percent. New energy-saving breakthroughs include variable-speed compressors, as well as options for exchanging heat with the ground. Some units also supply free hot water as a by-product of air conditioning.

For more information on efficient electricity use, call your electric utility's residential marketing department.

SCOTT DEWARE

A Thought For The Week

Today we are constantly assured that we have more leisure time than our "production-oriented" ancestors, most of whose waking hours were supposedly spent in gathering the wherewithal to sustain their families.

It must be so, but then why are we always rushing so, abbreviating everything in order to gain time?

At our Funeral Home, we cannot make time stand still, but we have tried to create an atmosphere of unhurried graciousness reflected of the solemnity of the ritual for which it was created.

Our world is so much better when someone cares. There's no substitute for caring and experience in a matter as complex as funeral service. At our establishment, we have extensive experience with all the countless details that comprise unlimited assistance. At time of need, someone cares at Deware.

Sheets said even if the horses are donated, the city would have to spend nearly $40,000 to fund the first year of the mounted patrols. Among the expenditures he cited:

- $22,000 for a tow vehicle, and an additional $5,000 for a trailer, which would be used to transport the horses to the city from wherever they are kept during the evening to their patrol areas. Sheets said he has a specific site in mind for that use, but Mullen said that location is only a possibility.

- $7,200 for boarding for the horses.
- $3,000 for harnesses and other equipment for the animals.
- $1,472 to fully equip two riders.
- $1,200 for grooming services and an additional $200 for veterinary expenses.

Sheets was quick to point out that the first year should be by far the most expensive.

"Most of those costs will not repeat themselves because the equipment will then be here," he said. The mayor added that he thinks the horses will be very useful when it comes to crowd control, whether it be at the city's park areas, the Quincy Center MBTA Station or secluded wooded areas.

"They'll be a very helpful tool," said Sheets. "People don't mess with dogs, and people don't mess with horses."

Mullen, who recalls seeing the city's last mounted police unit as a young boy in the mid-1940s, said the two horses will give his department an added flexibility that will be quite useful.

"There's an advantage to using them, especially when it comes to areas like Faxon Park or some of the wooded areas," he said. "Sometimes there are places that other vehicles can't get into."

Mullen also noted that although the horses eventually were "phased out because of policing changes" in the '40s, police departments today need as many crime-fighting weapons as possible.

"We feel now is a good time to bring them back," he said.

Company Store License Request Withdrawn

A request from Ed Kane to open The Company Store at Marina Bay was withdrawn at Tuesday's Quincy License Board meeting.

Atty. Robert Fleming representing Kane told the board that they "would not interfere" with the on going business the Yacht Stop owned by Mary Gaquin in the same area.

Fleming said they have no plans to proceed with the request to open the store because "we listened to the people and the board".

At the last meeting owner Mary Gaquin told the board there had been an attempt to harass her and "put her out of business". At that time, she pleaded with the license board to hold their decision on Kane's request until she could formulate adequate legal action against George O'Malley (part owner of Marina Bay) and Kane.

After the meeting, Gaquin said she was "pleased with the outcome".

North Quincy Relay Clinches First Win Over Weymouth

North Quincy recorded its first ever win over Weymouth in spring track clinching the victory with a win in the 4 x 100 relay, 70-66.

"It was a total team effort," said head coach Geoff Hennessy. "It's one of our biggest wins ever since joining the Old Colony League."

The usual stalwarts Jennifer Pineo (shotput and discus) and Sarah Beston (high jump, triple jump) powered the Raiders. But the real story was those who usually do not find themselves in the limelight.

"Kids like Sharon Lee (a surprise second in the 400), Nicole Bertone (an upset win in the javelin) and Angela Scott (second in the high jump, third in triple jump) performed well in the clutch and were the difference," said Hennessy.

With a win required in only one of the two relays, Hennessy's troops decided to load up the 4 x 100 relay knowing that Weymouth's sprinters had already competed in the maximum number of events. The quartet of Casey Ngo, Jasmine Gonzalez, Aja Jackson and Kellie Johnston blasted to a 52.7 clocking to win going away.

North takes on crosstown rival Quincy today (Thursday). North Quincy's record stands at 3-3.

The events:

100 meters: Casey Ngo, third, 14.4.

200 meters: Kellie Johnston, second, 28.0.

400 meters: Jasmine Gonzalez, first, 63.5; Sharon Lee, second, 66.5.

1 mile: Colleen Cotter, third, 6:16.8.

2 miles: Kelly Duggan, second, 13:51; Carrie Jarvie, 14:00.

100 hurdles: Phyllis Poon, first, 17.2; Suk Ng, second, 17.2.

300 hurdles: Aja Jackson, second, 50.7.

4 x 100 relays: North Quincy, first, (Ngo, Gonzalez, Jackson, Johnston), 52.7.

Triple jump: Sarah Beston, first, 32'4"; Aja Jackson, second, 31'4"; and Angela Scott, third, 31'6".

High jump: Beston, first, 4'10"; Scott, second, 4'8".

Shotput: Jen Pineo, first, 33'7"; Claire Quilty, third, 29'7".

Discus: Pineo, first, 99'10"; Lizz Ceurvels, second, 88'4"; Quilty, third, 86'7".

Javelin: Nicole Bertone, first, 92'4".

Police, Other Budgets Delayed No Cuts Made During Council Budget Meeting

The City Council Finance Committee made no cuts during its first meeting to discuss Mayor James Sheets' proposed $143.2 million Fiscal Year 1997 municipal budget Monday night, but delayed voting on several items, including the police budget.

Sheets' proposed budgets for the department of public works, city clerk's office and animal control were all passed by the Finance Committee. The full City Council will approve them at a later date.

The police budget, however, was heavily scrutinized. Among the issues councillors raised with Police Chief Francis Mullen:

•Councillor Michael Cheney criticized the chief's proposal to cut one of the department's three canine units work past midnight, which forces Quincy to rely on dogs from the State Police or nearby towns to respond to overnight emergencies. Mullen said the shifts are mandated by contract but added that he would look into the matter.

private firm for routine oil changes.

•Cheney said none of the department's three canine units work past midnight, which forces Quincy to rely on dogs from the State Police or nearby towns to respond to overnight emergencies. Mullen said the shifts are mandated by contract but added that he would look into the matter.

•Mullen, in response to questions from the council, said the department's foot patrols will continue operating in various parts of the city. When the chief said he plans to hire six officers by October, Councillor Paul Harold noted that 10 new positions were announced last October, but only four have been filled. The chief said the department has had trouble reserving space in the police training academy.

Votes on budget proposals for city celebrations, the annual city report and trash collection also were postponed. Councillors said they want more information from department heads on those items.

In addition, the council's $257,931 budget was postponed because of concerns about postage costs. Harold has asked the mayor to transfer money out of the city treasurer's budget and into the council's to give the council more oversight.

Ward 2 Councillor Daniel Raymondi also said he wants to take a closer look at a proposal for $12,000 for out-of-state travel for the council.

The council's other budget meeting dates were set for last night (Wednesday) and Tuesday, May 21 at 6:30 p.m. in the Council Chambers at City Hall. If an additional meeting is required, it will be held the morning of Saturday, May 18.

Rep. Kennedy Praises Broad Meadows Students For Child Rights Crusade escape at age 10, was an outspoken crusader against child labor until his murder in April, 1995.

Broad Meadows students have raised more than $100,000 toward the construction of a school in Pakistan for 200 of the nation's poorest children—those who are former bonded laborers or most at risk of being sold into servitude.

Amy and Amanda, both 14, have assumed the role of spokespeople for the school's campaign to end child slave labor. Both are excited to bring that message to Congressional leaders next week on Capitol Hill.

"I hope we spread the word (about the horrors of child labor and the need to stop it)," Amy said after Kennedy's visit. "We're not just speaking about the campaign, we're speaking on behalf of all 50 states and the kids who have helped us all along. This will be our way of acknowledging them because we couldn't have done it without supporters."

Amanda said it is important for adults to understand that children's concerns about this issue need to be heard.

"I hope they understand at American children do have a voice and that we are supporting a bad thing which is buying things made by children who are slaves. We have learned in our system that this is wrong and we should let children be children. I hope they realize that they can't let this happen any longer," Amanda said.

Kennedy has been a member of the U.S. Congress Human Rights Committee for the past 10 years. He will chair next Wednesday's hearing.

He said he was impressed with the students' ability to take a local stand on an issue that has world-wide implications.

"The children at this school are a wonderful example of children making a difference. They're seeing a problem, they're mobilizing themselves and making a difference.

"It's a great opportunity to come and meet some really motivated young people who obviously had no intention of drawing attention to themselves but nevertheless got the job done.

Kennedy, sitting among a dozen students in a classroom, told them, "It's so important to have kids feel that there's a place in school where they can talk about things like responsibility and what we have to do to give back our country. This is exactly what you should be doing. . . . None of this would work without your initiative.

"We're really all here because of you and the efforts you make.

If you keep at it, you're going to do well in life and you're going to help a lot of people at the same time and this country and this planet will be a better place because of your efforts. Thanks very, very much, you're doing a great job."

Asked what he hopes Amanda and Amy's visit will accomplish, Kennedy replied, "The most important issue pertaining to the millions of children around the world is that so many people don't even know that slave trade still exists, that there are tens of thousands of children who are sold into human bondage, that work at slave wages don't get even enough money to pay for food that they need to sustain themselves, that this is a rampant practice and that what is even more amazing is that millions of Americans are importing goods from these countries, whether it be rugs or clothing or other kinds of goods and services that they're purchasing that were made with slave labor.

"I think the more we can expose these practices, the more that we can make certain that we can take these products whether they be clothing or rugs or whatever to indicate which products are in fact made with slave labor and which ones aren't, the more we can rid the world of this obscene practice."

Teacher Ron Adams said he is extremely proud of Amy and Amanda.

"I've watched these children work through their vacations and before and after school and I know how hard they have worked and I know how much they believe in what they're doing. To see them know, being invited to go to Washington to testify in Congress to tell what they've learned is inspiring and it makes me think what better job could there be right now than being a teacher at Broad Meadows School."

Adams called the human rights crusade a school-wide "team effort."

"We've got students from grades six, seven and eight, we've got faculty members, custodians, cafeteria crew that are silently supporting, that are moderately supporting and some that are just breaking their back for this campaign. Add into that the other schools in Quincy that have joined in, add in their parents, add in businesses, other schools outside Massachusetts, schools in 12 other countries, Amnesty International groups, union groups, there is such a tremendous human rights team now assembled thanks to the kids here at Broad Meadows that is saying that child bonded labor has got to go, it's unacceptable, 100 million children at least are in child bonded labor and the kids at Broadmeadows are raising collective voices saying that has to be abolished, that child bonded labor has got to go.

"They will bring that message to Washington on May 22 and they will be the teachers for the day."

Summer Sizzler

SUMMER-LIKE HEAT gripped the city--and much of New England--Monday and Tuesday. On Monday, the thermometer outside Colonial Federal Savings Bank in Wollaston registered 91 degrees, a new Boston-area record for that date.

For Rubbish, Recyclables

BFI To Receive New 7-Year, $27.M Contract

Browning-Ferris Industries soon will be awarded a new, seven-year, $27.6 million contract for the collection and disposal of the city's rubbish and the collection and marketing of Quincy's recyclables, according to city officials.

Department of Public Works Commissioner David Colton said Tuesday the city has reached an agreement in principle with BFI, which has handled the city's trash for about 25 years and recyclables since the program began in Quincy in 1989.

Colton said BFI will be paid $27,643,469 beginning in Fiscal Year 1997--which starts July 1--including a first-year fee of $3,607,000, a figure $472,937 less than what the company was paid in FY96.

Colton added that the total savings to the city is difficult to determine, since BFI's current three-and-a-half year contract is being replaced by a seven-year deal. He noted, however, that in each of the first five years of the contract, the city will be paying less than the FY96 total of $4,228,937.

"It's a great deal for the city," said Colton. "We'll be saving money and there will be no change in services. I think there's universal acceptance of the fact that BFI does a good job, and the reduced cost makes it even better."

Mayor James Sheets, who said he plans to sign the contract as soon as he receives it from Colton, agreed.

"It was a very competitive process, but I think we have a level of comfort with BFI," said the mayor. "If we could have had a substantial savings from another company I would have approved it, because the savings would be worth the risk. But we have had good service from BFI down through the years."

Mosquito Spraying Starts May 28

The Quincy Health Department has received notice from the Norfolk County Mosquito Control Project that early morning application of the pesticide Resmethrin, for the control of adult mosquitoes, is scheduled to begin Tuesday, May 28 and will continue (weather permitting) throughout the summer months until Sept. 15.

Applications will be made on Tuesday mornings, in selected areas of Quincy, west of Route 3A (Washington St., Southern Artery and Hancock St.), which may include some of the following neighborhoods: Montclair, West Quincy, inland portions of Wollaston, South Quincy, and inland sections of Quincy Point.

Applications will be made Thursday mornings, in selected areas of Quincy, east of Route 3A (Washington St., Southern Artery and Hancock St.) which may include some of the following neighborhoods: Squantum, Atlantic, Norfolk Downs, coastal Wollaston, Merry-mount, Houghs Neck, Germantown, and coastal Quincy Point.

Not all areas as described above will be entirely sprayed on a given date. Attempts will be made to spray as large an area of western Quincy on

Sheets Sees Need For:

$15 Million More To Upgrade Schools

By MICHAEL WHALEN

The city is planning to spend another $15 million on the Quincy Public Schools by the end of the century, according to Mayor James Sheets.

Sheets said much of the money will be used to improve the city's middle schools. Part of it will be earmarked for, but not limited to, additional window replacements, new heating systems, elevators, and reasonable handicapped accessibility at schools throughout the city. Most of the money will be bonded, although details on the spending plan are not complete, he added.

The $15 million will bring the city's spending on public schools to nearly $40 million since Sheets was first elected.

Sheets said with the City Council's passage of a $12,960,000 bond package that included $10 million for construction of a new elementary school in Quincy Point Monday night, the city has invested $23,602,000 on the physical expansion and improvement of the schools since he took office in January 1991.

"I think that's an enormous indication of the commitment we have had to education in this city," he said.

Among those expenditures are the planned Quincy Point school, construction of the Della Chiesa Early Childhood Center, reopening of the Beechwood Knoll Elementary School, expansion of the Bernazzani and Parker elementary schools, and other repairs and improvements, including the improvement of technological accessibility and recreational and playground facilities on school properties.

The remaining money to be spent on the schools by the end of the century is all part of the city's "master plan" for education, the mayor said. Completion of the new Quincy Point school will end the construction and expansion of Quincy's elementary school system, since the goal of reduction of class size at that level to ensure excellence in education will have been achieved, he noted.

The addition of the Point-Webster School as a middle school--part of the plan for the new school--

Quincy Sergeant Seen Webster Police Chief

Sgt. Richard Bergeron, 51, a 25-year veteran of the Quincy Police Department, is expected to soon be named chief of police in the Town of Webster, according to Quincy and Webster sources.

A source in the Quincy Police Department said Bergeron has been offered the position and has requested a one-year leave of absence--which must be approved by Mayor James Sheets--effective June 1. A Webster source said Bergeron is a front-runner for the job.

Police Chief Francis Mullen, who was running the Quincy police academy when Bergeron joined the force in 1971, said Bergeron is a "heads-up person" who served in the department's Drug Unit as a patrolman before being promoted to sergeant in 1991.

"He's been a good officer," said Mullen, who knows Bergeron is a finalist for the Webster position. "Anyone who works in a department of our size has major experience."

Webster, a town with a population of under 17,000, has a police department that consists of 23 officers, Mullen said. He added that the Quincy Police Department, the seventh largest in the state, has just under 200 officers, Mullen said.

Bergeron could not be reached for comment at press time.

QHA Receives Award For Excellence In Management

The Quincy Housing Authority received an award from the Executive Office of Communities & Development at the annual convention of Massachusetts National Association of Housing and Development Organizations in Falmouth Monday.

EOCD Mary L. Padula presented 12 housing authorities certificates of recognition for their excellence in the management of state-aided public housing.

Quincy was the only authority in the "large" category to receive the award.

$12 Million Bond Issue Guarantees New Point School

By MICHAEL WHALEN

The City Council has passed Mayor James Sheets' $12,960,000 bond package, which includes $10 million for a new elementary school in Quincy Point.

The council voted on the matter Monday night. The package includes the following:

- $10 million for construction of the new school, which will be built to help relieve overcrowding at Sterling Middle School in South Quincy.

- $860,000 for various repairs at Central Middle School and six elementary schools.

- $650,000 to replace water mains at Dixwell Avenue, Silver Street and Baxter Avenue, Shelton Road, and Broady Avenue.

- $525,000 for seawall repairs.

- $510,000 for new equipment including two special needs vans for the schools, two "madvacs" and a sidewalk scrubber for the Department of Public Works, E911 phone equipment, new voting machines and water meters.

- $240,000 for refurbishment of Faxon Park.

- $125,000 to pay an architect for work done on plans for a proposed addition and other renovations at the Thomas Crane Public Library.

- $50,000 for restoration of the City Council Chambers at City Hall.

Ward 2 Councillor Daniel Raymondi, who along with School Committee Vice Chairman Ronald Mariano proposed construction of the new Quincy Point school, said he was happy to see the bond passed.

"It's the most positive and significant project that has occurred in the Ward 2 community in many, many years," he said. "I'm very pleased."

School Supt. Eugene Creedon told councillors Monday night that after the new elementary school is built, the city must move to address handicapped accessibility issues at Sterling and Point-Webster Elementary School.

Plans call for the new school to be built at Victory Park near the site of the former Pollard School.

The new elementary school has been proposed to relieve overcrowding at Sterling in South Quincy. Under the plan, the new school would accept pupils who now attend Point-

Webster, while the latter, currently Quincy Point's only public school, would become a middle school.

Students who now move from Point-Webster to Sterling for sixth grade would stay in Quincy Point for middle school, reducing by about half Sterling's growing population of more than 450 students.

Under the present districting, half of Sterling's students originate from Point-Webster with the other half coming from Lincoln-Hancock Community School in South Quincy.

Officials are hoping the project, which has been approved by the School Committee, can be completed by the fall of 1997 or by January 1998 at the latest.

Sheets has said 63 percent of the $10.9 million in the bond for school projects will be reimbursed by the state. The state reimbursement total is $6,867,000, he added, meaning the city will only have to pay back $4,033,000 for the school projects and $6,093,000 for the entire package.

The mayor has also the city's Fiscal Year 1996 debt service (bond indebtedness) was $6.2 million, and that figure is expected to drop to between $5.7 million and $5.9 million when FY97 begins July 1.

KARL OLSON of Quincy is all smiles after winning the Massachusetts Lottery's Mass Cash game. He won a prize of $100,000 in a recent drawing.

Tuesdays, and as large an area of eastern Quincy on Thursdays. The spraying will occur between the hours of 3 and 6:30 a.m. only if mosquito populations warrant an application.

If inclement weather occurs, such as high winds, rain or low temperatures) or equipment fails, the application will be added to the next scheduled day, or rescheduled for the following day.

Resmethrin is used due to its compatibility with the environment, very low toxicity to mammals, low irritation levels and the fact it does not harm other wildlife.

The consultation meeting will be held to receive advice and comment from agencies, officials, and citizens regarding which environmental issues, if any, are significant for the project. Opinions are to the extent of significance of possible environmental impact will be welcome.

The meeting will include a brief presentation of the MEPA process by the staff, a brief presentation of the project by

WHAT TO DO ABOUT DIARRHEA

In our stress filled, fast food dominated world, diarrhea is an occasional fact of life for most people. Fortunately, it is usually possible to self-treat mild cases. Drinking lots of liquids is critical to preventing dehydration. Just make sure the liquids are clear, such as water, tea, broth or ginger ale. Avoid milk products, which can irritate the bowel further. Small servings of bland food (cooked cereal, banana, rice, boiled potato or pasta-without butter) are advisable. Call your doctor about any case of diarrhea that hangs on longer than a week, that contains blood or mucus, that is accompanied by fever, that causes more than five to ten bowel movements per day, or that keeps coming back. P.S. People with diarrhea should avoid both alcohol and painkillers, which can make the condition worse. Don't wait too long before checking with your physician if you suffer from this condition. At COMPREHENSIVE MEDICAL CARE, Dr. Lisa Antonelli and I specialize in heart disease. I am affiliated with Quincy Hospital and South Shore Hospitals. Hours by appointment. We're at 700 Congress St., in Quincy. Call me or Dr. Lisa Antonelli with questions at 472-2550. I am a member of the American College of Cardiology and the American Heart Ass'n. Convenient parking. We enjoy making your life easier.

The New School Name

Ground has yet to be broken for the new Quincy Point elementary school but the inevitable question is already being asked. What will the school be named? Good question. It could start a few arguments.

Ward 2 Councillor Dan Raymondi and School Committee Vice Chairman Ron Mariano who proposed together the school are together standing neutral as to what it should be named.

MARIANO

RAYMONDI

"It's really a little early to be talking about a name," says Mariano. "First things first. Let's get the school first and then the name."

Raymondi, a former School Committee member and vice chairman himself, agrees.

"The most important thing is the school," he says. "It is desperately needed. Let's make sure it becomes a reality. The name will come later."

Both say the name is really up to the School Committee although they would like to see it have a Quincy Point connection.

No doubt a number of names will be suggested. At least two have already: former long-time School Committeeman Frank Anselmo who now lives at 1000 Southern Artery and Norfolk County Sheriff Clifford Marshall, a former Ward 2 councillor.

Another former Ward 2 councillor, Ted DeCristofaro, who grew up in Quincy Point and has never left it, is virtually sure to be among the suggested names.

There's another possibility.

The kids going to the new school will be those who would have been attending the Point-Webster School. The name Webster might go along with them to the new school.

A possibility, agree Mariano and Raymondi.

Retaining the Webster name might stop arguments and ease hurt feelings.

When the new school opens (hopefully by the fall of 1997), the present Point-Webster complex between Lancaster and Edwards Sts. will become a middle school.

Raymondi and Mariano think naming it Quincy Point Middle School would be appropriate.

Half of the complex used to be Quincy Point Junior High School while the other half was the Webster elementary school.

And, supporting the Quincy Point name is the fact that three of the four present middle schools are named for their locations: Atlantic, Broad Meadows and Central. The fourth is the Reay Sterling which originally was South Junior High School in South Quincy.

And, speaking of locations, the new elementary school will be located at Victory Park off Moody St., a very short distance from the old Pollard School site where an apartment complex now stands.

For sentimental reasons anyone who went to the Pollard and still lives in the area wouldn't mind seeing that name on the new school.

The final decision, as Mariano and Raymondi note, will be up to the School Committee.

Meanwhile, anyone out there have any other name suggestions?

SENATOR Michael Morrissey has a "campaign announcement party" coming up Wednesday, May 29 (7 to 10 p.m.) at the Quincy Sons of Italy Social Center, Quarry St.

There's no suspense about what the announcement will be: he's officially announcing his candidacy for re-election.

Actually, he theoretically is already re-elected. He has no opposition.

But the reason for the fundraising party is that he thought he was going to have an opponent and booked the hall and made all the other arrangements for the event.

Morrissey thought he had an opponent when he got word someone was collecting nomination paper signatures for another Senate candidate in Braintree which is in his district. It turned out those nomination papers were for Robert Delahunt who is challenging Senator Robert Hedlund in Weymouth. That district happens to have three precincts in Braintree.

Seeing he already had the hall booked and all the other arrangements made, Morrissey decided to go ahead with the campaign party.

So, it could be an early start for re-election to the senate in 1998. Or, an early campaign start for a Norfolk County office?

Anyway, tickets are $15 per person or $25 per family and will be available at the door.

DID YOU KNOW Dept.: John Graham, who could show P.T. Barnum a thing or two, is a former minister. His ministry included Quincy's historic First Parish Church. Next time you see him, give him a nice "Hi, Reverend John." (Try to keep a straight face as you say it.)

GRAHAM

COULD BE A new feature act at Quincy's First Night next New Year's Eve: The Pete & Pat Show. (Or, the Pat & Pete Show). Direct from the City Council.

KOLSON

McDERMOTT

That's City Council President Peter Kolson and Ward 3 Councillor Pat McDermott. The pair are talented singers.

"I'm going to ask (Councillor) Mike Cheney if he can use us at First Night this year," says Kolson.

Cheney, of course, heads up the First Night celebration which this year will be the fifth.

"Pat's a great harmonizer," says Kolson. "Who knows, we might be a hit."

As senior in age and City Council service, Kolson thinks the team name should be "Pete & Pat."

"I'll talk to Pat about that," he says.

Who knows, they might be another Hum n' Strum.

THINKING OUT LOUD: Do you think you'll ever hear O.J. say: "No, I can't play golf today. And I can't make that speech next week. I've got to go help find Nicole's murderer."

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS A 1926 POSTCARD view of the gateway marking the foot of the incline of the Granite Railway in West Quincy. The first railway in America, it began operations in 1826. The two granite obelisks with commemorative tablets were erected by the railway company in 1921. At that time a motorized truck, seen at the top of the hill, was used to bring granite down the incline. The original tracks for the old horse drawn cars can be seen to the left of the truck roadbed. The idea of the railway was conceived and carried out by Gridley Bryant to transport the stone for the Bunker Hill monument from the quarry to tidewater at the Neponset River.

Marina Court Would Provide Needed Price Ranged Homes

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

I am a Quincy businessman whose company works with homebuyers on a daily basis and in that regard, I have been following the proposed Marina Court condominium development at Marina Bay.

There is reasonably strong current demand for the type of homes being proposed by Thorndike Development for Marina Bay. It is my belief that there is a lack of availability of homes priced in the $175,000 to $275,000 in this area and that this is an underserved market segment.

The affordability and availability of quality housing is both a national and local issue. It is my fear that many of our children will be unable to afford to purchase their own homes as a result of the combination of higher prices, related down payments and higher interest rates. There is a growing population of empty nesters, young professionals and single persons seeking to acquire homes south of Boston. The Marina Court proposal should be very successful in attracting these types of people to Quincy who will in turn support the economic vibrancy of the city.

Just as important is the value of this type of development to the City of Quincy. The continued successful development of Marina Bay is an important part of the continuing economic progress of the city. A city like Quincy should be doing everything possible to enrich its housing stock by offering both current residents and others a selection of places in which to live.

It should not be necessary for people to go farther south or west to find what they want in a home. Marina Court will take the city a step forward in the process of retaining current residents while attracting new ones.

I believe that the developer of Marina Court has made an accurate assessment of the market. His other developments, Devon Wood in Braintree are evidence of this. I certainly hope that the City of Quincy moves quickly to approve Marina Court.

Opposes Thorndike Project At Marina Bay

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

To any residents of Quincy who may think that the current Thorndike proposal for Marina Bay would be good for our neighborhood and our city, I offer the following facts:

•Thorndike has proposed a 268-unit housing project on a site which will be totally overwhelmed by this density if the required parking is above-ground as per the plan.

•The design is absolutely devoid of any imagination and these generic-type boxes may be OK in California or in Texas, but not on a special site like Marina Bay.

•When the city approved the original master plan for Marina Bay, it demanded two spaces of underground parking per unit, plus a large "public promenade" through the center of the development, from the Seaport building to the Clock Tower.

•Thorndike, who has never built in Quincy, has come to Marina Bay with a project that has street parking and condos built right over the easement which is recorded in the Land Court to forever preserve this walkway for public use.

•There is only one means of egress, and if this project is built, 739 homes would all have their access on Marina Drive, which is not built as a city street, does not have the required sidewalks, and is very unsafe.

•The residents of Marina Bay are not anti-development. We have supported the Kane/Waterworks proposal, the new elder care project, etc. We welcome more housing on this land--and would welcome and support a Thorndike project if the developer would just recognize the potential of this extraordinary site.

•We are demanding that our officials require Thorndike to honor both the parking agreement and the walkway easement, which belongs to the public, not to Mr. Lloyd Geisinger, the developer.

'Thanks' To The Kind People

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

In this era, when it is fashionable to complain that no one cares or goes out of their way to help someone else, I am happy to say that isn't true of the people in Quincy.

On May 11 at the Quincy Center MBTA Station, my husband Leo collapsed suddenly, having serious difficulty breathing. I was distraught. Without hesitation passers-by came to assist; Transit and Quincy Police responded immediately.

The ambulance crew was quick, caring and competent. As well, the staff at Quincy Hospital's emergency room were phenomenal. Our heartfelt thanks to all who acted so selflessly.

Thanks to such genuine concern, a situation that easily could have ended quite differently has turned out well. He's recuperating under the care of warm and dedicated health professionals at Quincy Hospital. We have one more wonderful reason why we wouldn't live anywhere else!

Words can't say this adequately, but "thanks" to the kind people of Quincy!

Seafood Vegetarian

I invited daughter Ann Marie and her husband Dave over for dinner one night (one of her few nights off) and made a combination entree consisting of vegetables and seafood. It was such a success that she made it the following week for her family.

Seafood Vegetarian

- 1 pound scallops
- 8 or 10 shrimp (cleaned and deveined)
- 1 pound of haddock, cod or scrod (cut in pieces about 2 inches in diameter)
- 1 large red pepper
- 1 large green pepper
- 1 medium sized zucchini
- 2 or 3 cups tomato sauce

- 2 cloves of garlic (chopped)
- 1/2 medium onion (chopped)
- olive oil (brush it on)
- salt and pepper to taste

In a deep frying pan, brush the oil and add the garlic and onion and a little water.

Saute for a couple of minutes and then add the cut up peppers and sliced zucchini and cook covered for about five minutes. Add the tomato sauce, cover and cook until vegetables are tender.

Lower the heat and add all of the seafood on top and steam altogether covered until the fish is done. It can be put over rice or noodles with a little grated cheese.

Quincy College Has Weekly Program On WJDA

The Quincy College Public Affairs Office has begun broadcasting a local radio program for the South Shore on Quincy Station WJDA.

The Quincy College Radio Magazine Show airs each Saturday from noon to 1 p.m. on WJDA-AM 1300 and is hosted by Sean Barry, the college's director of public affairs. Future programs will feature segments produced and written by communications students at the college.

"This is a partnership between WJDA and Quincy College," Barry said. "Like many area businesses, WJDA wants to work more closely with out students and will help us meet our mission as a community college."

Barry said the combined credibility of the nearly 40 year old college and the "radio station of record for the South Shore" meant that a powerful source of information and education could be created. "We now may reach another niche in the region."

The initial program featured International Student Admissions expert Lisa Alkhudr from Quincy College. Alkhudr explained how students from all over the world learn about the college and apply for admission. Kenya, Nepal and Japan lead the long list of nations sending students to Quincy College. Alkhudr said. Most students learn of Quincy College by word of mouth and begin the process of applying to the American Embassy for proper paperwork long before arriving in Massachusetts. A larger percentage of International Students attend Quincy College than most community colleges nationwide.

"Affordability and proximity to Boston are major factors in international students applying to Quincy College," Alkhudr said.

The second segment featured Eileen Mawn, Director of Career Services at Quincy College. Mawn spoke of the newly established Career Center at Quincy College. An on-line job database, resume workshop and career seminars are planned for the coming weeks. Mawn said the College has adapted resources for the job trend of the nineties--more computer oriented and service-industry jobs.

"I feel strongly that if you work with computers or direct-contact with people, you can count on plenty of jobs for the next decade," Mawn said.

According to government statistics, people may expect to change jobs a minimum of seven times with three major career changes.

Council Examines New System Of Purchasing City Truck, Auto Parts

By MICHAEL WHALEN

Is the city getting the best deal possible for the purchase of truck and auto parts by switching to the state purchasing agent's low bidder?

That's a question the City Council is trying to answer. The council's Oversight Committee listened to proponents and opponents of the idea at its meeting Monday night.

Councillor Paul Harold, chairman of the Oversight Committee, called the meeting to receive an explanation from Purchasing Agent Alfred Grazioso on why the city suddenly decided to switch to Lappen Auto Parts, the state's low bidder, for the purchase of parts earlier this year. Harold has voiced concerns that although the city is saving money by doing so, the state's standards for parts may be lower than that traditionally set by the city.

Grazioso assured Harold that the state's standards for auto and truck parts are second to none.

"The state uses the highest standards possible," he said. "If they don't, they'll lose credibility."

Grazioso added that he has received "positive feedback" on the issue from representatives from the police, public works, and other city departments who have expressed satisfaction with the billing process for the state system. He also passed out a breakdown of prices on a number of different parts that have been offered by Lappen and three competitors--Johnson Motor Parts, General Auto Supply and Bob's Speed and Auto Parts--which showed that the prices offered by Lappen were considerably lower.

Councillor Michael Cheney spoke in favor of using the state system, noting that in a number of instances, Lappen offered the same exact part to the city at a significantly lower price.

"We're comparing apples to apples," he said.

Also speaking on behalf of the change was Ed Lappen of Lappen Auto Parts.

"We're prepared to sell any brand of auto part at that price level if the city's not satisfied with the parts we sell them," he said.

But representatives from Johnson Motor Parts and General Auto Supply had different feelings on the matter.

Donald Payne of General Auto Supply said other parts suppliers should not be "penalized" because they did not participate in the state bid. "I just don't see the logic in not getting the other vendors in the city involved," he said. "Let's make sure everyone is on the same playing field."

Payne said he felt "targeted" because he was not allowed to participate in the process. But Councillor Timothy Cahill noted that the main reason for the switch was an across-the-board, 6 percent budget cut for all city departments requested last year by the council in an effort to keep property taxes down.

"There was no targeting involved," said Cahill.

Grazioso, who noted that he decided to go with the state's low bidder without putting out a city bid because "it was the quickest, most efficient way of doing it," said any company that is concerned about the way the city handled the situation is welcome to participate in the state bid.

Harold, however, disagreed, saying smaller companies are not allowed to participate in the process.

Jim Triglia of Johnson Motor Parts said that a bid price offered by Lappen Auto Parts should not be compared with an everyday price his company has offered in the past.

"If I had known this was a bidding situation, it (the price) might have been different," he said.

Representatives from both Johnson and General Auto suggested that it may not be possible to sell parts of true quality for the prices offered by Lappen. Lappen representatives, however, stood by the integrity of their family business, which has been in operation since 1928.

Harold said he also feels putting an everyday price against a bidding situation price is not comparing "apples to apples." Cheney, however, disagreed.

Grazioso said the city is not tied to the state bid and can put out its own bid at any time if unsatisfied with Lappen Auto Parts.

The council agreed to take up the matter at a future meeting.

BFI To Receive New 7-Year, $27.M Contract

Three other companies responded to the city's request for proposals on the rubbish and recycling contract. Each, however, had a higher price than the $27,643,469 being paid to BFI: USA Waste, $30,276,410; Waste Management, $27,678,014 and Laidlaw, $27,652,787.

Colton said three other companies bid on the recycling contract but not the rubbish collection.

The commissioner added that he discussed the new contract with City Council President Peter Kolson and Ward 6 Councillor Bruce Ayers, chairman of the council's on Monday. He planned to discuss the matter with Councillor Michael Cheney, chairman of the council's Finance Committee, late Tuesday afternoon.

Kolson said he was pleased with the new contract.

"It has all the things we were looking for in it," he said. "It's a good deal. Having reviewed all the figures, I think we have a good solid package."

REAL ESTATE MARKET

South Shore Real Estate Market Alive And Well

By MARY DAWSON

The South Shore real estate market is alive and well and the best-kept secret for affordable home buying in Eastern Massachusetts.

Several of the communities that we serve have many first-time buyer programs that create good activity for the lowest price properties. From there, our easy access to Boston and the Route 95 belt keep the sellers, for the most part, in our local area and they then purchase more expensive properties. We have many third and fourth-time home buyers still within our Braintree, Weymouth and Hull areas.

Our market area has changed and broadened but I will keep the focus of our statistics on the above-mentioned towns. We currently have Multiple Listing members in cities and towns ranging from Dorchester and South Boston to Sandwich on Cape Cod and as far inland as the Bridgewater.

In January there were 465 single-family homes listed yet by February only 123. The condominium listings were 264 in January and 55 in February. Multi-family homes show 71 on the market in January and 68 in February. This makes the market very interesting with fewer listings for the buyers to choose from.

Even with the snowy conditions, our activity was good and many of our members were surprised and pleased at the results.

January sales totaled 81 and February had 60 in all. The total dollar volume $12,335,775 and $7,823,247 helped keep the average selling price on target with 1995. If anything, the prices for condos and single-family residences are rising. If you total both months, the average selling price of a single is $158,000, a multi-family $164,000 and a condominium $83,000. These are very attractive values for our four communities.

If I were to cite one issue of increased buying pressure in our communities, it would be the advent of Title 5. Most of our property is connected to municipal sewer systems and since many of the homes south and west of ours are not, this increased the activity in our area.

Several years ago, the reverse had happened when the MWRA fees skyrocketed. Many of our prospective buyers headed to the south to escape what they considered unreasonable costs for the cleanup of the Massachusetts Bay.

Our pending sales statistics are continuing to show favorably for Spring '96. Over 165 properties are under agreement and the daily March numbers are keeping pace with, and in some areas are ahead of, January and February.

Commercial properties are not a large factor in our Multiple Listing Service. Twenty-five listings were available in January and 22 in February. Sales totaled three in this time. The average price was $184,000. We encourage our members to enter all of their listings into our service and it appears that our base of information for cooperation in selling business properties is increasing.

As interesting as these general statistics are, I have several other ways that we have taken the information of our service and broken it down. In Quincy last year, a three-bedroom, one-bath home sale averaged $130,000 while a four-bedroom, 2 1/2-bath home averaged $213,000.

During most of 1995 and continuing into 1996, Braintree has shown a remarkable ability to provide many more buyers than sellers in the housing range of $120,000 to $200,000. Conversations with Realtors in that town speak of multiple offers and homes listed and sold just days on the market.

In Quincy right now, even condominiums listed close to current values are receiving multiple offers. Some Weymouth condos are in that same type of market.

Our geographic location brings a myriad of customers to our doors. We have city people looking for the little tract of land to mow the grass and invite their friends over for a cookout and the close-to-retirement singles and couples looking to shorten their commute or trade down from the four-bedroom colonial to the easy care condo.

Many new developments of condos were built in the 1980s in our towns. This really increased the amount of inventory available for purchase.

As I look around our area, the replacement of an older single family on a large lot with a dozen town homes or of a former school or factory with hundreds of single units, it is thrilling to know that we have opportunities for sales we did not have prior to these changes. When I started in real estate in the late 1970s, our MLS books were less than 40 pages. Now the books are as fat as encyclopedias and the computers spew out listing sheets quicker and more completely and more of them than ever before.

Our communities maintain stability due to governing bodies that respond well to the fiscal needs of each. Services are available to meet the needs of all citizens. The schools, both public and private, are highly rated. Police and fire departments are trained and professional. There are two hospitals, one in Quincy and one in Weymouth, that serve most needs from emergency care to obstetrics and geriatrics.

Transportation is a mixed bag. The Red Line serves Quincy and Braintree. Buses are available in Hull and Weymouth. The proposed commuter line will have some effect. The vote is still out on whether it will be positive or negative. Route 3 with its "zipper lane" for high traffic times is overused as well as Routes 53 and 3A.

If one is to find fault with our area, this is where it would be. This is probably the most important factor in limiting interest to someone relocating from outside the state. They will most often look west, then north, and only come south if affordability is the most important issue.

Born and raised in Milton, Quincy has now been my home for almost 40 years. I love it and intend to stay.

(Mary Dawson is president of the South Shore Association of Realtors, located at 10 Crescent St., Quincy.)

DeWolfe Donates Over 1,000 Books To Children's Home

Needy children throughout New England will soon benefit from DeWolfe New England's donation of more than 1,000 books to the company's charity of record, New England Home for Little Wanderers.

DeWolfe, the region's leader in homeownership services, collected an assortment of publications for the New England Home's main library and has embarked on an ongoing book drive that will stock bookshelves in all New England Home residences throughout New England.

Patsy Jones, director of management training for DeWolfe New England, organized this month's impromptu book drive to satisfy the charity's immediate need for diversified reading materials. Jones appealed to DeWolfe's 60-plus sales centers in Massachusetts, New Hampshire and Connecticut for literary donations, and boxes of books were picked up by a New England Home representative less than four weeks after DeWolfe's book collection began.

"The success of our recent book drive indicates the genuine interest and compassion that our organization has for the New England Home for Little Wanderers," Dick DeWolfe said. "With corporate donations, individual contributions, fundraising efforts and awareness campaigns scheduled all year long, 1996 promises to be a mutually rewarding year for DeWolfe and the New England Home."

DeWolfe New England welcomes book donations on behalf of New England for Little Wanderers, and encourages families to drop off books at their local DeWolfe office.

DeWolfe New England offers homebuying, home-selling, homefinancing and relocation services. The DeWolfe company is the nation's only publicly-held residential real estate company AMEX-DWL.

If you are thinking of buying or selling and realize how important it is to be represented by a professional firm in today's complex market, call Brian Fahey, manager of the Quincy office at 471-0005.

Councillors Voice Frustration

No Action Taken On Planned Hospital Pact

The City Council held a third session on the proposed affiliation between Quincy Hospital and Carney Hospital in Dorchester but took no action on the matter Monday night.

Council President Peter Kolson and other councillors expressed frustration over the lack of progress in the matter. Councillors said negotiations between city and hospital officials and a coalition of labor unions are taking too long to iron out their differences.

Three union representatives voiced opposition to the affiliation Monday night. They voiced frustration that all of their concerns have not been addressed, most notably a guarantee that their will be no layoffs as a result of the affiliation and that Carney will not hire consultants to destroy unions at the hospital.

City Solicitor Stephen McGrath, however, told the council that negotiations were 80 to 90 percent complete.

Still, the council voted 7-2 on an amendment to the home-rule petition that would make the affiliation possible introduced by Ward 2 Councillor Daniel Raymond for the creation of a section in the legislation that would require the hospital and union to submit to independent arbitration if an agreement cannot be reached.

Kolson and Councillor Timothy Cahill voted against the amendment. Cahill said he does not want the council to interfere with the collective bargaining process, but reserved the right to agree to such language if he believes it is necessary in the petition's final draft.

The affiliation plan calls for the creation of a non-profit parent company called the Blue Hills Systems Corp. that would oversee major operations of both hospitals. The hospitals would maintain separate boards of directors and presidents to manage day-to-day operations, and Quincy Hospital would become a new non-profit corporation called Quincy Hospital Corp.

McGrath said the city has changed a portion of the agreement that would have allowed Blue Hills to sell or privatize Quincy Hospital with little or no public say. Another section, he noted, is being added that would spell out the hospital's "public mission," assuring the continuation of core services.

The council is hoping to approve the home-rule petition and send it to the state Legislature as soon as possible so that the latter may approve it before the end of its session July 31.

The petition is needed because Quincy Hospital is a city-owned entity. Carney is owned by the Daughters of Charity, an order of Catholic nuns.

Councillors have voiced frustration that Carney has refused to release a draft of the proposed affiliation agreement. Carney officials, however, have said they cannot do so until Cardinal Bernard Law approves it.

City To Receive $1.27M For 17 New Police Officers

Congressman Gerry Studds has announced that the City of Quincy and six other South Shore communities will receive a total of over $3.2 million in federal matching funds to put new police officers on the beat.

The two largest grants will go to Quincy, which will receive a $1,275,000 grant to hire 17 new police officers, and the Town of Plymouth, which will receive $1,125,000 for 15 officers. The two grants were among the largest in the state.

Grants were also awarded to Weymouth ($150,000 for two officers), Hull ($150,000 for two officers), Mashpee ($215,857 for three officers), Rockland ($225,000 for three officers) and Scituate ($75,000 for one officer).

The grants, which are awarded by the Office of Community-Oriented Policing Services at the Department of Justice, provide up to 75 percent of the salary and benefits for each officer over three years, up to a maximum of $75,000 per officer, with the remainder to be paid by state or local funds.

"This is terrific news for the entire South Shore community," said Studds. "These grants will give our police chiefs the resources they need to put more officers where they can do the most good."

The six grants are among 98 awarded statewide totaling $23.6 million.

Chimney Safety Tips

Storks nesting in chimneys were once believed to bring good luck, according to European folklore.

In fact, nests in chimneys or blockages of any kind are nothing short of bad news. They can cause smoking problems, chimney fires and carbon monoxide poisoning.

In 1993, there were 39,500 residential fires in the United States originating in chimneys, fireplaces and solid fuel appliances, according to the U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission. These fires resulted in 310 personal injuries, 150 deaths and $192.3 million in property damage.

Virtually all of these fires were preventable, according to the Chimney Safety Institute of America (CSIA), a non-profit foundation dedicated to public and chimney professional education. Both CSIA and the National Fire Protection Association recommend yearly chimney inspections to help prevent these hazards.

Many American homeowners think their chimneys only need to be cleaned and inspected if they burn wood in their fireplaces or wood stoves. But almost all heating appliances, whether they burn gas, oil, wood or coal, rely on the chimney to safely carry toxic gases produced by the heating system of the house.

A carbon monoxide detector can warn homeowners of potential poisoning after the deadly gas has already entered the living area, but an annual chimney check can help prevent carbon monoxide from entering the home in the first place.

Each spring, homeowners shift into home improvement mode. They clean basements and garages, paint and repair gutters and downspouts, and even inspect roofs for damage. But they usually don't inspect, repair or clean their chimneys, despite the potential for damage to their property or even to their lives.

An annual chimney check by a CSIA Certified Chimney Sweep usually costs less than $100 and can deter the danger of fire or carbon monoxide poisoning. CSIA Certified Chimney Sweeps have earned the industry's most respected credential by passing a written examination based on fire codes, clearances and standards for the construction and maintenance of chimneys and venting systems.

In fact, when chimney fires occur, many insurance investigators rely on CSIA Certified Chimney Sweeps to determine whether a fire originated in, or damaged, the chimney system.

CSIA, established in 1983, is dedicated to the elimination of residential chimney fires, carbon monoxide intrusion in homes and other chimney-related hazards that result in the loss of lives and property.

For more information on chimney safety or a list of CSIA Chimney Sweeps, write to CSIA, 16031 Industrial Drive, Suite 8, Gaithersburg, MD 20877 or call (800) 536-0118.

Electric Cooktops, Ovens Make Cooking More Enjoyable, Energy Efficient

The new electric cooktops and ovens will make your cooking chores more enjoyable.

Many also use electricity efficiently, and that can help you lower your electric bill. Using less electricity to do the same work also helps to delay the need for new power plants, which protects the environment and preserves natural resources.

"The cooktop choices available to home owners used to be either a gas burner, or an electric one with the familiar coil-type resistance elements," said Tom Farkas, residential programs manager at the Edison Electric Institute, the association of shareholder-owned electric utilities.

Today, you have a variety of electric cooktop options to choose from:

• The traditional Coil Cooktop, ideal as a basic cooktop for modest budgets and everyday cooking tasks. New thermostatic controls can cycle the coils on-and-off to maintain a preset temperature.

• Solid-Disk Cooktops use disks of cast iron. In addition to thermostatic controls, thermal protectors, or limiters, are available to cut off or reduce current flow to the element if a pot boils dry. The disks are sealed to the cooktop surface for easy cooktop cleaning.

• Glass-Ceramic Cooktops enable a pan to sit right on top of a smooth glass-ceramic cooking surface. Spills wipe up easily. Designs on the cooktop show the heating areas. Glass-ceramic cooktops include thermostatic controls and thermal limiters as options. Some come with halogen cooking elements that offer instant-on and -off speed.

• Induction Cooktops are the ultimate in cooktops. Every other cooktop must first create heat, and then transfer this heat to the food through a pot or pan. Induction cooktops cause the pan to be both the heating element and the cooking surface. This cooktop cooks with a cool surface. Induction cooktops feature instantaneous response, precise temperature control, and easy cleaning.

"Electric ovens have become more modern and energy efficient too," said Farkas. "The old standby, a radiant oven, has an element in the bottom of the oven. Heat rises from the element and the food is cooked. To improve upon this method of heating, manufacturers have added a fan to evenly circulate the hot air around the oven."

Convection ovens cook uncovered food about 25 to 30 percent faster and produce roasts that are more tender and juicy. This oven also eliminates the need to baste foods, and now you can cook on all the oven racks without worry, if one rack cooks faster than another. Combination radiant/convection ovens combine the best of both ovens.

The microwave oven is by now familiar to almost all American home owners. Besides its speed, this oven uses up to 90 percent less energy than a gas oven. Some microwave ovens include a broiling element to brown food.

If you cannot decided which oven is best, you can choose one that combines all three cooking modes: radiant, convection, and microwave. This oven is more expensive than a standard one, but it is now available. Ask your favorite appliance dealer.

For more facts on using your electric kitchen--as well as all your large electric appliances--more efficiently, call your electric utility's residential marketing department.

LAWN AND GARDEN

Put 'Good Bugs' To Work

News USA

(NU) - When it's time to fight the insects in your garden, who are you gonna call?

How about some "good" bugs?

Bug-fighting bugs are a natural and time-tested way to control unwanted insects in your garden. Whether it's potato worms or aphids, fire ants or whiteflies, Mother Nature has given garden pests some natural enemies of their own.

Tiny wasps no bigger than the dot on this "I" have been recruited to protect cotton crops in Texas and apples in Washington state. Now, beneficial insects are becoming more readily available as handy weapons for the home gardener.

"People are interested in trying to do something to control their environment in a safer way," says Bruce Butterfield, research director for the National Gardening Association. "People may feel there's not a whole lot they can do about acid rain and pollution on a global level, but they can do something in their own back yard."

Gardening help from "good bugs" is just a phone call away.

A four-color brochure available from Farnam Equipment Co. (800) 267-5211 features a variety of helpful insects, ranging from the ladybird beetle — the most common of all beneficial insects — to the praying mantis and other specialized predators. The brochure is also packed with helpful consumer tips for using "good bugs."

Here are some helpful hints for using insect-fighters in your garden:

- Be sure you know who you're fighting — accurately identify the critters you're trying to control. A magnifying glass and a book with photos of common garden pests can be helpful.

- When buying insects by mail-order, carefully follow all of the care instructions when the package arrives.

- Welcome beneficial insects into your garden with adequate moisture and food. Sprinkle the garden area regularly or set out small containers of water to help provide moisture.

- Use "good" insects in conjunction with other earth-friendly gardening techniques, such as hand-picking, trapping and companion planting. Keep your garden free of trash, fallen fruit or other garden debris.

- Don't make the bugs' job any harder than necessary. If you're using more than one type of beneficial insect, make sure they're compatible — the praying mantis will eat ladybugs along with "bad" bugs. And don't spray or dust with pesticides shortly before or after a release.

Be patient. Give the "good bugs" time to do their jobs. It may be two-to-five weeks before you see results.

Be 'EarthWise'

About Lawn Gear

(NU) - Air pollution comes from many sources. One of the smallest is exhaust and fuel emissions from gasoline-powered engines — the kind used in lawnmowers, riding tractors, string trimmers, tillers, and other types of outdoor power equipment. Another contributor is fuel spillage and evaporation.

Today the industry is doing its part to reduce air pollution by manufacturing new generations of outdoor power equipment that operate with low-emission engines and cordless electric power.

You too can do your part by being "EarthWise" when using outdoor power equipment.

For more information and a free guide on Environmentally Helpful Outdoor Power Equipment, write the Outdoor Power Equipment Institute, 341 South Patrick Street, Old Town Alexandria, VA 22314 or contact OPEI via the Internet at <http://opei.mow.org>

Girls' Track

Bows To B-R, Dominates Quincy North Quincy Wraps Up Season With 4-4 Record

North Quincy girls' track finished up with a 4-4 dual meet record losing to Bridgewater-Raynham 77-54 and beating cross-town rival Quincy 93-33.

In North's loss to B-R, the Raiders continued to dominate the field events, but lack of distance power led to their ultimate demise. North swept the triple jump, discus and shotput.

Against Quincy, North won all but four events, sweeping three (high jump, triple jump and shotput) and going 1-2 in five others. Both squads were missing key performers most notably Jen Pineo (back injury) for North and Quincy's Erin Barry (illness). Highlight of the meet was Nicole Bertone's league-leading javelin throw of 101'11", Sarah Beston's 33'21/2" leap in the triple jump and Jarmin Gonzalez' 27.2 victory in the 200.

SIGNS THAT ALIGNMENT IS NEEDED

The most common sign that indicates that your car is in need of wheel alignment is that it drifts or pulls to one side on a straight stretch of road. Other telltale signs include looseness in the steering wheel, a steering wheel that is off-center when the front wheels are straight, a sensation that the car is wandering over the road, and hard steering. The experience of any of these unusual sensations in the steering wheel should prompt a wheel alignment, which need not otherwise be done periodically without cause. Another good reason to suspect a wheel alignment problem is abnormal tire wear. Vibration felt in the steering wheel, floor, or seat of the car may also be symptomatic of misalignment, but the cause of these problems is usually unbalanced wheel/tire assemblies. It may also be that tire inflation is incorrect, the lug nuts are loose, or the tires are out of round.

HINT: Abnormal tire wear due to misalignment includes more wear on one side of the tire than the other and cupping over the face of the tire.

LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO is very proud of our ASE certified technicians and of the equipment they have on hand to properly service every system of your car, including the steering and suspension systems. So, whether your car is due to have a front end alignment or in need of some major repairs, see us first. We are located at 258 Quincy Ave., E. Braintree (843-1550). We are your local source for propane for grills, motor homes and converted vehicles. "A Place Where Your Car Can Live Longer." Sunoco and most major credit cards honored. Open: Mon-Fri 6am-9pm, Sat 7am-9pm, Sun 9am-5pm. Remember those who gave their lives for our freedom this Memorial Day!

Dominique Good Leader Of Thayer Girls Basketball

The Thayer Academy girls basketball team, one of only two undefeated high school basketball programs in the state this spring, was led by Dominique Good of Quincy.

Good, a graduate of Central Middle School, played in the intramural system coached by Brian Buckley, former head basketball coach of Boston College High School.

At Thayer, Good is a two-year starter as a sophomore. "Dominique is our floor leader and she has tremendous poise for a 15-year old," said her coach Karen Jodoin. "I expect continued improvement and success for her."

"In the academic arena, Dom's basketball skills have already broadened her college options. To date she has received over 60 college letters of inquiry. This is the true emphasis at Thayer, use your athletics to benefit your academics," Jodoin said.

As a freshman, good averaged 7.9 points and 9.6 assists per game. She received the "Coaches Award" for outstanding play and was named the MVP of the Rivers School

During her sophomore year, good increased her average points per game to 9.6 and set and ISL record for assists per game at 12.9. She was named an ISL and NEPSAC All-Star and her team won the ISL championship and the New England Prep School championship with a 20-0 record.

Good plays AAU basketball in the off season. Most recently her team, the BayState Magic Black coached by Bernie Hamill, qualified for the nationals. She will spend two weeks in July in Nashville, Tennessee representing Massachusetts and vying for the national AAU championship.

Phil McGillicuddy was the team's second leading scorer averaging 9 points a game despite playing with a heel injury. McGillicuddy led the MBA in scoring twice, hitting for 10 in the second victory over the Lobos while netting 13 in the team's 52-49 loss in the semi-finals versus the Brockton Cobras.

Pat Bregoli averaged 6.2 points a game from his point guard position, fourth highest on the team. Bregoli had a good tournament at the free-throw line nailing 9 of 11 attempts. His high game of 8 came in the team's semi-final loss to the Cobras.

North Freshman Drop Two

North Quincy's freshman baseball team recently dropped two games to Barnstable, losing at home 26-4 and at Barnstable, 10-9.

A disappointed showing marked the home loss to Barnstable with only a few bright spots for North. After being no-hit for three innings by fireballing Shawn Kingham, Paul Markarian put the Red Raiders on the board with a three-run triple, scoring Mike Regan, Steve Ryan (single) and Kevin Walsh. Jamie Grossi's seventh inning double plated Markarian for North's fourth run. Brian Doyle made his first appearance on the mound for North and looked good, striking out three in two innings of work.

North then traveled to the Cape and after failing behind 9-0 early, bound back to play a solid five innings of baseball. Consecutive walks to Brain Radell, Chris Carthas, Matt Nelson and Steve Ryan forced in a run. Chad Fitzpatrick lined a single of the pitcher for an RBI and Gross walked to force in a run. Markarian then ripped a single to right center for two runs as North climbed to 9-6.

Corey Awed, who had two hits, led the sixth with a single. Robbie Bell and Radell walked to load the bases. Carthas grounded out, scoring Awed. Eric Leung, Ryan and Fitzpatrick walked forcing in two more runs. Tied at 9 in the seventh, North loaded the bases as Doyle walked, Markarian singled and Walsh walked. and improvements to Point-Webster as well as the Atlantic, Central, and Sterling middle schools will eliminate overcrowding at that school level, Sheets said.

Sheets said the needs at Quincy High School, North Quincy High School, and the Quincy Center for Technical Education (CTE) are not as great as at the lower school levels, but some improvement can be made in those schools as well. A new heating system is planned for Quincy High and the CTE, he noted, and the city will "take a look at North Quincy" to see what can be done there.

When Sheets was told he sounds like a man eyeing at least two more terms as mayor in order to achieve his goals, he was noncommittal.

"I'd rather not comment on that," he said with a smile. "But one might infer that from what I've said."

A Thought For The Week

This Memorial Day our American Flag will be flying in memory of all who served in their country's time of need...

SCOTT DEWARE

"I AM OLD GLORY... For over 200 years I have been the banner of hope and freedom for generation after generation of Americans. Born amid the first flames of America's fight for freedom. I am the symbol of a country that has grown from a little group of thirteen colonies to a nation of fifty sovereign states. Planted firmly on the high pinnacle of American faith. My gently fluttering folds have proved an inspiration to untold millions. They have looked upon me as a symbol of national unity. They have prayed that they and their fellow citizens might continue to enjoy life, liberty and pursuit of happiness, which have been granted to every American as the heritage of free men. So long as men love liberty more than life itself; so long as they treasure the priceless privileges bought with the blood of our forefathers; so long as the principles of truth, justice and charity for all remain deeply rooted in human hearts, I shall continue to be the enduring banner of the United States of America."...

Memorial Day Keynote Speaker

Teague: 'We Must Keep Our Guard Up'

Rep. Edward Teague of Yarmouth, minority leader of the Massachusetts House of Representatives, told those attending the city's Memorial Day ceremonies Monday "we must keep our guard up and our forces strong" in order to preserve peace and liberty in the future.

Teague was keynote speaker during the event at the World War II podium in Mt. Wollaston Cemetery. The ceremonies followed the annual Memorial Day Parade which ended at the cemetery following a procession from School St.

Following is the text from Teague's speech:

"Memorial Day for most of us has become a time of leisure and relaxation. A day off from work. A day to spend with our families. It has become the traditional start of the summer vacation season, and many of us are thinking ahead to long summer days at the seashore or the lake.

"But we must never forget the real reason behind Memorial Day. It is the day reserved for remembering those who have made the ultimate sacrifice. Those who gave their lives for their country.

"The first national Memorial Day was observed in 1868. At the National Cemetery in Arlington, Va., Gens. Ulysses S. Grant and James A. Garfield presided over ceremonies marking the gravesites of 15,000 dead from the recently-ended Civil War. General Garfield noted, 'For love of country they accepted death, and made immortal their patriotism and virtue.'

Over 300 Sign Petition To Be Submitted To City Council

Site Plan Review Sparks Opposition From Small Business

By MICHAEL WHALEN

More than 300 small business representatives and residents have signed a petition in opposition to a proposal for a new site plan review ordinance currently pending before the City Council.

The council will hold a public hearing on the matter Monday, June 3 at 6:30 p.m. in the Council Chambers at City Hall at which time the council will be presented with the petition. The Quincy Planning Board already has held a hearing on the matter.

The opposition is being led by a group of local business owners including Jack McDonald of the Common Market Restaurant, Bob Curry of Curry Hardware, Bob Pacino of Bob's Speed and Auto Parts, Ed Keohane of Keohane Funeral Homes, Jacques Dunne of Fore River Motors and Dan Flynn of Daniel J. Flynn & Co.

McDonald said the proposal by Ward 2 Councillor Daniel Raymond will discourage new businesses from moving to the city. The ordinance would require businesses constructing a new building or an addition of 5,000 square feet or more to seek a special permit from the Quincy Planning Board.

McDonald said such an ordinance, in effect, also will make owners of family businesses and other small stores hesitant to expand because of additional expenditures for traffic studies, engineering, mailings and more that would make the overall cost of such projects rise 15 to 20 percent.

"It sends a very negative message, so businesses can't really grow," he said.

McDonald's son Greg agreed, saying there are already existing laws that allow city boards to place controls on such projects.

"A lot of the rules and regulations are in place right now," he said. "There's ordinances in place that can address this issue."

Flynn, president of the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association, voiced similar sentiments.

"With the current zoning by-laws and the licensing requirements and the ZBA (Zoning Board of Appeals) requirements already in place, the entire (site plan review) process will create another level of bureaucracy that's just not necessary," said Flynn. "It will absolutely strangle small businesses in the City of Quincy. People won't want to do business in Quincy."

Jack McDonald added that city department heads who become involved with such projects--such as Building Inspector Matthias Mulvey and Traffic Engineer Jack Gillon--all do "a very good job." Department heads he surveyed on the matter expressed opposition, he said.

The elder McDonald also said that while (Cont'd on Page 23)

Marina Bay 'Tavern' Gets Temporary Permit

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO

After more than three hours in suspense, Ed Kane sitting nervously beside his attorney Robert Fleming, received a temporary occupancy permit to open Ocean Terrace/The Tavern at Marina Bay.

On a 4-1 vote at Tuesday's Quincy License Board meeting, he was given the permit pending that all boats be removed by June 7 to allow construction of a parking lot. If that is not done, the license will be revoked..

A motion by board member and Building Inspector, Matt Mulvey not to allow the opening until all parking lots were completed failed to receive a second.

After that, Fire Chief Thomas Gorman made the motion for a temporary occupancy permit which was seconded by Health Commissioner Jane Gallahue. Mulvey voted against it.

George O'Malley, part owner of Marina Bay Coastal Partners promised that all boats would be removed by June 7. If they are not, board members said the license to operate will be revoked.

The board also voted to remain with the original restrictions and allow music taped or live to remain until 11 p.m. It was thought the hours would be rolled back to 10 p.m.

Looking over a crowd of Kane supporters mostly employees of his, a frustrated City Clerk Joseph Shea, the board chairman, said it looked like a "continuing saga" of Marina Bay and that it had "a life of its own." He said "I'd like to end this," added even the presence of Kane's employees "can't make the board see this." There have been six unprecedented meetings pertaining to Ed Kane and Marina Bay.

Atty. Robert Fleming, representing Kane said he was "frustrated" and told the board they could not "change the hours of operation." He added he was "opposed to any roll back of music hours."

Jack Bradley, a Marina Bay resident called the repeated meetings with Kane like an "old movie" and said the license board was "losing its credibility as this masquerade continues."

Bradley said his deck is 50 feet from Ocean Terrace and he is opposed to the 11 p.m. music.

Because the meeting lasted so long, a five-minute recess which lasted 15 minutes was called while awaiting for board member Police Chief Francis Mullen to arrive.

After that a long discussion ensued over the parking problems which frustrated the owner of Siro's, Christie Hendriksen, prompting her to say that because of restricted parking some of her 67 employees did not have a place to park when they came to work.

If State Grant Received For Addition

Sheets Pledges $6-7 Million For Library

By MICHAEL WHALEN

Mayor James Sheets said he plans to send a bond issue totaling between $6 million and $7 million to the City Council next year to help fund a proposed addition to the Thomas Crane Public Library.

Sheets made his comments Tuesday when asked about the proposed $10.7 million project. He said if the library receives an anticipated grant in September from the state Board of Library Commissioners—which would pay for 33 percent of the project costs or about $3.5 million—and raises another $1 million through various auctions and other special events, the city will fund the balance.

"I'll be sending a bond down to the City Council for the balance of that sometime in 1997," said the mayor. "As long as the balance is in the $6 million to $7 million range, we'll work that out."

"There's no question the library is the cultural and educational center of every city, and since we've spent money to improve our schools, it just makes sense to bring the library into the 21st century along with everything else."

Sheets recently included $125,000 to pay for architectural work done by Childs, Bertman, Tsekare of Boston in a bond package for various city improvements approved this month by the City Council.

Library Director Ann McLaughlin said she is pleased with the mayor's support and added that the library has "a good shot" at receiving the grant from the Board of Library Commissioners later this year. Although Quincy was among the communities that did not receive such a grant last year, McLaughlin has reevaluated with revised plans that she said are more in line with what the board requires.

"I'm very excited about this," she said.

Regarding the fundraising drive, McLaughlin said the library has raised about $58,000 and will continue to hold a series of special events in an attempt to obtain more contributions.

The project to be constructed on the 45,000-square-foot plot calls for a 35,000-square-foot addition and about 80 parking spaces. Among some of the highlights will be a Children's Room three times the size of the existing one, a Video Room, and an increased number of computers.

which was designed by Childs, Bertman, Tsekare of Boston--can begin in June 1997 and be completed 18 to 24 months after that.

McLaughlin said if everything works out, the city will select a construction firm to begin work in June 1997. The construction would take between 18 and 24 months to complete, she added.

The Quincy Planning Board was scheduled to hold a public hearing on the project last night (Wednesday) at 7:30 p.m. in the City Council Chambers at City Hall, 1305 Hancock St., Quincy Center.

Following the hearing, the board was to discuss the hearing as well as any other business before it.

On Wednesday, June 5 at 7 p.m., the City Council will hold a public hearing on the matter in the Council Chambers. The council has the final on the matter.

Two Broad Meadows Students Testify At Congressional Forum

Two students from Broad Meadows Middle School were among those who testified at a forum hosted last week by U.S. Rep. Joseph Kennedy and attended by members of the Congressional Human Rights Caucus.

Amanda Loos and Amy Papile, both 14, expressed sentiments similar to others who spoke at the forum: international exploitation of children is widespread and efforts to expose and stop it must be stepped up.

The two girls were inspired to work against child exploitation after meeting Iqbal Masih, a Pakistani youth who became an activist for the same cause after spending time as a slave in a rug factory, in December 1994. Iqbal, 12, was murdered early last year in Pakistan in what was believed to be an attempt to quiet his activism.

"When he sat down in my classroom," Amanda testified, "his feet did not touch the floor. He was so tiny because he suffered from malnutrition. Iqbal told us of being beaten, being tortured, sometimes being chained to a carpet loom and always being starved until he escaped at age 10."

"Iqbal's visit opened my eyes about child bonded labor and labels. Reading a label on something tells you where something's made, but not under what conditions it was made. We need to have a 'child labor-free' label on goods imported into the United States."

Amy recalled how Broad Meadows students began a Kids Campaign to Build a School for Iqbal after learning of his death.

"About 40 students gravitated to our closed school," she said. "Someone we got the school opened and we crowded into a classroom to grieve. I suggested that we build a school in Iqbal's memory in Pakistan. My classmates agreed and we began a student-to-student on-line human rights campaign."

The students have raised more than $107,000 for the project.

Kennedy, who has fought to end slavery and sexual exploitation of children, said the problem is larger than some might think.

"Many people around the world are not aware of the extent to which this problem exists," he said. "The problem of child exploitation exists around the globe, where children as young as 4 or 5 receive no education, a fraction of adult wages—if they are fortunate enough to be paid for their work—no medical attention, and are kept from their parents for extended amounts of time while being forced to work as bonded laborers or prostitutes."

The International Labor Organization estimates the total number of child workers to be between 100 million and 200 million, added Kennedy, who is exploring ways to motivate foreign governments to more forcefully address the issue.

Cheney Straight Talk

One thing most people will agree on about Mike Cheney: he doesn't go pussy-footing around things.

Ask him a question and you'll get an answer. Straight. No curves.

Does he want to be mayor?

"Yes, I want to be mayor."

Is he definitely going to run for it?

"Yes. Definitely."

But with one slight reservation.

"I'm not going to run against Jim Sheets. I think he has done a great job as mayor. I can wait. I'm still a young guy."

Cheney, who is 43, says he wouldn't mind Sheets being elected to two more two-year terms.

"I hope he is staying four more years," he says. "It would work out perfectly for me."

Perfectly, he explains, because by then he could retire on a full pension from the MBTA where he is a foreman in charge of diesel mechanics.

And if Sheets decides not to serve four more years, Cheney is ready for that.

"I can take a leave of absence from the MBTA," he says.

But Cheney likes the sound of four years and for another reason, too.

He notes he is in his 12th years in the City Council and four more, of course, would make 16.

Which coincidentally was the number of years Sheets was in the City Council when he first ran and was elected mayor. Cheney sees 16 as a good omen.

Cheney muses he has had a lot of "one-the-job training" for the mayor's office, including:

Ward councillor, councillor at-large, council president (with a number of stints as acting mayor when Sheets was absent from the city), chairman of the ordinance, public safety, tourism and now finance committees and service on all council committees.

"This (finance committee chairman) completes my on-the-job training for the mayor's office," he smiles. "It gives me experience dealing with department heads" (on their budgets.)

Cheney sounds like a definite mayoral candidate once Sheets decides to leave City Hall.

The names of three other members of this year's council automatically pop up when the subject gets around to future mayors: Paul Harold, Tim Cahill and Dan Raymond.

Cahill is now a candidate for Norfolk County treasurer and if he wins (as many think he will) that would take him out of the Quincy mayoral picture.

Which would leave Harold and Raymond as major obstacles to Cheney if they decided to run.

And if they did?

"It doesn't matter," says Cheney. "I will run whether they run or not."

SEEMS WHEREVER Councillor Paul Harold goes, he comes across someone from Quincy. So it was when he recently attended his first meeting as a member of the Board of Directors of the Massachusetts Municipal Association.

Chairman of the board, he discovered, is David Humphrey, a former Quincy boy who is a selectman in Eastham.

Humphrey grew up in Quincy Point and North Quincy. His father operated a real estate office at Hancock and Beale Sts. and also built a number of houses on Wollaston Hill.

LONG-TIME POPULAR WJDA personality Win Bettinson, now retired, and his wife, Jean, won't forget their 48th wedding anniversary. They celebrated it in an accident forced low-key manner.

A few days before the anniversary, Win decided to cut a couple of branches from a tree in the yard of their Brintree home.

So, he got out the step-ladder and climbed three or four steps to reach the branches while Jean held the ladder for him.

He cut one branch down. Stretched to cut the second and down he came—landing on Jean.

Win suffered five fractured ribs in the fall and Jean a painful bruising. Win is taking it a little easier but isn't letting it slow him down.

He and Jean, who are active in Bethany Congregational Church, were there Sunday assisting in serving Holy Communion.

AND, SPEAKING OF Win, Jean and Bethany, reminds me of a nice note received from our mutual good friend Rev. John Banks, former minister there, who now lives in Chapel Hill, N.C.

John, who gets The Sun by mail notes:

"We thoroughly enjoy The Sun which weekly keeps us informed about the people of Quincy and developments in 'the old home town.'"

SALGIARRANTANI of Atlantic St., North Quincy, has been named public affairs officer for D.A.V. Post 13 in Dorchester. Sal ran for the School Committee last year and is a frequent contributor to The Sun's Readers Forum.

DON'T KNOW WHERE he finds this stuff but Weymouth reader Sulo Soini has another one for you. A notice posted somewhere:

"This office requires no physical fitness program. Everyone gets plenty of exercise jumping to conclusions, flying off the handle, running down the boss, dodging responsibility, polishing the apple and pushing their luck."

Applications Available For U.S. Service Academies

Congressman Gerry Studds announces that high school students on the South Shore, Cape Cod and the Islands may apply for nominations to the four U.S. Service Academies. The application deadline is Nov. 1. Applications will be evaluated by Studds' Nominee Selection Committee, after which the congressman will forward the names of the students recommended by the committee to the

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS 1917 POSTCARD is a view of Wollaston Beach near the end of Beach Street. Sachem Brook meandered through Wollaston, came alongside the building at right, then went under the boulevard and emptied out through these granite walls between the two yacht clubs. The brook is now closed in and flows out a culvert in this area which is now a sandy beach. The G.W. Mitchell Co. on the right sold groceries, ice cream and confectionery. It later became Elsie's Cafe and it is now the site of a parking lot for the condominium complex next door. Across Beach Street, the Wollaston Beach Inn also sold groceries and provisions in the small store behind the sail. The store still stands but is boarded up.

The city was supplying water from the abandoned reservoir to the shipyard for industrial uses.

Physical Education Should Remain Mandatory In Public Schools

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

Last year when I ran for School Committee, I did so because I was a parent concerned about public education.

I want to make sure that my daughter is getting a sound public education. One that teaches the basics but one that also teaches her to understand the many roles we lead as why strive for adulthood. I'm concerned about reading scores. I'm concerned about basic math and computer skills.

However, I'm also concerned she gets music and art and yes, gym. I disagree with the proposal by Commissioner Robert Antonucci to do away with the physical education regulation for public schools. Physical education should remain a mandated part of public schools.

After all, there are a host of so-called non-academic requirements that should remain inside the public school classrooms and hopefully things like health awareness, fire and police safety, and drug/alcohol education are areas too important not to be in the classroom.

Gov. Weld recently said he loved to play sports but hated gym. Most of us hated gym but we learned most of our group skills on the gym floor. Too many critics of mandated gym apparently think gym and recess are one and the same. Recess is recess. We demean the value of physical education by lumping it together with playing tag.

America is fast becoming a nation of huskies. We eat too much and we exercise too little. Many die prematurely choking on their own bad diets and lifestyle. Yes, it is important to be able to read and write, to add and subtract, and to know something of our history, but we need to be able to be both alive and healthy to do it all.

Just as music and art add to our culture in many different ways, physical education as a child prepares us to grow healthy and live long. The Greeks had it right centuries ago: we need healthy bodies and healthy minds.

Gym class, after all, isn't supposed to prepare us for the NBA; it is there to help us keep us in better shape and better health, right? Some things you learn in books, and other things you learn on the parquet floor.

NQHS Senior Stayout 'A Hit'

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

Well, we did it! The "we" being parents, teachers, police, teachers and businesses.

Recently, the North Quincy High School Parent Advisory Council sponsored our first "Senior Stayout '96" after-prom party. What a hit! We (the committee) hoped that even if only 50 kids came, stayed and had fun, the night would be successful.

The party was held at the National Fire Protection Association headquarters. At least 170 students attended the 11:30 p.m. to 5 a.m. party. There was so much food (all donated) as well as over 70 raffle prizes given out, all because of at least 130 contributors, local companies, stores, clubs and individuals. Not only did the children have a good time, but so did the evening volunteers of parents, teachers and police who chaperoned.

I want to thank all the contributors, whether you donated food, cash raffle prizes, time before (the planning stages) and during that evening. A special thanks is sent to the students who came—they had fun, were well-behaved and polite.

Because of the favorable response and large turnout, the committee is thinking ahead for Senior Stayout '97!

Marie's Kitchen

BY MARIE D'OLIMPIO

Easy Does It Eggplant

I think I have prepared eggplant many different ways including frying, baking, steaming and of course the popular eggplant parmesan casserole.

But lately I have been preparing the casserole without cooking it at all until the baking process. And great if you're watching your calories.

I used egg beaters instead of eggs, but one egg won't hurt anyone.

Easy Does It Eggplant

- 1 medium sized eggplant
- 1 egg and a little water
- 2 or 3 tablespoons flour
- salt and pepper to taste
- 10 ounces cottage cheese
- grated romano or parmesan cheese.
- 2 or 3 cups tomato sauce

Skin and cut the eggplant about 1/4 inch thick. Mix the egg and flour and a little water together until mixture resembles a lighter pancake mix.

In a casserole bowl place some of the tomato sauce. Coat each slide of eggplant and place the first layer on the bottom of the dish. Add the cottage cheese, and more tomato sauce, and continue until done. On top add some more tomato sauce and the grated cheese.

Bake covered first in a 350 degree oven for about 20 minutes and then uncovered for another 10 minutes, or until bubbly and done to your liking. Cool for a few minutes and then enjoy! I don't think you'll be able to tell if the eggplant was fried or not.

"Now we mark Memorial Day with parades and prayers for those who have died honorably defending our country, and its principles of life, liberty, and freedom. Whether it was on the battlefields of the Civil War or World Wars I and II, Korea, Vietnam, or more recently in Operation Desert Storm and Somalia, and now Bosnia, those who have given their lives while performing their duties have made the ultimate sacrifice to their families, friends and country."

"The freedoms secured by those conflicts came at great cost--great cost, indeed. That cost was paid with the lives of the men and women of our armed forces. To pay that price was a heavy burden, no matter how many or how few Americans fell--no matter how large or how small the battle or war that consumed them. Each life was given for liberty--our liberty--and cannot be forgotten."

"Those we remember and honor today now number more than 1 million. That's more than a million Americans who have given the last full measure of devotion while serving our nation in war.

"These war dead rest today in more than 100 national cemeteries in the United States, and also in a number of military cemeteries overseas. Many more lie in other cemeteries across our land. They deserve our honor, our respect, and our recognition."

"In faraway places with names often difficult to pronounce, these soldiers, sailors, airmen and Marines lived constantly in the shadow of danger and death. These brave men left the safety of home to keep our homeland free. The following words, inscribed at Arlington National Cemetery, are dedicated to them: 'Not for fame or reward, not for place or rank, not lured by ambition or goaded by necessity, but in simple obedience to duty as they understood it, these men suffered all, sacrificed all, dared all--and died.'"

"As we pay tribute to these valiant men, we must also honor their gift to us: freedom. In every trench, through every battle, on every destroyer, one principle united the men who fought for America: all of them loved liberty. Freedom, the promise of America, was more important to them than life. Selflessly these heroes gave their lives so that we might know freedom."

"This Memorial Day has special significance for me. It was 25 years ago that I first took the oath to uphold the Constitution when I entered the U.S. Army. I went on to serve four years in the Army, and since then have served in the Massachusetts Army National Guard."

"This is also the first full year that my oldest son is serving in the Army, following his graduation last year from West Point. He's training to be a helicopter pilot. His brother is currently wrapping up his junior year at West Point and will graduate next year. They are serving the country they love, and I pray they are able to do it safely."

"And with them in mind, we must also realize there is more to Memorial Day than remembrance and giving thanks to yesterday's fallen heroes: there is the challenge of tomorrow. Even as we look back, feeling pride and patriotism, we also look to the future.

"The challenges of the future won't be any easier than those of the past. As patriot Thomas Paine said, 'Those who expect to reap the blessings of freedom must undergo the fatigue of supporting it.' So the challenge is to keep our guard up and our forces strong. And we must remain strong, because we know that in strength lies our clearest means of preserving peace and liberty."

"We must never forget our veterans and what they have done for us. Whether they are from North Quincy, Houghs Neck, Wollaston, Presidents Hill, Squantum, East Quincy or any part of this great city, this great state, this great country. Whether they have served in the Army, Navy, Air Force, Marine Corps, Coast Guard or National Guard, we must do more as citizens and public officials to honor those who gave us much of

PUTTING PMS IN ITS PLACE

Comedians can tell all the jokes they want, but there is nothing funny about premenstrual syndrome (PMS) to the thousands of women who suffer mild to severe monthly symptoms. For some women, problems are so debilitating - depression, aches, fatigue, nervousness - that prescription drugs are necessary. For others, making a few life-style changes may help. Many PMS sufferers report that cutting down on caffeine and alcohol, especially during periods of peak discomfort, can lighten the impact of symptoms. Easing upon salt naturally helps relieve water retention. Moderate aerobic activity such as walking tends to ease depression and cramps. Eating a calcium-rich diet may also have a positive effect.

P.S. To help determine if PMS is causing your problems, keep a daily log of symptoms for a least two months.
